The 22nd February 1916.

No. 4.—Notification.—The following draft of rules which, in exercise of the powers conferred by section 90 of the Bengal Embankment Act, 1882 (Bengal Act II of 1882), and in supersession of Notification No. 108, dated the 26th February 1884 (published at pages 399-400 of the Calcutta Gazette of the 27th idem), as amended by Notification No. 11, dated the 16th November 1908, the Governor in Council intends to make for carrying out the provisions of the said Act, is published for the information of persons likely to be affected thereby.

II. The draft will be taken into consideration on or after the 25th March 1916, and any objection or suggestion which may be received by the undersigned before that date will be duly considered.

Draft Rules.

1. All estimates for works or repairs or for maintenance of public embankments which are prepared under section 7 or section 47 of the Bengal Embankment Act, 1882 (Bengal Act II of 1882), shall include the estimated cost of all petty establishment employed for watching or guarding embankments and for working sluices.

2. (1) Such estimates shall also include such charges for directing and supervising establishment and for the use of tools and plant as may be directed by the Governor in Council from time to time.

(2) The said charges shall not exceed in all 26 per cent. on the estimated outlay on the works or repairs, exclusive of charges for the acquisition of land or for petty establishment. The charge for supervising establishment and tools and plant shall ordinarily be a consolidated one of 10 per cent. on the outlay on the works (excluding land and petty establishment), but if in any particular case it is desired to make a higher charge or to reduce or remit the charge altogether, a reference must be made to Government at the time when the estimate is prepared.

3. The Collector shall, previous to submitting a report to the Commissioner under section 11, 19 or 43 of the Act, obtain the written opinion of the Superintending Engineer, which shall form part of the record of proceedings in the case.

No notices regarding new works, the estimated cost of which exceeds Rs. 2,500, shall be published under section 9 of the Act, until the estimates, specifications and plans have received the approval of the Chief Engineer.

4. No estimate referred to in section 49 of the Act shall be transmitted to the Collector, until it has been countersigned by the Superintending Engineer, who shall be responsible that the repairs proposed to be executed are necessary, that it is proposed to execute them in the proper manner and that the rates entered in the estimate are fair and reasonable.

5. The Superintending Engineer shall, on the requisition of the Collector, furnish a written opinion on any work which it is proposed to execute under the Act, causing all necessary surveys to be made.

6. Where the Collector, under the last preceding rule, requires surveys to be made, he shall either cause the estimated cost of the same to be paid to the Engineer, or procure sanction, under the ordinary rules for the disbursement of public money, to the proposed expenditure. Such deposit or sanction shall provide for the salaries and allowances of the Engineers and Surveyors intended to be employed.

7. The Superintending Engineer shall, in any enquiry under section 51 of the Act, on receiving a requisition to that effect from the Collector, give his written opinion as to the boundaries of the lands affected by such works or repairs, and the extent to which they have been benefited or affected. This opinion shall form part of the record of proceedings in the case.

8. Notwithstanding that there is no express mention in section 52 of the Act of objections preferred before the Collector to the Engineer's accounts and certificate of expenses, on the ground that certain lands are not benefited by the works or repairs as specified in such certificate, the Collector shall entertain and consider such objections. As the disposal of such objections will often depend on professional enquiries, the Collector shall ordinarily consult the Engineer and, if necessary, the Superintending Engineer, before passing orders, and the substance of the reference to the Engineer, and of his reply shall form part of the record.

If, on such objection the Collector shall come to the conclusion that any alteration should be made in the certificate which has been signed by the Engineer, under section 51, he may at any time, before making an order charging or apportioning the amount under section 58 of the Act, make such alteration as provided in section 52.

9. When it appears likely that the ordinary procedure under the Act would be attended with grave and imminent danger to life and property, and proceedings are taken by the Collector, under section 25 of the Act, or by the Engineer, under section 29, the Collector shall make an immediate report to the Commissioner, and forward a copy thereof to the Superintending Engineer. In such cases the Commissioner shall lose no time in submitting a copy of the said report, with his opinion thereon, for the orders of Government.

10. All orders passed under section 31 of the Act shall be in writing, and the applicant shall be entitled to receive a copy of the same, free of charge, on application. The Engineer shall delegate to all Public Works Subdivisional Officers the power of receiving applications, under section 31 of the Act, for temporary roadways and temporary water-courses, but no person so appointed shall pass an order for the construction of a temporary water-course, unless he has been specially authorised to do so by the Superintending Engineer. Such authority shall specify the embankments in regard to which only this power is to be exercised. In all cases where an application for a temporary water-course is made to a person appointed by the Engineer, such application shall be submitted to the Engineer for transmission to the Collector. The Engineer, in forwarding applications under this section to the Collector, shall state in writing whether, in his opinion, they can be sanctioned without endangering the safety of the embankment.

11. All Public Works Subdivisional Officers shall be authorised to open or shut sluices under general rules to be issued by the Engineer, with the approval of the Collector. A copy of all rules made under this section shall be transmitted to the Superintending Engineer.

12. Any order to remove an embankment or obstruction, or to repair damage, passed under section 79 of the Act, shall be appealable to the Court to which an appeal ordinarily lies from the decision of the Magistrate who passes the order.

13. The Engineer shall submit to Government, through the Superintending Engineer, an annual report on the state of each Schedule D embankment in his charge on the 1st of April of each year. The report shall contain the following particulars:—

(a) the original length of the embankment ;
(b) the length as maintained during the year ;
(c) the area it protects :
(d) the floods during the year ;
(e) how the embankment was affected by the floods of the year ;
(f) the cost of its upkeep ;
(g) whether there has been any encroachment on embankment land during the year ; if in the affirmative, what steps have been taken to bring the offender to justice ·
(h) if the crest of the embankment is sufficiently high to protect the lands within from floods in the river.

14. The Engineer in charge shall submit to Government annually, through the Superintending Engineer, a report with plans shewing what embankments, if any, have been erected or added to within any tract included in a prohibitory notification issued under section 6 of the Act.

F. A. A. COWLEY,
Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

The 25th February 1916.

No. 30 Marine.—Whereas by virtue of section 68A of the Inland Steam-vessels Act, 1884 (VI of 1884), the provisions of the said Act apply to motor vessels in the Presidency of Bengal, with the modifications prescribed by the Notification by the Government of India in the Department of Commerce and Industry, No. 1571-52, dated the 14th March 1914,

NOW THEREFORE, in exercise of the powers conferred by section 29 of the Inland Steam-vessels Act, 1884 (VI of 1884), and with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, the Governor in Council of the Presidency of Fort William in Bengal is pleased to make the following revised rules relating to the grant of certificates of competency to engineers and engine-drivers of inland steam and motor vessels, in supersession of Notification No. 68Marine, dated the 8th July 1910, as amended by Notification No. 113Marine, dated the 11th October 1912.

F. A. A. COWLEY,
Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

RULES RELATING TO THE EXAMINATION OF ENGINEERS AND ENGINE-DRIVERS UNDER ACT VI OF 1884.

Certificates of competency to be granted to persons who pass requisite examinations

1. Certificates of competency will be granted to those persons who pass the requisite examinations and otherwise comply with the requisite conditions. For this purpose examiners have been appointed and arrangements have been made for holding the examinations periodically at the Ports of Calcutta and Chittagong, and at Goalundo in the Faridpur district.

Examinations to be continued till all the candidates are examined

2. The examinations will commence early in the forenoon, and will be continued until all the candidates whose names appear upon the list of the Port Officer, Calcutta or Chittagong, or of the Subdivisional Officer, Goalundo, on the day of examination are examined.

Application how to be made

3. Candidates for examination must make their application in form Exn. 1, which must be filled in at the Port Office, Calcutta or Chittagong, or at the Subdivisional Office, Goalundo.

Candidates unable to write English must apply at the Port Office, Calcutta or Chittagong, or at the Subdivisional Office, Goalundo, for a copy of form Exn. 1, and the same must be filled in before the Port Officer, Calcutta or Chittagong, or Subdivisional Officer, Goalundo, before submission at the Port Office, Calcutta or Chittagong, or at the Subdivisional Office, Goalundo.

The form Exn. 1. properly filled in, together with the candidate's testimonials, must be lodged with the Port Officer, Calcutta or Chittagong, or Subdivisional Officer, Goalundo, not later than three days before the day of examination.

Testimonials required

4. Applicants will be required to produce, in addition to the usual forms of discharge, satisfactory testimonials as to sobriety, experience, ability, and general good conduct for at least the last 12 months' service on boardship preceding the date of application to be examined, unless the Government after having investigated the matter, should see fit to reduce the time.

An applicant already possessed of a certificate and wishing to appear for one of a higher grade must produce his certificate and all the discharges and testimonials he submitted when he applied for examination in the lower grade as well as the discharges and testimonials necessary for the higher grade certificate. Should references of doubtful authenticity be submitted by candidates for examination, the examining officer may require proof from the candidate of their genuineness, or an affidavit made to that effect.

If applicants have served on shore immediately preceding their application, certificates of sobriety must be produced from their employers, or from a respectable householder if unemployed. No candidate will be allowed to be examined unless he has served on boardship six months within the last three years preceding the date of his application to be examined.

5. As such testimonials and discharges may have to be verified before the candidates can be examined, it is desirable that these should be handed over, together with the form Exn. 1, as early as possible.

Testimonials of Foreigners.

6. The testimonials of service of Foreigners and of British seamen serving in foreign vessels, which cannot be verified in the Port Office, Calcutta or Chittagong, or Subdivisional Office, Goalundo, must be confirmed either by the Consul of the country to which the ship in which the candidate served belonged, or by some other recognized official authority of that country, or by the testimony of some credible person on the spot, having personal knowledge of the facts required to be established. The production, however, of such proofs will not of necessity be deemed sufficient. Each case must be decided on its own merits; and if the sufficiency of the proofs given appears to be at all doubtful, the point must be referred to the Government.

Certificate as to age

7. Should any doubt exist as to the age of a candidate, he will be required to produce a certificate of birth or baptism.

Foreigners to know English

8. Foreigners must prove to the satisfaction of the examiners that they can speak and write the English language sufficiently well to perform the duties required of them on board a British vessel.

9. Testimonials of service must ordinarily be based on their employers' office records.

Services claimed which cannot be verified from the employers' office records must be authenticated by affidavits of men under whom such services have been performed as well as by an affidavit of the candidate himself.

Testimonials of service from European engineers will be accepted.

10. Candidates will be required to account for any gaps in their services with documentary evidence.

Qualifications for Certificates of Competency as Second-class Engine-drivers of Inland Steam-vessels.

11. A candidate for a certificate of competency as second-class engine-driver of an inland steam-vessel must have attained the age of twenty-one years.

12. (a) He must have served an apprenticeship of at least four years if in India, or three years if in the United Kingdom, in the making or repairing of steam-engines and one year in the engine-room of a steamer; or

(b) He must have served four years in the engine-room of a steamer at sea, or on inland waters under a certificated engineer or first-class engine-driver, one year of which service must have been as a serang or tindal; or

(c) He must have served five years in the engine-room of a steamer, one year of which service must have been as serang, tindal or principal fireman in a vessel of not less than 15 nominal horse-power under a first-class engine-driver; or

(d) He must have served two years in charge of the engines of a factory or mill under a European manager or engineer and one year as engine-room serang, tindal or principal fireman in a steamer of not less than 15 nominal horse-power.

13. He must satisfactorily pass a vivâ voce examination as to the working of marine engines and boilers and the uses of the different parts and fittings, also as to the use of brine cocks, the salinometer and blowing-off the care of boilers in salt or foul water, and the art of economical stoking and prevention of smoke.

14. He must be able, if required, to show his practical qualifications by actually working the engines of a small steamer, after fulfilling all the other tests to which he will be subjected.

Qualifications for Certificates of Competency as Second-class Engine-drivers of Inland Motor-vessels.

15. A candidate for a certificate of competency as second-class engine-driver of an inland motor-vessel must have attained the age of twenty-one years.

(a) He must have served an apprenticeship of at least three years in the making or repairing of steam and motor-engines and one year in the engine-room of a motor-vessel; or

(b) He must have served three years in the engine-room of a steamer or motor-vessel, one year of which service must have been as serang or tindal in a motor-vessel; or

(c) He must have served two years in charge of the engines of a factory or mill under a European manager or engineer as well as one year as serang or tindal in the engine-room of a motor-vessel; or

(d) He must have served as engine-driver in charge of the engines of a motor-vessel during the six months preceding the 14th March 1914 and apply for examination before the 31st March 1916; or

(e) He must have served for at least six months with a second-class engine-driver's certificate for steam-vessels or with a certificate of a higher grade in the engine-room of a motor-vessel as serang or tindal.

16. He must satisfactorily pass a viva voce examination as to the working of different types of marine motor-engines, the uses of their parts and fittings and especially those most liable to get out of order; also as to the different oils and gases used for power purposes in internal combustion engines, the conditions under which the several kinds of oil operate, their flash point, the danger when that is low, and meaning of the term.

17. He must be able, if required, to show his practical qualifications by actually working the engines of a small motor-vessel after fulfilling all the other tests to which he will be subjected.

Qualifications for Certificates of Competency as First-class Engine-drivers of Inland Steam-vessels.

18. A candidate for a certificate of competency as first-class engine-driver of an inland steam-vessel must have attained the age of twenty-two years.

19. (a) He must have served an apprenticeship of at least four years if in India, or three years if in the United Kingdom, in the making or repairing of steam-engines, and one year as Assistant Engineer in a steamer having engines of not less than 80 nominal horse-power whilst holding a second-class engine-driver's certificate for steam-vessels; or

(b) He must have served five years in the engine-room of a steamer at sea or on inland waters, two years of which service must have been as a serang or principal tindal of a steamer having compound surface condensing engines of not less than 30 nominal horse-power whilst holding a second-class engine-driver's certificate for steam-vessels; or

(c) He must have served one year as second driver with a second-class engine-driver's certificate for steam-vessels in charge of a watch on the main engines and boilers of a steamer having compound surface condensing engines of not less than 30 nominal horse-power; or

(d) He must have served one year with a second-class engine-driver's certificate for steam-vessels as driver in charge of the engines of a steamer having compound surface condensing engines of not less than 20 nominal horse-power; or

(e) He must have served eighteen months as serang or principal tindal with a second-class engine-driver's certificate for steam-vessels in charge of a watch on the main engines and boilers of a steamer having compound surface condensing engines of not less than 30 nominal horse-power; or

(f) He must have served three years in charge of the engines of a factory or mill under a European manager or engineer, as well as two years as assistant engineer, engine-room serang or principal tindal, of a steamer having engines of not less than 80 nominal horse-power whilst holding a second-class engine-driver's certificate for steam-vessels.

20. He must pass a vivâ voce examination similar to that required by Rule 13 for a second-class engine-driver's certificate for steam-vessels but more advanced.

21. He must also be able, if required, to show his practical qualifications by actually working the engines of a steamer after fulfilling all the other tests to which he will be subjected.

Qualifications for Certificates of Competency as First-class Engine-drivers of Inland Motor-vessels.

22. A candidate for a certificate of competency as first-class engine-driver of an inland motor-vessel must have attained the age of twenty-two years.

(a) He must have served an apprenticeship of at least three years in the making or repairing of steam and motor engines and one year as serang or principal tindal in the engine-room of a motor-vessel having engines of not less than 250 brake horse-power whilst holding a second-class engine-driver's certificate for motor-vessels; or

(b) He must have served four years in the engine-room of a steamer or motor-vessel, one year of which service must have been as serang or principal tindal in a motor-vessel having engines of not less than 250 brake horse-power whilst holding a certificate as second-class engine-driver for motor-vessels; or

(c) He must have served one year as second driver, serang or principal tindal with a second-class engine-driver's certificate for motor-vessels in charge of a watch on the main engines of a motor-vessel of not less than 250 brake horse-power; or

(d) He must have served one year with a second-class engine-driver's certificate for motor-vessels, as driver-in-charge of the engines of a motor-vessel having engines of not less than 150 brake horse-power; or

(e) He must have served three years in charge of the engines of a factory or mill under a European manager or engineer as well as one year as assistant engine-driver, engine-room serang or principal tindal of a motor-vessel having engines of not less than 250 brake horse-power, whilst holding a second-class engine-driver's certificate for motor-vessels.

23. He must pass a vivâ voce examination similar to that required by rule 16 for a second-class engine-driver's certificate for motor-vessels, but more advanced.

24. He must be able, if required, to show his practical qualifications by actually working the engines of a motor-vessel after fulfilling all the other tests.

Qualifications for Certificates of Competency as Engineers.

25. A candidate must be not less than twenty-two years of age.

(a) He must have served as an apprentice engineer for five years if in India, or four years if in the United Kingdom, and prove that during the period of his apprenticeship he has been employed on the making or repairing of steam-engines, boilers, etc.

Journeyman's time will be considered as equivalent to apprenticeship.

In addition to the apprenticeship described above, the applicant must have served two years thereafter as Assistant Engineer in a steamer having engines of not less than 80 nominal horse-power or with a first-class engine-driver's certificate as driver-in-charge of the engines of a steamer having compound surface condensing engines of not less than 30 nominal horse-power, or Failing the above service, he must have served four years with a first-class engine-driver's certificate, in charge of the engines of a steamer having compound surface condensing engines of not less than 30 nominal horse-power.

(b) He must be able to give a satisfactory description of boilers, and the methods of staying them, together with the use and management of the different valves, cocks, pipes and connexions.

(c) He must understand how to correct defects from accident, decay, etc., and the means of repairing such defects.

(d) He must understand the use of the water-gauge, pressure gauge, barometer, thermometer and salinometer, and the principles on which they are constructed.

(e) He must state the causes, effects and usual remedies for incrustation and corrosion.

(f) He must be able to explain the method of testing and altering the setting of the slide valves, and method of testing the fairness of shafts and adjusting them.

(g) He must be able to calculate the suitable working pressure for a steam-boiler of given dimensions, and the stress, per square inch, on crank and tunnel shafts when the necessary data are furnished.

(h) He must understand the construction of, and be able to maintain in working condition, the auxiliary machinery which may be placed under his charge, viz., electric light engines (steam and oil) and dynamos, electric motors, the various types of steering engines, hydraulic and refrigerating machinery.

(i) He must understand the construction of centrifugal bucket, and plunger pumps, and the principle on which they act.

(j) He must be able to state how a temporary or permanent repair could be effected in case of derangement of a part of the machinery, or total breakdown.

(k) He must write a legible hand, and have a good knowledge of arithmetic up to and including vulgar and decimal fractions and square and cube roots. He must also understand the application of these rules to questions about safety valves, coal consumption, consumption of stores, capacities of tanks, bunkers, &c.

(l) He must be able to pass a creditable examination as to the various constructions of paddle and screw engines in general use, as to the details of the different working parts, external and internal, and the use of each part.

(m) He must possess a creditable knowledge of the prominent facts relating to combustion, heat, steam and electricity.

(n) He will be required to make an intelligible hand sketch, or a working drawing of some one or more of the principal parts of a steam-engine, and to mark in, without a copy, all the necessary dimensions in figures, so that the sketch or drawing could be worked from (Appendix D). Drawing boards and T-squares will be provided, but applicants will have to bring with them any drawing instruments they may require.

(o) He must be able to state the general proportions borne by the principal parts of the machinery to each other, and to calculate the direct stress, the torsional stress, and the bending stress in round bars, and the direct stress and the bending stress in rectangular bars with given loads.

(p) He must be able to describe different types of marine motor-engines, their working and uses of the several parts.

General Rules as to Examinations.

(Engineers.)

26. All books necessary for the use of candidates under examination will be provided and applicants will not be permitted to take into the examination-room any book, paper, document, or memoranda of any description whatever; and, subject to the provisions referred to hereafter, they will also not be allowed to work out their problems on a slate or on waste paper.

Candidate not to take books, etc., into examination-room

27. Candidates will be allowed in the time allotted to cancel any part of their work, and, when required, additional papers will be supplied by the examiners. These additional sheets must be attached to, and form part of, the examination papers.

28. In the event of any candidate being discovered copying from another, or affording any assistance or giving any information to another, or communicating in any way with another during the time of examination, he will be regarded as having failed in his examination, and will be turned back for three months, in the same manner as if he had failed in the practical part of the examination; and no part of the fees he may have paid for examination will be returned to him.

Punishment for breaking rules

29. If a candidate leaves the room before answering any question which has been given to him, he cannot afterwards be permitted to answer it, but the examiners may substitute other data or another question.

Leaving examination-room.

30. (a) The examination of candidates for certificates of competency as engineers consists of four parts: Arithmetic, Drawing, Elementary questions and vivâ voce. When the number of marks obtained in arithmetic amounts to 28, that is, two-thirds of the maximum, the candidate passes in arithmetic.

Questions and answers.

(b) All applicants presenting themselves for examination for certificates of competency as engineers will be required to give written answers to ten questions selected from the list of elementary questions shown in Appendix B. These questions are intended to furnish a record to some extent of the candidate's knowledge at the time of his examination, and also to induce the candidates to pay more attention to their handwriting and spelling.

31. The form, Appendix A, on which these answers will be written, contains also some questions as to the experience of the applicant, to be answered by him in writing.

32. Examiners may add to their vivâ voce questions on the practical management of steam-engines and boilers any of those contained in Appendix B.

33. If at the expiration of the time allowed the candidate has worked out correctly the whole of the questions set to him, and given satisfactory answers in the vivâ voce examination, he will be declared to have passed.

34. If at the expiration of the time allowed he has not worked out the whole of the questions set to him, but if the result of the vivâ voce examination, taken in connection with the answers to such of the questions as he has worked out, is sufficient to satisfy the examiners that the applicant is competent to take charge of engines, he will be declared to have passed.

35. In other cases he will be declared to have failed.

36. A report of the examination, and the examination papers will be forwarded to the Government on the prescribed form.

37. If the candidate passes, he will receive a formal note to that effect upon which the Government will issue the certificate to the candidate, whose testimonials, etc., will be returned at the same time.

Notification of having passed will be given to successful candidates.

Fees.

38. Candidates for examination, in making their application on form Exn. 1, will be required to pay the examination fees before any step is taken, whether by inquiring into their services or testing their qualifications, etc. No part of the fee will under any circumstances be returned to them; but should it be found that their service is not sufficient to entitle them to be examined, or that their testimonials are unsatisfactory, they will be allowed to present themselves for examination without paying any further fee, when they have fulfilled the requisite service, or are able to produce satisfactory testimonials, as the case may be.

39. The fee for examination must be paid to the Port Officer, Calcutta or Chittagong, or Subdivisional Officer, Goalundo. In any case in which a candidate offers money to any other officer, and in any place but in the Port Office, Calcutta or Chittagong, or Subdivisional Office, Goalundo, the candidate so offering money will be regarded as having committed an act of misconduct, and will be rejected and not allowed to be examined for 12 months.

40. If a candidate fails in his examinations, no part of the fee he has paid will be returned to him.

41. The fees are as follows:—

			Rs.
Second-class engine-drivers		...	4
First-class	ditto	... ...	10
Engineers	...	... ...	12

Failure.

42. If the applicant fails in the vivâ voce or practical part of the examination, he may not present himself for re-examination until he can produce proofs of three months' further service afloat. If he fails in arithmetic or drawing only, he may come up again at any time. Engine-drivers may be examined de novo after six months' active service as serang or principal tindal or second driver if the past examination showed that they might reasonably be expected to qualify.

General.

43. Certificates of competency as engineers and first and second-class engine-drivers shall be made out and issued in the forms hereunto annexed.

44. Every certificate of competency shall be made in duplicate, and one copy shall be delivered to the person entitled to the certificate and the other shall be kept and recovered by the Port Officer of Calcutta or Chittagong, or the Subdivisional Officer, Goalundo.

APPENDIX A.

(See rule 31.)

TO ENGINEER EXAMINERS.

EXAMINERS will require all candidates to fill up the particulars noted below, and will forward the same to the Government along with the report of the examination.

The arithmetical questions for engineers and the vivâ voce examinations for all candidates will be continued as heretofore, and failure in the elementary questions will be treated as failure in arithmetic.

The numbers of the questions for each examination will be selected by the examiners, and they are not to be communicated to the candidate until his examination commences.

Port	Class for which examined
Date	Candidate's name

A. Where and how long did you serve in works at the making or at the repairing of engines, and in what capacities?

B. How long have you served in the engine-room at sea, or on inland waters and in what capacities?

C. With what descriptions of engines have you served at sea, or on inland waters—paddle, or screw, or both? What size were the engines?

D. With what description of boilers have you served at sea, or on inland waters—cylindrical, multitubular, water tube, sectional or flue boilers?

E. What engine defects have come under your notice at sea, or on inland waters, what caused these defects, and how were they remedied? Give the names of the steamers for verification.

F. What boiler defects have come under your notice, what caused these defects, and how were they remedied? Give the names of the steamers for verification.

ELEMENTARY QUESTIONS.

For the examination of Engineers for Certificates of Competency.

1. What parts of an engine are generally made of wrought iron?
2. What parts of an engine are generally made of cast iron?
3. For what parts of an engine is steel sometimes used?
4. What parts of an engine are generally made of brass or gun-metal?
5. Where is "white metal" sometimes used? On account of what property possessed by it is it adopted? What objection is there to its more general use?

6. For what parts is Muntz metal sometimes used? Is it malleable? For what properties is it valued?
7. What difference is there in the composition of cast iron, of wrought iron and of steel?
8. How can cast iron, wrought iron, and steel be distinguished from each other?
9. What are the different properties of cast iron, of wrought iron and of steel?
10. What is meant by the terms "breaking stress," "proof stress," "safe working stress"?
11. What is the cohesive strength, or breaking stress, of good ordinary wrought iron?
12. Tempering steel: how is it done, and in what order do the colours come?
13. What is case-hardening?
14. Which of the common metals or alloys can be forged, and which of them are brittle or "short"?
15. What is meant by "welding"? Which of the common metals can be welded?
16. The expansion of metals by heat: give examples of this in the engine and in the boiler.
17. In the construction of steel cylindrical marine boilers, for what parts have the plates to be worked hot? What precautionary treatment of these plates is afterwards necessary?
18. In what parts of cylindrical marine boilers is the strongest rivetting employed? In which of the shell seams is it most necessary?
19. What is "caulking," and how are seams prepared for caulking?
20. Describe the different ways of fastening the ends of the main stays of a boiler. What are the merits of, or objections to, the different plans?
21. What stress per square inch is allowed on boiler stays?
22. Describe a rivetted stay, and state where such stays are commonly used.
23. Where are thin plates to be looked for in a boiler as it wears, and how is the thinness to be detected?
24. How are boiler tubes fixed? What are "stay tubes," and how are they secured?
25. Where is it generally that boiler tubes leak? How is this defect repaired? What are the causes of this leaking?
26. What are the causes of cracked tube plates? Where are the cracks situated? How are they repaired?
27. What is the difference between a "dry uptake" and a "wet uptake"? Which requires more repair? Why? Where have you seen a wet uptake?
28. What is a superheater? What is its construction? What valves are on it? There is sometimes a gauge glass on it. What is that for? Are superheaters now in general use?
29. What parts of a marine multitubular boiler are first injured by shortness of water?
30. Where are angle irons sometimes used in the construction of a boiler, and where are flanged plates used?
31. Priming; to what causes is it attributed? What means are applied to prevent it? What evils may be produced by it?
32. Funnel draught; what makes it? What checks it?
33. Flame is sometimes seen at the top of the funnel; what causes this appearance? Is it beneficial or is it detrimental? Why so?
34. A blast pipe; what is its construction? Where is it placed? For what is it used?
35. How many bottom blow-off cocks are generally fitted to each boiler, and why are they so fitted?
36. Blow-off cocks are sometimes fitted with a spanner guard; for what purpose is this? Describe how the guard is formed.
37. Water-gauge test-cocks; where are they placed? At what heights? Must the cocks themselves be at those heights? What provision is made for cleaning these cocks should they ever become choked? When there are no test-cocks, how is the height of the water ascertained?
38. What is a dead-weight safety valve? Of what are the rubbing surfaces formed? How is a lock-up valve arranged to admit of lifting it or of turning it round, and to prevent adding to the weight?

39. About what area of safety valve is now required by the Board of Trade? What is the effect of suddenly opening a safety valve when steam is up? To about what extent do safety valves rise when blowing off without being eased by hand?

40. Spring-loaded safety valves; what advantages have they that are not possessed by dead-weight valves? What are the disadvantages, if any, as compared with dead-weight valves?

41. Of what pieces does a glass water gauge mounting consist? How does it act? Where is it placed? At what height? Is it liable to derangement? How is its working tested?

42. Glass water gauges have sometimes pipe connections top and bottom; what is the object of this arrangement? Should there be cocks at the extremities of these pipes? Why? Or why not?

43. Describe a Bourdon steam gauge. Some gauges have an inverted syphon pipe below them: what is its use?

44. Why is a small cock sometimes put on the pipe leading to a steam gauge? Where should it be placed, and what error might be made by omitting to use it?

45. Do steam gauges indicate the total pressure of the steam or only a portion of that pressure? What is the pressure measured from?

46. What is meant by the salting of the boiler? How is this prevented? What is the density of ordinary sea water? How is the density ascertained? What is the difference between the formation of scale and the salting of the boiler? What is the maximum density at which boilers should be worked at sea? In the event of condenser tubes leaking, what is the minimum density at which boilers should be worked? Give your reasons.

47. Scum cocks and pipes; how are they arranged? Where are they placed? At what height in the boiler? When are they used? When must they be shut? Neglect of these cocks leads to what dangers?

48. Of what does scale consist? Where is it most objectionable? How is it removed? How is its formation prevented? What evil effects are produced by it?

49. What is a salinometer? Of what does it consist? How does it act? How it is graduated? Can it be used at any temperature indiscriminately?

50. What harm may be done through the check valve of one of a set of boilers being defective while under way? How would you work to avoid this harm?

51. How is the leak from a split tube stopped in a boiler under way? Describe the operation.

52. What is the use of dampers? Where are they fitted? When should they be used?

53. When there are no dampers fitted, what is used instead? What evil to the boiler is sometimes attributed to this? When the heating surfaces are clean does this occur?

54. Describe the piston of a steam cylinder; with its different rings and their uses. There are generally round pieces let in flush on one side of a piston: what are they? How are these pieces fixed?

55. Cylinder drain cocks; what is their use? There is sometimes a valve upon each cock; what purpose does it serve?

56. Cylinder escape valves; of what do they consist? How protected? How regulated? When are they most needed? To what danger do they expose the engineer? What precaution is sometimes used to obviate this danger?

57. What is a compound engine? What different kinds are there for screw steamers, in respect to the number and arrangement of their cranks and cylinders? What is a triple expansion engine?

58. What is link motion? What are some of its advantages? In modern engines for the screw propeller when there is no link motion, what takes its place?

59. What is a separate expansion valve? Why is it not fitted to all engines? What effect has an expansion valve upon the starting and upon the reversing of the engine?

60. What arrangement is applied to reduce the friction of a slide valve? To what is the friction due?

61. Describe a loose eccentric: how does it act? In what engines are the loose eccentrics still employed?

62. What is the travel of the eccentric rod? How it is measured on the eccentric? What is the travel of the slide valve when the link motion is in mid gear, and the engine still moving?

63. What are "double beat valves"? What objections are there to their use?

64. What is a circulating pump? Is it always worked by the main engine? Give an example from your last steamer of the three water temperatures generally noted by careful engineers.

65. An air valve is sometimes fitted to a circulating reciprocating pump: what purpose does it serve?

66. What is the difference between a bucket air-pump, a piston air-pump, and a plunger air-pump?

67. Are double-acting air-pumps made with plungers, with pistons, or with buckets? Describe the construction and action of circulating-pumps.

68. What is an air-pump trunk? When is it necessary? How is it attached to the bucket? Centrifugal pumps: describe their construction and mode of working.

69. What class of air-pump requires both foot and delivery valves, and in what other class can either of these valves be in some cases dispensed with?

70. What are marine governors? What is their general construction? How do they act?

71. With a surface condenser and a single acting air-pump what is the effect of a leaky foot valve, and what is the effect of a leaky bucket when there is also a foot valve?

72. Where is the air-pump pet cock or valve placed? How does it act? What is its object? Does it in every case reduce the effective capacity of the pump? Is it equally applicable to double acting pumps?

73. At what temperature is the hot well worked? What is the effect of higher temperatures? What is the effect of lower temperatures? What limits the lowness of temperature? Has a very low temperature any disadvantages?

74. Bilge injection with jet condensers; what are the fittings required? When is it used? What precautions are necessary in using it?

75. When surface condensers are used, what takes the place of the bilge injection? To what is the connection made? How is its valve formed? Why is this necessary?

76. What are the practical guides to the proper amount of opening of the inlet valve for the circulating pump?

77. Feed-pump pet cock or valve; where is it placed? What is its use? How does it act? Is it always a necessary fitting?

78. What are some of the ways of fastening the ends of surface condenser tubes? About what size and about what thickness are condenser tubes? What parts of a surface condenser are made of brass?

79. What is a blow-through valve or cock? To what is it attached? There is sometimes a valve which, when opened, admits steam from the slide valve casing to the exhaust port; what is its use? To which cylinder is it fitted?

80. What are snifting valves? Why are they generally omitted now?

81. What connexions are generally fitted to the donkey pump, and to what services can it be applied?

82. When the engines are stopped in harbour with steam up, what are to be shut and what are to be opened?

83. How is an engine heated up before starting? What precautionary examinations are made before starting?

84. What is an interceptor or catch-water? Where is it fixed, what is its construction, how does it act, and what attention does it require?

85. Describe an air-pump bucket with its valve or valves and its packing. Of what are the valves generally made?

86. Of what materials are air-pump rods made? Why?

87. What is the racing of the engine? When does it occur? What danger attaches to it? What is done to prevent it?

88. When under way, when the air-pump bucket is at the top of its stroke, at what height is the water in the condenser?

89. What is meant by the "pitch" of a screw propeller? How is it measured?

90. Explain the difference between a "right hand" and a "left hand" propeller, and state how each of them revolves.

91. What is the slip of a screw propeller? How is its amount expressed in figures?

92. Which of the valves about engines and boilers have to be worked by hand, which of them are self-acting, and which are worked by the motion of the engine.

93. Why is soda sometimes put into a boiler, and how is it put in when under way? What is the kind of soda used?

94. Tallow cups for cylinders were sometimes made with two small cocks, or with only one small cock, or with one large hollow plug cock or with one small cock and a valve; which of these is suitable for a high-pressure cylinder, and which for the cylinder of a condensing engine? Describe how the cup with only one small cock is used. What is now generally used instead of these? How has this change come about?

95. Does a cylinder escape valve, self-acting allow all the water to escape? If not, how much is left in the cylinder?

96. What is a "Steam Lubricator" (sometimes called an Impermeator)? Explain its action. To what part of the engine is it connected? Will throwing cold water over it make it work faster or slower? Describe the one used in your last steamer.

97. A common paddle wheel; of what is the centre made? Of what are the arms formed? What is the form of the bolts which attach the floats to the arms? How are the arms attached to the centres?

98. Why have some paddle wheels one or more cast-iron floats in each wheel? With what engines are these most required? At what part of the circumference are they placed?

99. Why are paddle wheel floats sometimes made of different breadths in the same wheel? With what description of engine is this most needed? Where are the broad floats placed and where are the narrow floats placed in the circumference of the wheel?

100. What difference is there between a radial paddle wheel and one with feathering floats? What is the object of feathering floats? Are all the eccentric rods attached in the same way, and are they all of the same form?

101. Whereabout is the centre of the eccentric of a paddle wheel with feathering floats placed? In that case are the feathering levers on the striking face or on the back of the float? When the paddle shaft has an outer bearing, how is the eccentric made?

102. Of what materials are the working surfaces of a paddle wheel with feathering floats? How are they lubricated?

103. What is a "Disconnecting Paddle Engine"? At what place is the disconnecting effected? How is it accomplished? In which of the cranks of a disconnecting engine are the crank pins fixed?

104. Is link motion valve gear or the loose eccentric generally used for disconnecting paddle engines? For what steamers are disconnecting paddle engines frequently employed?

105. What are expansion joints? Where are they necessary? What attention do they require? Of what should the working surfaces be made?

106. What omission in the construction of expansion joints may lead to a serious accident when steam is first applied? How is this prevented in the construction of a steam trunnion pipe for an oscillating engine?

107. Describe an oil cup with a syphon worsted. How is the worsted arranged? How is it cleaned? How far down the tube does it extend?

108. Describe a thrust bearing: which of the surfaces wears? Why is there sometimes a number of oil tubes or one thrust bearing?

109. What parts of a screw shaft are generally covered with brass? Why is this necessary? About what thickness is the brass?

110. What is the stern tube or screw shaft pipe? Why is a pipe of such a length required? Of what is it made? How is it fixed at each end?

111. What is a lignum vitæ bearing? How is the wood fitted? Where is such a bearing generally used?

112. How is a screw propeller fixed on the shaft? What means are used to prevent its getting loose at sea?

113. Where are sluice valves placed? What large sluice valve is there in almost all screw steamers? From what position should this valve be worked? Why so? What attention should it receive?

114. With a condensing engine what valves or cocks are on the skin of the ship in the engine-room and in the stokehold?

115. What are the necessary fittings of a marine boiler?

116. With a surface condensing engine what cocks or valves are opened some time before the engine is started so as to be ready for starting whenever the order is given?

117. What is a steam jacket? What cocks are on it? In what engines are jackets most generally used? Do they require to be felted?

118. What parts of an engine or its fittings should be felted or otherwise protected from radiation?

119. What are the small cylinders sometimes fitted on the slide valve casing cover of vertical engines? Explain their action. To what are they connected by a pipe? Why?

120. Name the principal pipes in connection with the engines and boilers of a steamer, and state to what the ends of these pipes are connected?

121. Through what cocks or valves, pipes and chambers does the water pass on its way from the sea inlet rose plate to the water space of the boiler, with a jet condenser?

122. Through what cocks or valves, pipes and chambers does the circulating water of a surface condenser pass?

123. Through what cocks or valves, pipes and chambers does the steam pass from the boiler until it is in the form of water in the hot well?

124. Name the pieces of the engine through which the pressure of the steam is transmitted from the piston to the screw propeller. Name them in the order in which they act.

125. What is an air vessel? How does it act? At what parts of an engine or of its fittings are air vessels generally applied?

126. What is the construction of a mudbox? Where should mudboxes be placed? Why are they necessary? How should the space be divided by the rose plate, and why?

127. What is a trunk engine? Why has it fallen into disuse?

128. What is an oscillating engine? For what steamers are oscillating engines generally adopted? Why? How is the steam conveyed to and from the slide valve casing?

129. Of what parts does the valve motion gear of an oscillating engine consist?

130. For what have geared engines sometimes been used? Of what were the cogs of the large wheel made?

131. At what part of a screw steamer is the pressure that propels it applied to the hull?

132. At what part of a paddle steamer is the pressure that propels it applied to the hull?

133. About how much fuel per indicated horse-power per hour is required by modern steam engines, common, compound, and triple expansion?

134. What is the explanation of the economy of the surface condenser?

135. What is the construction of a surface condenser? Of what are its tubes made? How are they fixed? How are they kept tight? What is done with a split tube?

136. Where do surface condensers foul? How are they cleaned?

137. What non-conducting substances are employed to prevent radiation, and how are they applied?

138. In the construction of smoke-box doors and of dry uptakes, what provision is made to lessen the amount of radiation?

139. How can the formation of excessive smoke be prevented? Describe smoke preventing apparatus.

140. What is meant by "circulation" in a boiler, and what are the results of defective circulation?

141. What means are sometimes adopted to improve the circulation in a boiler?

142. By what arrangement is the circulation promoted in a "hay-stack" boiler?

143. Describe a ship's side air-pump discharge valve. In what respects does it sometimes differ from a common stop-valve, and what attention does it require?

144. What is the construction of a feed escape valve, to what is its discharge connected, and how is its loading regulated? Where should the escaping water flow?

145. When there is no feed escape valve, what is the arrangement of the feed valves or cocks?

146. What is the measure of a horse-power? How is indicated horse-power ascertained?

147. Has "nominal horse-power" a fixed meaning? What is the use of this expression? What is generally taken as the measure of one horse-power nominal?

148. What is "back pressure" in a cylinder? About how much is it in each of the cylinders in your last steamer? Is excessive cushioning ever a trouble under certain conditions in modern engines? Say, when and why, and in which cylinder this occurs.

149. What is meant by "speed of piston"? About how much is the speed of piston in modern marine engines?

150. What is "atmospheric pressure"? What is its average amount? What instrument tells this amount?

151. What is "gross pressure" or "absolute pressure"? What pressure is it that is shown by the steam gauge?

152. What is meant by "cutting off" steam? How is it done? What part of the valve regulates the cut off?

153. What is a piston slide valve? Describe its construction. Why are they frequently employed in place of the common slide valve? Have they any disadvantages compared with a common slide valve? If so, name them.

154. What fixes the time of closing the exhaust? After the exhaust is closed and before the port opens for steam, what becoms of the steam that is in the cylinder?

155. What is the "lead" of the valve? What is its object? About that amount is it?

156. What is the "cover" or "lap" of the valve? What is its object? About what proportion of the stroke of the valve is it made?

157. What is the "exhaust cover" of a slide valve? What is its effect upon cushioning and upon exhaust?

158. What is "minus cover" or "minus lap" on the exhaust? What is its effect upon the exhaust and upon cushioning?

159. What is "cushioning" or "compression" in a steam cylinder? How is it affected by the amount of cover or of minus cover there may be upon the exhaust? How is it affected by the exhaust pressure?

160. What is "mean effective pressure"? How is its amount ascertained?

161. What is a dial vacuum gauge? What is its construction? For what is it used? About what amount should it show when the engine is working all right? What effect have the variations it indicates on the performance of the engine?

162. Does the vacuum gauge enable you to tell what pressure there is in the condenser, or must you have recourse also to the barometer to arrive at that? How would you ascertain the actual amount of back pressure there is in the condenser?

163. What is a barometer? What is its construction? Is a barometer sometimes used instead of a vacuum gauge? In what respect does the weather barometer differ from the vacuum gauge barometer?

164. The common vacuum gauge and the common steam gauge, in which of them are the graduations marked from atmospheric pressure? Does either of them tell what is the true actual pressure in the boiler or in the condenser?

165. Do steam and vacuum gauges vary with the variations of the weather barometer? When the weather barometer varies from 29 to 31 how much will the vacuum gauge vary and how will that affect the working of the engine? Why?

166. Vacuum is generally stated as so many inches. What is meant by, say, 20 inches vacuum? What does that tell us about the absolute pressure of the vapour then in the condenser?

167. From what depth will a pump draw water? Is there any limit? Why?

168. What is vacuum? Can vacuum move a piston? When the temperature of the water in the condenser is 212° Fahrenheit, what is the greatest degree of vacuum there can then be in the condenser?

169. What is a thermometer? What is its construction? What is the property of matter that is the principle of its construction? What temperatures are regularly noted by careful Engineers?

170. What is the temperature of (1) melting ice, (2) boiling water, (3) steam about 60 lbs. pressure by the steam gauge, (4) steam about 100 lbs., (5) steam about 150 lbs., (6) smoke in the funnel, (7) water in the hot well?

171. What is meant by the "conduction" of heat? Give examples of it in the boiler and in the engine,

172. What is meant by the "convection" of heat? Give examples of it in the boiler and in the engine.

173. What is meant by "radiation" of heat? Give examples of it in the boiler and in the engine.

174. Which is convection, which is radiation, and which is conduction in the following cases:—(1) Heat from the glowing fuel to the furnace crown? (2) Heat passing from one side of the furnace crown plate to the other? (3) Heat passing from the steam pipes in the engine-room? The heat of evaporation?

175. What are the effective heating surfaces of a marine boiler?

176. What parts of a marine engine are exposed to danger when the temperature is below freezing point?

177. What precautions are necessary in cold climates when the temperature is below freezing point?

178. State as many ways as you can by which a boiler might not get its full feed. A boiler, or one of a set of boilers, gets short of water although the feed valve is open its proper amount; to what causes might this be due?

179. Of what are furnace bars generally made? About what thickness are they at the top? About what space is between them.

180. About how many tons of steam coal will be burnt per day in four furnaces, each 3' 0" wide, and of about the usual length? On what grounds do you say so?

181. About how many tons of steam coal will be burnt per day with a good triple expansion engine, surface condensers, the low pressure cylinder 40 inches diameter, doing average work? On what grounds do you say so?

182. A pair of inverted cylinder direct acting engines, there is a liner half an inch thick between the ahead eccentric rod and the eccentric strap, in overhauling the engine this place is lost and forgotton; what difference will its omission make in the working of the engine, on the admission, on the cut off, and on the exhaust of the steam? Which will take place earlier and which later, distinguishing between the up stroke and the down stroke?

183. In a pair of inverted cylinder direct acting engines driving a right-hand screw, on which of the crosshead guide bars is the pressure greatest in the up stroke, and on which in the down stroke?

184. A screw propeller is getting loose, it has a little play on the shaft, sideways on the key or feather; how will this show in the engine room?

185. How would you prove whether the centre line of the trunnions of an oscilating cylinder be fair with the centre line of the main shaft?

186. How can the fairness of a line of screw shafting be tested without lifting the shafts?

187. Where are steel forgings generally used in marine engines?

188. What is the composition of nickel-steel? Where is it sometimes used in engines and boilers?

189. How is forced draught generated on board ship and supplied to boiler-furnaces? Is the air heated before delivery? If so, how?

190. What is "induced" draughts? Compare the merits of "forced" and of "induced" draught.

191. How is the intensity of forced or induced draught measured? What is the usual pressure employed in the mercantile marine?

192. An explosive gas is liberated from bunker coal. Usually in well ventilated bunkers this gas escapes into the atmosphere without doing harm. In ill-ventilated bunkers the gas after mixing with a certain proportion of common air has been known to explode when a naked light has been brought into contact with it. What is the composition of the gas? Where is it found, in bunkers, pockets and coal shoots? How may it be got rid of as soon as it evolves from the coal? How many cubic feet of air to one of the gas forms a violent explosive mixture?

193. A lighted lamp or candle has sometimes been lowered into an apparently empty paraffin tank and produced an explosion resulting in injury to the person holding the light. What did the tank probably contain, and what produced the explosion?

194. In vessels carrying coal cargoes it has been observed that, generally speaking, the gas which escapes from the body of the coal is found more abundantly at the forward end of the hold than at the after end. Why should this be so?

195. In recently opened ballast tanks, double-bottoms and boilers, a light lowered into either has sometimes been extinguished. What would, in all probability, cause this?

196. In double-bottom steamers where does the bilge water lie, and where are the roses of the bilge pipes fitted?

197. What is the advantage of a large rose over a small one?

198. Why, especially in vessels carrying cargoes liable to shift, should engine bilge suctions be fitted to both wings of the bilge?

199. In a heavily listed vessel, why is it difficult to keep steam?

200. What means are sometimes provided for temporarily coupling together the broken parts of, say, a tunnel-shaft? Describe the fitting.

201. Does the pressure on the thrust-collars vary with the horse-power or with the speed of the ship, or how?

202. If the holding-down bolts of a thrust-bearing should become slack, what effect would it have upon the working of the engines?

203. In an engine with three cranks, which of the three is subject to the greatest torsional stress (1) in going ahead, (2) in going astern?

204. Is it usual to make the crank shaft of a triple or quadruple expansion engine in one piece? And is the diameter of the shaft uniform from end to end? Give your reasons for the practice which obtains.

205. In a "built" crank shaft how are the webs rigidly secured to the pins and to the body of shaft?

206. There are various descriptions of donkey engines in use on board ship for pumping purposes. Some pumps are fitted with escape-valves, some or not. Why should this be?

207. Explain the function of an air vessel fitted to a feed pump. Make rough hand sketches of (1) a satisfactory vessel, (2) an unsatisfactory vessel, where, say, the air spring has been destroyed by carelessness, or has never been properly provided.

208. Should cocks or escape valves be fitted to air-vessels? Why, or why not?

209. Where, by preference, should the escape valve of a feed pump be placed? Why?

210. Scum cocks are sometimes fitted to boiler-shells at a height convenient for Engineers to manipulate when standing in the stokehold; the scum pipes in such cases are laid upward, inside the boiler, to a little above the combustion chamber tops. What danger may arise from this arrangement?

211. Cocks for testing the water level of boilers are sometimes fitted within reach of the engineer who is standing in the stokehold. These may have internal pipes leading upward and terminating at various levels. Under what circumstances may these become misleading?

212. Why should the pipe which leads from the bottom of the water-gauge column to the bottom of the boiler-front, or back, be covered with non-conducting material? Why also should it never have lengthy horizontal bends?

213. In your own experience, how frequently is this pipe removed and cleared?

214. Why, even with the best of water-gauges, is it advisable occasionally to use the drain-cock.

215. Steam loops have sometimes been inadvertently made in the length of piping leading from the top of the water-gauge column to the top of the boiler. Roughly sketch such a loop and explain the danger arising from its existence.

216. Describe your method of thoroughly testing the water-gauge system to satisfy yourself that all the cocks and pipes are clear. Your answer can be written on a supplementary sheet of foolscap, which the Examiner will hand you. Hand sketches, mere lines indicating pipes, and circles indicating cocks, should be made. Identify the cocks and pipes by letters or numerals.

217. Describe the construction of a water-tube boiler, mentioning the type selected.

218. In a water-tube boiler how is an economiser fitted, and what is its duty?

219. How is the water-gauge fitted in a water-tube boiler? Are glass-gauges used?

220. The pressure of the steam in water-tube boilers is sometimes greater than at the engines. Why is this, and what percentage above the engine pressure does it amount to? How is this difference of pressure maintained?

221. Describe any automatic method of feeding water-tube boilers. Of what material are the tubes made?

222. Describe the construction of any steam turbine you are acquainted with, which is used on board ship. How is the expansion of steam effected? How many propeller shafts are employed, and how many propellers?

223. Is the same power in a steam turbine available to go astern as to go ahead?

224. Of what material are the propellers made in a steam turbine?

225. How many pounds of coal per indicated horse-power per hour are burnt with turbine engines? Name the type of boiler in use.

226. Describe the construction of a feed-water-heater and give the name of its manufacturer.

227. To about what temperature is the feed-water raised by passing through a feed-heater?

228. What fittings are usually placed on a feed-heater? Why are they necessary?

229 Describe any well-known independent feed-pumps.

230. Are independent feed-pumps automatic in their action? Explain the action.

231. What advantage, if any, have independent feed-pumps over feed-pumps worked by the main engines?

232. Describe the construction of a feed-filter, enumerating its valves and cocks.

233. How can the filter be cleaned? What ingredients are generally removed when cleaning takes place?

234. What is the intercepting material in a filter made of? How is it fitted?

235. Describe an evaporator, and mention the type.

236. What fittings are necessary with evaporators?

237. How is the brine got rid of in an evaporator?

238. How may the evaporator coils be cleaned?

239. What is a dynamo? Describe its various parts. For what is it used?

240. In what respect does an electric motor differ from a dynamo? Where are electric motors sometimes used on board ship?

241. Describe a system of electric lighting employed on board ship.

242. How is the position of a fault in the electric circuit discovered?

243. What is "sparking" and may it under some circumstances (naming them) be a danger?

244. What is "short-circuiting," and to what evil may it give rise?

245. What means are employed to prevent any part of the circuit becoming overheated?

246. Describe the features of an arc-lamp.

247. Describe the construction of a glow-lamp.

248. What is the usual candle-power of the small glow-lamps in general use on board ship?

249. Define the following terms:—Ampère, volt, ohm, watt. What is the measure of an electrical horse-power?

250. Explain the uses of switches, brushes, commutators, cut-outs, field-magnets, armatures and resistance-coils.

251. Why is it desirable to fit a dynamo in a cool place on board ship?

252. What undesirable effect will ultimately occur to an electric wire whose sectional area is constantly diminishing, say, through corrosion?

253. What danger might arise from leading electric wires through coal bunkers?

254. Is it better to lead electric wires above or below side-scuttles? Why?

255. What instruments are used on board ship to ascertain the strength of an electric current?

256. In vessels fitted with hydraulic cranes, etc., where do they obtain their power? How is the hydraulic pressure kept at a relatively constant amount?

257. Describe any steam-steering gear you are acquainted with.

258. When the helm is put hard over and the ship is going full speed ahead, what prevents the rudder returning to the amidship position?

259. In the case of a steamship under way, does the officer or man manipulating the steam-steering wheel overcome any resistance exerted by the rudder ?

260. Explain clearly what is being done by a helmsman manipulating the wheel of a steam-steering engine.

261. Is there any difference between the amount of horse-power required to put a helm hard over, in a given time, when the vessel is going full speed ahead, and when she is going full speed astern? This question refers to the case of a steamer fitted with one rudder only, and demands a more complete answer than merely "yes" or "no."

262. What precautions should be taken before removing a man-hole-door of a steam-boiler? In the absence of such precautions, what casualties might occur?

263. Describe the chief features of the engine-governor fitted to a steamer you have served in. Describe its action, give the maker's name and name of ship.

264. Name the principal parts of internal combustion engines, and briefly state their functions.

265. What kind of oil is usually employed in motor-engines? What is its flash-point? What is its specific gravity? What is its calorific power? What precautions are taken in its storage to guard the public against the casualty by fire or explosion?

266. How many cylinders are generally used in motor-engines? What kind of pistons are usually fitted? How frequently (measured in revolutions) is explosion per cylinder effected? How is explosion in the cylinder carried out?

267. Describe how an oil-motor is started. If starting proves difficult, where would you chiefly look for defects? How is piston speed modified? How is the speed of vessel varied? How is reversing effected?

268. Before examining an oil-motor with a naked light, what steps should be taken for safety's sake?

269. How frequently should an internal combustion engine be opened up for examination, cleaned, and its parts re-adjusted? What difficulty arises when the internal parts become foul with carbonized oil?

NOTE.—Questions should be read in the light of their context. Thus the "sparking" referred to in question 243 relates to the sparking in an electric lighting circuit on board ship. (See question 241.)

APPENDIX C.

[See RULE 25(d)].

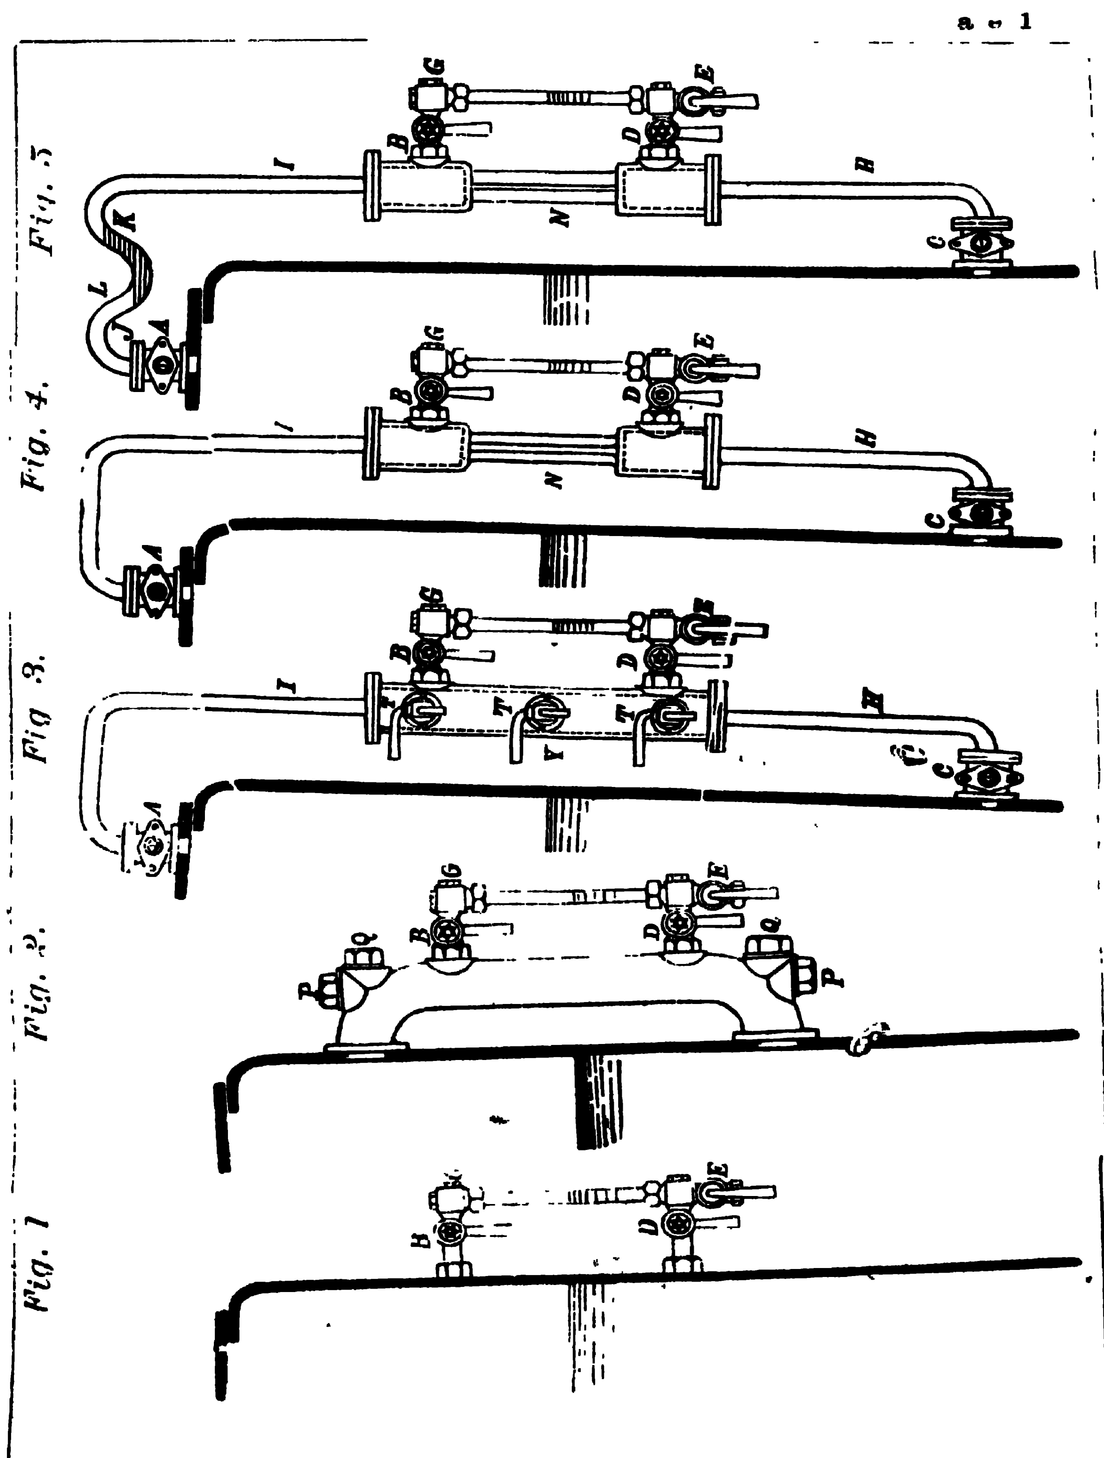
Reading the Water-Gauges.

(Engineers and Engine-drivers.)

Notwithstanding that the reading of the water-gauge is made a special feature in the examination of Engineers, many boiler casualties result from the Engineer of the watch either not understanding the construction of the water-gauge fittings or not satisfying himself by actual trial that the cocks, pipes, etc., are clear.



In one case, two furnace crowns came down in a steamer that was just starting on a voyage. The Engineers were satisfied that there was plenty of water in the boiler because the water-gauge showed full glass, and they called the attention of the Surveyor to this fact as being conclusive evidence that the casualty could not have resulted from shortness of water. On examination of the fittings, however, it was found that the cock between the boiler and the steam pipe leading to the gauge was shut, having been carelessly left in that position on the previous day when the mountings were overhauled for survey. Directly the cock was opened the water disappeared from the gauge glass, and the Second Engineer admitted that he had blown down the boiler in order to lower the water level, as the glass was full.

Many steamers have had their furnaces brought down at sea in a similar manner to the above through what the Engineers of the watch have called "false water in the glass," and which on examination has been found to result from the top communication being choked.

These casualties resulted from what, to say the least, was bad management, not false water.

Unless a candidate under examination is able to prove that he understands how to verify the indications of the water-gauge, he should not be passed in practical knowledge and, as failure in practical knowledge involves the candidate going to sea for another three months before being eligible for re-examination, the Examiner should explain to such candidate his error, after failing him, in order to prevent further casualties resulting from his want of knowledge on this subject.

The sketches, Figures 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5, Plate I, represent the usual methods of attaching water-gauge mountings to marine boilers. The important features in each gauge and the method of verifying its indications are dealt with separately in the following remarks:—

In this case the water-gauge cocks are attached direct to the boiler, and the accuracy of the gauge when the boiler is under steam can be tested as follows:—

First.—Let B remain open, then close cock D and open cock E, and if steam issues it proves that cock B and the passage through the top fitting and gauge glass are clear. If no steam or water issues, either cock B or the passage through the top fitting and gauge glass is choked and the gauge cannot act properly until the obstruction is removed.

Second.—Close cock B and open D and E, and if water issues, cock D is clear. If no water or steam issues, either cock D or the passage from the boiler through the lower fitting is choked and must be cleared before the gauge can act properly.

REFERRING TO FIGURE 2 ONLY.

In this case the gauge cocks are attached to a bent pipe of comparatively large diameter (at least 3 inches in the bore), the upper end of which communicates with the steam space, and the lower end with the water space of the boiler. Owing to the bore of the pipe being large it is not liable to become choked or stopped under the ordinary conditions of working. The water-gauge is, therefore, in practically the same condition as if it were attached direct to the boiler, as in Figure 1. This gauge, when at work, is tested in precisely the same manner as the one shown in Figure 1.

Screw plugs are inserted at P.P. and Q.Q., by the removal of which the apertures in the pipe can be cleared, if necessary, by the insertion of a wire or rod when steam is down.

REFERRING TO FIGURE 3 ONLY.

In this gauge there is an open communication from A to C through the column Y, and in order to "blow through the glass" it is only necessary to shut cocks D and B alternately keeping E open. But to "blow through the water-gauge," including the pipes H and I, it is necessary, after blowing through the glass as described above, to shut A and C alternately, at the same time keeping B, D and E open for such time as will ensure the complete discharge of the contents of the gauge and its connections. When B, D and C are clear and A choked the steam lodging in the glass and in the p[illegible] leading from column Y to A becomes condensed and the water flowing through C to take its place rises in column Y and in the glass to a level above that of the water in the boiler. In other words, the gauge shows a false level. If now E be opened and water is blown out, then on E being again closed the water in the gauge will rise higher than before and be still further misleading. On the other hand, when B, D and A are clear and C choked, the water, if any, in the glass is trapped and no longer rises and falls with the water in the boiler or with the motion of the vessel; it, however, slowly rises in the glass owing to the condensation of the steam in the upper part of the gauge until such time as E is opened when the whole of the water in the glass is blown out, and on E being closed the glass does not show any water notwithstanding that the water in the boiler may be at the proper level. When the test cocks T T T are attached to column Y, as shown in Figure 3, they cease to be reliable when either cock A or C or the pipe in connection therewith is choked, or nearly choked.

REFERRING TO FIGURE 4 ONLY.

Sometimes the water-gauge fittings are arranged as shown in Figures 4 and 5, with no passage up the column, the central portion (N) of the column, being simply a pillar or connecting piece of any convenient section between the upper and lower portions to which the cocks B and D are attached.

By this arrangement double communications are obviated and there is no need for what is known as "double shut off" in testing the accuracy of the gauge. When, however, the gauges are constructed in this manner the cocks B and D are unreliable as test cocks in the event of there being no glass in the gauge. This feature should be carefully noted. Moreover, when in working condition the reduction of pressure in the glass which arises when E is opened causes the water in pipe H to rise above its normal level. This objectionable feature should also be noted.

REFERRING TO FIGURE 5 ONLY.

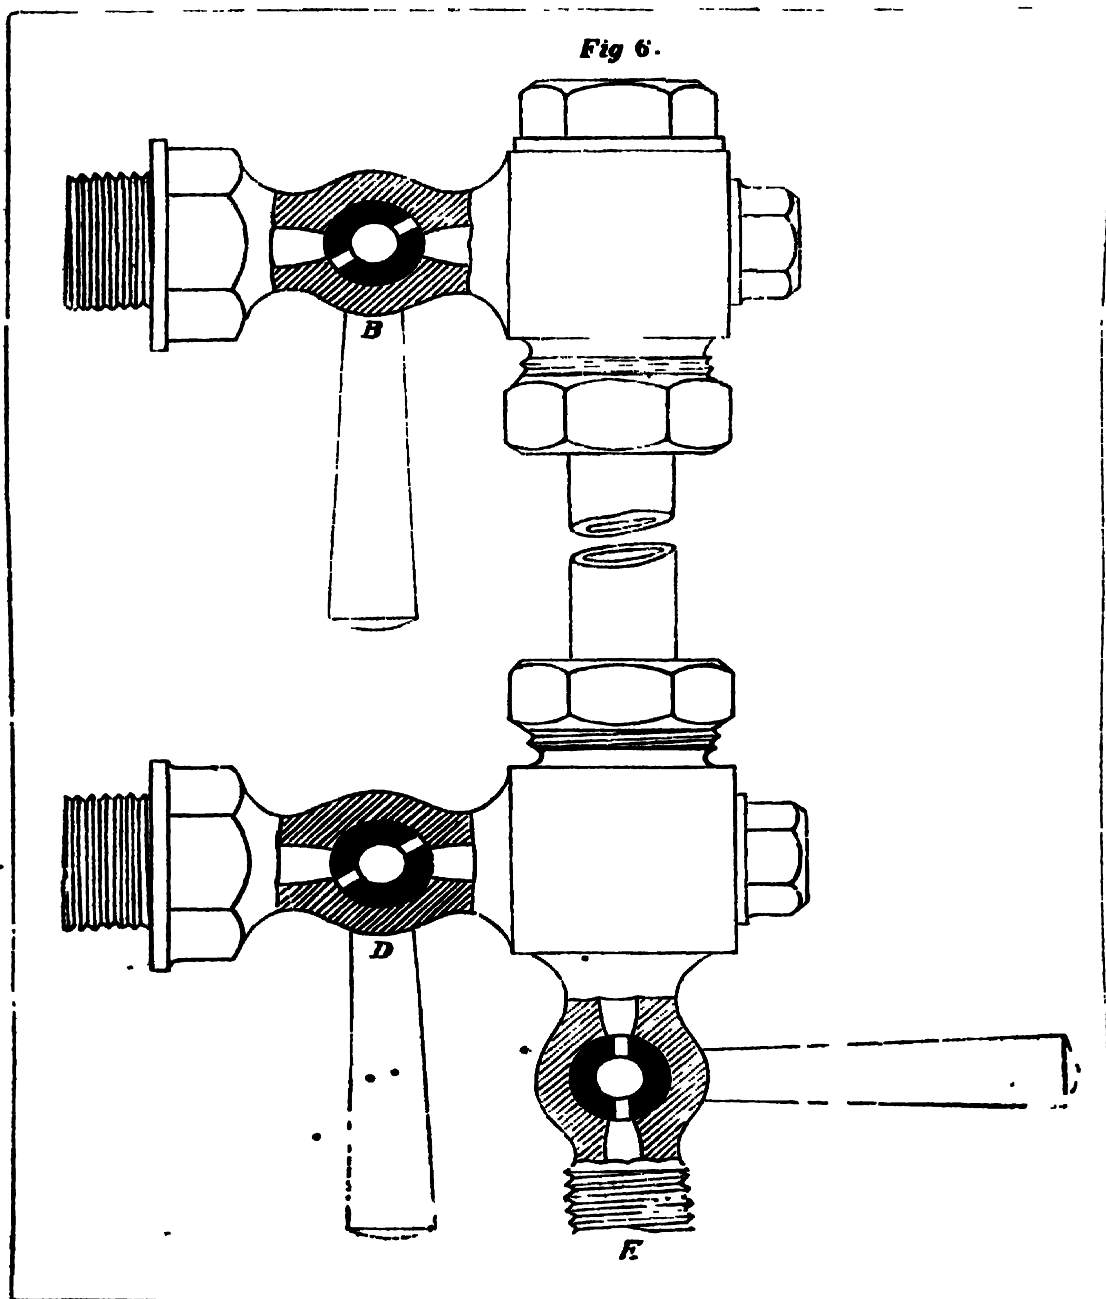
Sometimes there is a bend, L, in the steam pipe. I, leading from cock A to cock B. This has occasionally escaped observation when new boilers have been fitted on board ship. In most cases this bend arises from the pipe being led in an abnormal direction to escape other pipes, beams or fittings near the smoke-box. With such a bend the condensed steam collects in the pipe and falls to the bottom of the bend, and in time it completely fills the pipe from J to K. The steam from K down to the level of the water in the glass is thereby trapped and, as condensation proceeds, leads to a reduction of pressure in the pipe below that of the boiler and an equivalent rise of the water in the bend and also in the gauge glass. When the vessel is quiescent the water in the gauge glass increases in height until cock E is opened or until the pressure in the boiler is so much in excess of that in the lower part of pipe I, as to cause the water in the bend to be blown into the gauge glass. In either case instantaneous change to water level in the glass ensues.

In the ordinary course of working the phenomenon described above is more or less modified by the presence of air in the upper part of the gauge and by the rise and fall of the water in the boiler and gauge glass arising from the rolling or pitching motions of the vessel.

OTHER SPECIAL POINTS TO BE NOTED.

When the cocks A and C are omitted, as in Figure 2, it is owing to the bore of the stand pipe being sufficiently large to enable it to be regarded as part of the boiler. Such pipes require, however, to be examined and cleared at intervals by passing a rod through the holes provided for the purpose at P.P. and Q.Q.

Cocks at A and C are not necessary for the testing of gauges arranged as shown in Figures 4 and 5. Examiners ought, however, to make sure that candidates are aware of the impossibility of testing the reliability of the indications of water-gauges arranged as in Figure 3 when the cocks A and C are absent and of the effect which the choking of cock A or C, or pipe H or I has on the indications of the test cocks T T T attached to column Y.



Probably more than half the steamers afloat are fitted with water-gauges as shown in Figures 3 and 4, and it is therefore specially important that Engineer candidates should thoroughly understand their construction, the principle on which they act, and the steps which must be taken to keep them in an efficient condition.

When fitting a gauge glass into its place it is specially important that it should not be placed so high as to prevent a clearing rod being inserted at G, Figures 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5. This defect, especially if it occurs in a water-gauge attached to a boiler subject to priming, permits a rapid accumulation of scum around the top of the glass and results in the choking of the orifice leading from cock B to the gauge glass in each of the figures.

When a gauge glass is too short or is placed either too high or too low in the fittings, it is also liable to become choked by the packing material being forced over its ends by the glands whilst being screwed up.

The use of unsuitable or insecure internal pipes in connection either with the ordinary glass gauge cocks of the description shown in Figure 1, or with test cocks which are jointed to the boiler itself should also be carefully guarded against.

Boiler casualties have resulted from the cocks B and D having the parts wrongly placed as shown in Figure 6, Plate 2. In one case of that kind, the Engineer in testing the water-gauge omitted to see that the passages in the cocks B and D were clear when the handles were in their proper working position. This defect could easily have been discovered if proper attention had been paid to the condition of the cocks. A defect of this nature may be due to faulty construction originally, or to the handle of the cock having been overstrained, and the neck twisted. Whether the passages in the plugs are fair and clear can, however, be verified in a few minutes. As an illustration, the water cock D, Figure 6, Plate II, can be verified by blowing through E with B shut and then moving the handle of D to one side until it is just closed, and then to the other side until it is again just closed; the proper working position of the handle is about equally distant from each of the above positions. The other cocks can be verified in the same manner.

Another serious casualty occurred through the handle of the cock A, Figure 3, having been twisted from its original position relatively to the orifice of the cock, resulting in the cock being shut when apparently open.

When a water-gauge, that is clear in all its parts, has been thoroughly blown through, the water in the glass rises above the level at which it formerly stood, immediately the drain cock E is closed, but if left undisturbed for a time it gradually falls to its former position. The amount of rise which occurs on these occasions depends chiefly on the temperature of the contents of the boiler and on the length of the pipes by which column Y is connected top and bottom to the boiler, but in cases where the gauge is of the description illustrated in Figures 3, 4 and 5, it amounts in high pressure boilers to about 4 inches, while the time occupied by the water in returning to its former level ranges from 30 to 40 minutes. The cause of this rise is twofold, namely, (a) the displacement of the comparatively cold water in pipe H by hotter, and proportionately lighter, water from the boiler, and (b) a slight condensation of the steam and a corresponding fractional reduction of pressure in pipe I. The cause of the gradual subsidence of the water in the glass to its former level is also of a dual character, namely, (a) the cooling of the water in pipe H, and (b) the diminution in the condensation of steam in pipe I owing to the collection therein of air released from the steam condensed.

These results will, however, be somewhat modified if the water in the boiler is of higher density than in pipe H, and this will nearly always be the case owing to the condensation of the steam in the glass and upper fittings of the water-gauge, causing the water in the lower part to be fresher than that in the boiler.

The Examiner should impress upon candidates the necessity for periodically blowing through the water-gauge on each boiler (no matter what the form may be) in a systematic and thorough manner, and, in cases where a boiler is fitted with two water-gauges, of keeping both in constant use; finally, he should further impress upon them the necessity for keeping the water-gauges well lighted, clean, and in all respects efficient.

APPENDIX D.

[See RULES 25 (n) AND 25(o).]

Examination in rough working drawing for an Engineer's Certificate of Competency.

1. The regulations in regard to the qualifications of a candidate for an Engineer's certificate of competency specify that—

He will be required to make an intelligible hand sketch, or a working drawing of some one or more of the principal parts of a steam-engine, and to mark in, without a copy, all the necessary dimensions in figures, so that the sketch or drawing could be worked from.

He must be able to state the general proportions borne by the principal parts of the machinery to each other.

2. In accordance with these clauses, a candidate for an Engineer's certificate is required to make a rough working drawing of the parts specified. An Engineer who has been some years in charge of marine engines and boilers ought to have familiarly in his mind the general construction of at least one set of engines and boilers, say, that set he was last with.

Fine drawing is not expected, and in the proportions of the parts a wide margin will be allowed; absurd dimensions will be failure in practical knowledge.

3. The drawing must, however, be practically a working drawing, giving a sufficient number of views to show the parts fully—sections, plans, or elevations—just as the candidate would require to be supplied to him if he had to make the parts represented to the design of another person.

4. A clear hand sketch showing the construction completely, and fully dimensioned, will be accepted if the candidate prefers this alternative.

5. A portion only of the parts specified may be accepted in place of the whole, if that portion is sufficient to show that the candidate has a good practical idea of the construction of the parts, and a fair notion of their general proportions or dimensions.

6. Candidates are cautioned not to put on paper what they have not fully considered, and deliberately intend to be understood, as evidence of what they know about the construction of any part required.

7. The statements given in by a candidate may be in themselves, apparently, of little importance, but, as sample material from which the extent of the candidate's knowledge of engines and boilers is to be inferred, every detail which is glaringly inconsistent with a sound knowledge of the use of the part, or in which an essential consideration has evidently been overlooked, is an important element in the description which the candidate is giving of his own qualifications.

8. The candidate is advised not to begin more than he can clearly finish in the time allowed. An important object in this part of the examination is to ascertain whether the candidate can be trusted to mark all necessary dimensions upon a sketch or a drawing. The test of this is, practically, the making of the part from the sketch without having to supply additional dimensions, and without measuring the drawing. To prove this ability the candidate must fully dimension the parts shown in his sketch or drawing, notwithstanding that the parts may be correctly drawn to scale. A drawing is fully dimensioned when no part of it is left to the option of the party who is to work to the drawing.

9. To prevent misunderstanding, however, when the candidate has been led into showing more of the details than he has time fully to finish, he should name, in the statement on the other side, the particular parts which he has fully dimensioned.

10. All dimensions should have lines and darts, to indicate distinctly the points between which the dimensions are given.

11. Beware of writing cross dimensions upon centre lines, or upon longitudinal dimension lines. This is not an order, but a recommendation.

12. The candidate is not expected to design anything; he has merely to sketch or draw something with which he is expected to be already familiar. At the same time he should call attention to any defect in the design of the article or apparatus. Omission to do so will imply want of practical knowledge.

13. Pencil in nothing after half-past 3; all the dimensions, the figures, and the darts must be inked in; employ the remaining time in examining the drawing and in inking in any figures which may have been before overlooked and in checking the dimensions.

14. Make sure that you will have sufficient room on the drawing sheet to show all the necessary views. You can have another sheet of drawing paper if necessary. All the paper used must be forwarded with the drawing.

No. 1502-IV.—The following Royal Proclamation is published for general information :—

BY THE KING.

A PROCLAMATION.

MAKING CERTAIN ADDITIONS TO AND AMENDMENTS IN THE LIST OF ARTICLES TO BE TREATED AS CONTRABAND OF WAR.

GEORGE R.I.

WHEREAS on the 14th day of October 1915, We did issue Our Royal Proclamation specifying the articles which it was Our intention to treat as contraband during the continuance of hostilities or until We did give further public notice, and

Whereas it is expedient to make certain further additions to and amendments in the said list :

NOW THEREFORE, We do hereby declare, by and with the advice of Our Privy Council that, during the continuance of the war or until We do give further public notice, the following articles will be treated as absolute contraband, in addition to those set out in Schedule I of Our Royal Proclamation aforementioned :—

Cork, including cork dust.
Bones in any form, whole or crushed, and bone ash.
Soap.
Vegetable fibres and yarns made therefrom.

And We do hereby further declare that as from this date the following amendments shall be made in Schedule I of Our Royal Proclamation aforementioned :—

In item 8, for "acetone" shall be substituted "acetones, and raw or finished materials usable for their preparation."

In item 9, for "phosphorus" shall be substituted "phosphorus and its compound."

In item 26 there shall be added after the word "parts" the words "and accessories."

In item 38 the more general term "lead" shall be substituted for the words "lead, pig, sheet, or pipe."

And We do hereby further declare that the following articles shall as from this date be treated as conditional contraband in addition to those set out in Schedule II of Our Royal Proclamation aforementioned :—

Casein.

Bladders, guts, casings, and sausage skins.

Given at Our Court at Buckingham Palace, this Twenty-seventh day of January, in the year of our Lord One thousand nine hundred and sixteen, and in the Sixth year of Our Reign.

GOD SAVE THE KING.

No. 1557-W.—In exercise of the powers conferred on him by sub-section (1) of section 8 of the Enemy Trading Act, 1915 (XIV of 1915), the Governor General in Council is pleased to appoint the undermentioned officers to act as Custodians for the purpose of receiving, holding and dealing with such money as may be paid to them in pursuance of the said Act, in respect of the territories specified against them.

Mr. J. G. Drummond, I.C.S.	... For the Bengal Presidency.
Official Trustee, Madras	... For the Madras Presidency.

GEOLOGY AND MINERALS.

The 26th February 1916.

No. 641-132.—The following draft of amendments which it is proposed to make, in exercise of the powers conferred by section 20 of the Indian Mines Act, 1901 (VIII of 1901), in the rules issued with Notification No. 11793-103 (Geology and Minerals), dated the 30th December 1908, is published, as required by the same section, for the information of persons concerned. Notice is hereby given that the draft will be taken into consideration by the Governor-General in Council on or after the 26th May 1916.

Any objection or suggestion which may be received from any person with respect to the draft before the date fixed aforesaid will be considered by the Governor-General in Council :—

Draft amendments.

For Rule I substitute the following, namely :—

Annual returns.

Forms I, II, III, IV, V and VI, respectively, for Coal, Mica and mines other than Coal or Mica in the Schedule hereto annexed shall be [1] filled up in duplicate by the agent, or if there is no agent, by the owner or manager of a Coal, Mica or other Mine, as the case may be, and one copy of each shall be forwarded to the Chief Inspector of Mines and the other to the District Magistrate not later than the 21st January [2] in each year.

Rule 8. For the words "Form V" substitute the words "Form VII".

For the Schedule appended to the Rules the following shall be substituted, namely :—

(1) Under Section 22 (2) (b) of the Indian Mines Act, failure to forward correct returns to the Chief Inspector of Mines not later than the 21st January in each year will render the agent, owner or manager liable, on conviction, to a penalty which may extend to Rs. 500.

(2) It will greatly facilitate the preparation of the statistics if the returns are despatched as soon as possible after the close of the year.

Orders by the Governor of Bengal in Council.

MUNICIPAL AND LOCAL.

NOTIFICATIONS.

24-Parganas.

No. 763M.—The 25th February 1916.—In exercise of the power conferred by section 308 of the Bengal Municipal Act (B. C. Act III of 1884), the Governor in Council sanctions the following plan for lighting a portion of the Cossipore-Chitpur Municipality with gas :—

Plan.

1. The portion of the Municipality which it is proposed to light with gas is defined below :—

North—By a line running along the northern drain of Kali Charan Ghosh Road to its junction with Ram Krishna Ghosh Road,

East—By a line running one hundred feet to the east of the following roads :—

(a) Portion of Kali Charan Ghosh Road from its junction with Ram Krishna Ghosh Road to its junction with South Sinthee Road ; and

(b) Portion of south Sinthee Road from its junction with Kali Charan Ghosh Road to its junction with Dum-Dum junction station road and Dum-Dum junction station road,

South—By a line one hundred feet to the north of the Dum-Dum Road, West—By a line one hundred feet to the east of the Barrackpore Trunk Road.

2. Ninety-eight gas lamps will be installed within this portion of the Cossipore-Chitpur Municipality and the Commissioners have entered into an agreement with the Oriental Gas Company, Limited, on account of the maintenance of these lamps at the rate of Rs. 43 for each lamp a year, or at a total annual cost of Rs. 4,214 per annum.

3. The Municipal Commissioners propose to meet the charge to be incurred on account of lighting the aforesaid area by imposing an annual lighting rate of 3 per cent. on the annual value of holdings situated within the area to be lighted as defined in paragraph 1 of this notification and from the annual surplus from the existing lighting rate in the said Municipality. The income to be derived from the lighting-tax of the aforesaid area is estimated to be Rs. 731 a year.

No. 775M.—The 28th February 1916.—In exercise of the power conferred by section 221 of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884 (Bengal Act III of 1884), and upon the application of the Commissioners of the Barasat Municipality, in the district of the 24-Parganas, made in pursuance of a resolution passed at a meeting specially convened to consider the question, the Governor in Council is pleased to extend all the provisions of Part IX of that Act to the areas of the said municipality the boundaries of which are specified below:—

MARINE DEPARTMENT.

The 4th March 1916

No. 36Marine.—The following Notification of the Government of India is republished for general information.

F. A. A. COWLEY,
Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

MERCHANT SHIPPING.

Delhi, the 15th January 1916.

No. 264—44-C.—In exercise of the powers conferred by section 53 of the Native Passenger Ships Act, 1887 (X of 1887), the Governor General in Council is pleased to direct that the following amendments shall be made in the rules published with the Notification of the Government of India in the Finance and Commerce Department, No. 1354, dated the 14th March 1889:—

1. For rule II (1) of the said rules, the following shall be substituted, namely:—

"II. (1) (a) Every ship which is engaged on a long voyage and which carries one hundred or more persons (including crew and passengers) shall, if she carry a Surgeon, have on board a supply of medicines and surgical appliances as specified in Schedule A annexed to these rules.

(b) Every ship which is engaged on a short voyage and which is licensed to carry 20 saloon and 800 other passengers or more shall, if she carry a Surgeon, have on board a supply of medicines and surgical appliances as specified in the said Schedule A.

(c) The supply of medicines and surgical appliances required to be on board a ship by clause (a) or clause (b), shall be kept in a surgery which shall have a superficial floor area of not less than 8 feet by 6 feet and shall be fitted with suitable racks and lockers, a table and a sink and an adequate water-supply.

(d) Every ship which is engaged on a long voyage, other than a ship referred to in clause (a), and every ship which is engaged on a short voyage other than a ship referred to in clause (b), shall carry a supply of medicines and surgical appliances, as specified in Schedule B annexed to these rules.

(e) The medical stores and surgical appliances kept on board every ship shall be inspected once at least in every year and more than 6 months from the date of the last inspection by the Port Health Officer, who shall, if he is satisfied that the provisions of these rules have been complied with, grant a certificate of correctness to the master of the ship."

2. After rule II (2) of the said rules the following shall be inserted, namely:—

"II. (3) The medical officer (if any) of every ship shall keep regularly from day to day throughout a voyage the following records in connection with his duties and shall, on arrival at every port, produce the same before the Port Health Officer namely:—

(i) a medical diary of the principal events of the voyage, briefly and accurately recording all facts in connection with the medical history of the crew and the passengers including a record of any advice he may give to the master and of compliance with or neglect of such advice;

(ii) an Admission and Discharge book of every case brought under medical treatment in Form No. 1 in Schedule C, annexed to these rules; and (iii) a Register of deaths in Form No. II in the said Schedule C.

If the medical officer omits to keep the records as aforesaid or to produce the same before the Port Health Officer on arrival at every port he shall be punished with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees."

3. For rule IV (i) of the said rules the following shall be substituted, namely :—

"IV. (1) Every ship shall be fitted with privy accommodation of at least 3 seats in the latrine and 2 stalls in the urinal for every 100 passengers or fraction thereof. Separate privy accommodation on the same scale shall also be provided for the crew. All [illegible] privy [illegible] from public view, shall be readily accessible and available at [illegible], and, if not of the European style, shall consist of troughs of enamel ware, ferro concrete or other similar impermeable material and shall be provided with a suitable flushing arrangement."

(c) All male candidates must forward to the undersigned an examination fee of Rs. 5, at least one week before the commencement of examination; a fresh fee must be paid on each occasion that the candidate enters for the examination; but a candidate, who, after payment of the fee, is unable, through illness, to attend the examination, will be allowed, on producing a satisfactory medical certificate to that effect, to attend the next examination without payment of a fresh fee.

NOTE.—Women candidates are examined free [illegible]

(d) The students of the compounder class of the Medical Schools at the end of the one year of study and the students of the Licentiate class of these schools, on the completion of their second year's course, will be allowed to appear at an optional examination, to be conducted by the Committee of Examiners notified above—in minor bandaging, preparation of antiseptic lotions and dressings, sterilization of dressings and instruments, and in all the minor duties of hospital work. No additional fee shall be charged for this optional examination.

This examination is also open to persons qualified for admission to the examination prescribed under the Rules for the grant of certificates to compounders, on production of a certificate that they have received instruction in a hospital or dispensary recognised by Government in minor bandaging, preparation of antiseptic lotions and dressings, sterilization of dressings and instruments, and in all the minor duties of hospital work. Such persons shall be required to pay a fee of Rs. 2-8 for this examination. But no fee will be required from a candidate who appears at the combined Compounders' and Dressership Examination and who has paid the fee of Rs. 5 prescribed in para. (c).

IRRIGATION DEPARTMENT.

The 22nd February 1916.

No. 4.—Notification.—The following draft of rules which, in exercise of the powers conferred by section 90 of the Bengal Embankment Act, 1882 (Bengal Act II of 1882), and in supersession of Notification No. 108, dated the 26th February 1884 (published at pages 399-400 of the Calcutta Gazette of the 27th idem), as amended by Notification No. 11, dated the 16th November 1908, the Governor in Council intends to make for carrying out the provisions of the said Act, is published for the information of persons likely to be affected thereby.

II. The draft will be taken into consideration on or after the 25th March 1916, and any objection or suggestion which may be received by the undersigned before that date will be duly considered.

Draft Rules.

1. All estimates for works or repairs or for maintenance of public embankments which are prepared under section 7 or section 47 of the Bengal Embankment Act, 1882 (Bengal Act II of 1882), shall include the estimated cost of all petty establishment employed for watching or guarding embankments and for working sluices.

2. (1) Such estimates shall also include such charges for directing and supervising establishment and for the use of tools and plant as may be directed by the Governor in Council from time to time.

(2) The said charges shall not exceed in all 26 per cent. on the estimated outlay on the works or repairs, exclusive of charges for the acquisition of land or for petty establishment. The charge for supervising establishment and tools and plant shall ordinarily be a consolidated one of 10 per cent. on the outlay on the works (excluding land and petty establishment), but if in any particular case it is desired to make a higher charge or to reduce or remit the charge altogether, a reference must be made to Government at the time when the estimate is prepared.

3. The Collector shall, previous to submitting a report to the Commissioner under section 11, 19 or 43 of the Act, obtain the written opinion of the Superintending Engineer, which shall form part of the record of proceedings in the case.

No notices regarding new works, the estimated cost of which exceeds Rs. 2,500, shall be published under section 9 of the Act, until the estimates, specifications and plans have received the approval of the Chief Engineer.

4. No estimate referred to in section 49 of the Act shall be transmitted to the Collector, until it has been countersigned by the Superintending Engineer, who shall be responsible that the repairs proposed to be executed are necessary, that it is proposed to execute them in the proper manner and that the rates entered in the estimate are fair and reasonable.

5. The Superintending Engineer shall, on the requisition of the Collector, furnish a written opinion on any work which it is proposed to execute under the Act, causing all necessary surveys to be made.

6. Where the Collector, under the last preceding rule, requires surveys to be made, he shall either cause the estimated cost of the same to be paid to the Engineer, or procure sanction, under the ordinary rules for the disbursement of public money, to the proposed expenditure. Such deposit or sanction shall provide for the salaries and allowances of the Engineers and Surveyors intended to be employed.

7. The Superintending Engineer shall, in any enquiry under section 51 of the Act, on receiving a requisition to that effect from the Collector, give his written opinion as to the boundaries of the lands affected by such works or repairs, and the extent to which they have been benefited or affected. This opinion shall form part of the record of proceedings in the case.

8. Notwithstanding that there is no express mention in section 52 of the Act of objections preferred before the Collector to the Engineer's accounts and certificate of expenses, on the ground that certain lands are not benefited by the works or repairs as specified in such certificate, the Collector shall entertain and consider such objections. As the disposal of such objections will often depend on professional enquiries, the Collector shall ordinarily consult the Engineer and, if necessary, the Superintending Engineer, before passing orders, and the substance of the reference to the Engineer, and of his reply shall form part of the record.

If, on such objection the Collector shall come to the conclusion that any alteration should be made in the certificate which has been signed by the Engineer under section 51, he may at any time, before making an order charging or apportioning the amount under section 58 of the Act, make such alteration as provided in section 52.

9. When it appears likely that the ordinary procedure under the Act would be attended with grave and imminent danger to life and property, and proceedings are taken by the Collector, under section 25 of the Act, or by the Engineer, under section 29, the Collector shall make an immediate report to the Commissioner, and forward a copy thereof to the Superintending Engineer. In such cases the Commissioner shall lose no time in submitting a copy of the said report, with his opinion thereon, for the orders of Government.

10. All orders passed under section 31 of the Act shall be in writing, and the applicant shall be entitled to receive a copy of the same, free of charge, on application. The Engineer shall delegate to all Public Works Subdivisional Officers the power of receiving applications, under section 31 of the Act, for temporary roadways and temporary water-courses, but no person so appointed shall pass an order for the construction of a temporary water-course, unless he has been specially authorised to do so by the Superintending Engineer. Such authority shall specify the embankments in regard to which only this power is to be exercised. In all cases where an application for a temporary water-course is made to a person appointed by the Engineer, such application shall be submitted to the Engineer for transmission to the Collector. The Engineer, in forwarding applications under this section to the Collector, shall state in writing whether, in his opinion, they can be sanctioned without endangering the safety of the embankment.

11. All Public Works Subdivisional Officers shall be authorised to open or shut sluices under general rules to be issued by the Engineer, with the approval of the Collector. A copy of all rules made under this section shall be transmitted to the Superintending Engineer.

12. Any order to remove an embankment or obstruction, or to repair damage, passed under section 79 of the Act, shall be appealable to the Court to which an appeal ordinarily lies from the decision of the Magistrate who passes the order.

13. The Engineer shall submit to Government, through the Superintending Engineer, an annual report on the state of each Schedule D embankment in his charge on the 1st of April of each year. The report shall contain the following particulars:—

(a) the original length of the embankment;
(b) the length as maintained during the year;
(c) the area it protects;
(d) the floods during the year;
(e) how the embankment was affected by the floods of the year;
(f) the cost of its upkeep;
(g) whether there has been any encroachment on embankment land during the year; if in the affirmative, what steps have been taken to bring the offender to justice;
(h) if the crest of the embankment is sufficiently high to protect the lands within from floods in the river.

14. The Engineer in charge shall submit to Government annually, through the Superintending Engineer, a report with plans shewing what embankments, if any, have been erected or added to within any tract included in a prohibitory notification issued under section 6 of the Act.

CUSTOMS.

Delhi, the 11th March 1916.

No. 1898-W.—The following Order in Council is published for general information :—

AT THE COUNCIL CHAMBER, WHITEHALL.

The 28th day of January 1916.

BY THE LORDS OF HIS MAJESTY'S MOST HONOURABLE PRIVY COUNCIL.

WHEREAS it is provided by section 2 of the Customs (Exportation Prohibition) Act, 1914, that any Proclamation or Order in Council made under section 8 of the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1879, as amended by the Act now in recital, may, whilst a state of war exists, be varied or added to by an Order made by the Lords of the Council on the recommendation of the Board of Trade:

And whereas it is provided by section 2 of the Customs (Exportation Restriction) Act, 1914, that any Proclamation made under section 1 of the Exportation of Arms Act, 1900, may, whether the Proclamation was made before or after the passing of the Act now in recital, be varied or added to, whilst a state of war exists, by an Order made by the Lords of the Council on the recommendation of the Board of Trade:

And whereas by a Proclamation, dated the 28th day of July 1915, and made under section 8 of the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1879, and section 1 of the Exportation of Arms Act, 1900, and section 1 of the Customs (Exportation Prohibition) Act, 1914, the exportation from the United Kingdom of certain articles to certain or all destinations was prohibited:

And whereas by subsequent Orders of Council the said Proclamation was amended and added to in certain particulars:

And whereas there was this day read at the Board a recommendation from the Board of Trade to the following effect :—

That the Proclamation, dated the 28th day of July 1915, as amended and added to by subsequent Orders of Council, should be further amended by making the following amendments in and additions to the same :—

(1) That the exportation of the following goods should be prohibited to all destinations :—

Cotton rags;

Linen rags;

Waste paper.

(2) That the heading "Railway waggons" in the list of goods the exportation of which is prohibited to all destinations abroad other than British Possessions and Protectorates should be deleted, and there be substituted therefor the heading :—

Railway waggons and their component parts.

(3) That the exportation of the following goods should be prohibited to all foreign countries in Europe and on the Mediterranean and Black Seas, other than France, Russia (except through Baltic ports), Italy, Spain and Portugal:—

Canes and sticks, unmounted, whether for basket making or not;
Cordage and twine of Manila hemp
Europhen;
Files;
Pocket lamp cases and cases fitted with bulbs but not containing batteries;
Rum and imitation rum.

Now, therefore, Their Lordships, having taken the said recommendation into consideration, are pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered, that the same be approved.

Whereof the Commissioners of His Majesty's Customs and Excise, the Director of the War Trade Department, and all other persons whom it may concern, are to take notice and govern themselves accordingly.

LONDON GAZETTE.

No. 271.—The following extracts are published for general information:—

Second Supplement, dated the 6th January 1916, to the "London Gazette" of the 4th January 1916.

War Office,
6th January 1916.

The following despatch has been received by the Secretary of State for War from General Sir Ian Hamilton, G.C.B.

1, Hyde Park Gardens,
London, W., 11th December 1915.

MY LORD—

For the understanding of the operations about to be described, I must first set forth the situation as it appeared to me early in July.

The three days' battle of the 6th—8th May had shown that neither of my forces, northern or southern, were strong enough to fight their of the Narrows. On the 10th of May I had cabled asking that two divisions might be sent me to enable me to press on and so prevent my attack degenerating into trench warfare. On the 17th of May I again cabled, saying that if we were going to be left to face Turkey on our own resources we should require two Army Corps additional to my existing forces at the Dardanelles. The 52nd (Lowland) Division had been sent me, but between their dates of despatch and arrival Russia had given up the idea of co-operating from the coast of the Black Sea. Thereby several Turkish divisions were set free for the Dardanelles, and the battle of the 4th June, locally successful as it was, found us just as weak, relatively, as we had been a month earlier.

During June Your Lordship became persuaded of the bearing of these facts, and I was promised three regular divisions plus the infantry of two Territorial divisions. The advance guard of these troops was due to reach Mudros by the 10th of July; by the 10th of August their concentration was to be complete.

Eliminating the impracticable, I had already narrowed down the methods of employing these fresh forces to one of the following four:—

(a) Every man to be thrown on to the southern sector of the Peninsula to force a way forward to the Narrows.

(b) Disembarkation on the Asiatic side of the Straits, followed by a march on Chanak.

(c) A landing at Enos or Ebrije for the purpose of seizing the neck of the isthmus at Bulair.

(d) Reinforcement of the Australian and New Zealand Army Corps, combined with a landing in Suvla Bay. Then with one strong push to capture Hill 305, and, working from that dominating point, to grip the waist of the Peninsula.

As to (a) I rejected that course—

(1) Because there were limits to the numbers which could be landed and deployed in one confined area.

(2) Because the capture of Krithia could no longer be counted upon to give us Achi Baba, an entirely new system of works having lately appeared upon the slopes of that mountain—works so planned that even if the enemy's western flank was turned and driven back from the coast the central and eastern portions of the mountain could still be maintained as a bastion to Kilid Bahr.

(3) Because, if I tried to disengage myself both from Krithia and Achi Baba by landing due west of Kilid Bahr, my troops would be exposed to artillery fire from Achi Baba, the Olive Grove, and Kilid Bahr itself; the enemy's large reserves were too handy; there were not fair chances of success.

As to (b), although much of the Asiatic coast had now been wired and entrenched, the project was still attractive. Thereby the Turkish forces on the peninsula would be weakened; our beaches at Cape Helles would be freed from Asiatic shells; the threat to the enemy's sea communications was obvious. But when I descended into detail I found that the expected reinforcements would not run to a double operation. I mean that, unless I could make a thorough, whole-hearted attack on the enemy in the peninsula I should reap no advantage in that theatre from the transference of the Turkish peninsula troops to reinforce Asia, whereas, if the British forces landed in Asia were not strong enough in themselves seriously to threaten Chanak, the Turks for their part would not seriously relax their grip upon the peninsula.

To cut the land communications of the whole of the Turkish peninsular army, as in (c), was a better scheme on paper than on the spot. The Naval objections appeared to my co-adjutor, Vice-Admiral de Robeck, well-nigh insurmountable. Already owing to submarine dangers, all reinforcements, ammunition and supplies had to be brought up from Mudros to Helles or Anzac by night in fleet-sweepers and trawlers. A new landing near Bulair would have added another 50 miles to the course such small craft must cover, thus placing too severe a strain upon the capacities of the flotilla. The landing promised special hazards owing to the difficulty of securing the transports and covering ships from submarine attack. Ibrije has a bad beach, and the distance to Enos, the only point suitable to a disembarkation on a large scale, was so great that the enemy would have had time to organize a formidable opposition from his garrisons in Thrace. Four divisions at least would be required to overcome such opposition. These might now be found; but, even so, and presupposing every other obstacle overcome, it was by no manner of means certain that the Turkish army on the peninsula would thereby be brought to sue for terms, or that the Narrows would thereby be opened to the Fleet. The enemy would still be able to work supplies across the Straits from Chanak. The swiftness of the current, the shallow draft of the Turkish lighters, the guns of the forts, made it too difficult even for our dauntless submarine commanders to paralyse movement across these land-locked waters. To achieve that purpose I must bring my artillery fire to bear both on the land and water communications of the enemy.

This brings me to (d), the storming of that dominating height, Hill 305, with the capture of Maidos and Gaba Tepe as its sequel.

From the very first I had hoped that by landing a force under the heights of Sari Bair we should be able to strangle the Turkish communications to the southwards, whether by land or sea, and so clear the Narrows for the Fleet. Owing to the enemy's superiority, both in numbers and in position; owing to under-estimates of the strength of the original entrenchments prepared and sited under German direction; owing to the constant dwindling of the units of my force through wastage; owing also to the intricacy and difficulty of the terrain, these hopes had not hitherto borne fruit. But they were well founded. So much at least had clearly enough been demonstrated by the desperate and costly nature of the Turkish attacks. The Australians and New Zealanders had rooted themselves in very near to the vitals of the enemy. By their tenacity and courage they still held open the doorway from which one strong thrust forward might give us command of the Narrows.

From the naval point of view the auspices were also favourable. Suvla Bay was but one mile further from Mudros than Anzac, and its possession would ensure us a submarine-proof base and a harbour good against gales, excepting those from the south-west. There were, as might be expected, some special difficulties to be overcome—the broken, intricate country—the lack of water—the consequent anxious supply questions. Of these it can only be said that a bad country is better than an entrenched country, and that supply and water problems may be countered by careful preparation.

Before a man of the reinforcements had arrived my mind was made up as to their employment, and by means of a vigorous offensive from Anzac, combined with a surprise landing to the north of it, I meant to try and win through to Maidos, leaving behind me a well-protected line of communications starting from the bay of Suvla.

Another point which had to be fixed in advance was the date. The new troops would gain in fighting value if they could first be given a turn in the trenches. So much was clear. But the relief of the troops already holding those trenches would have been a long and difficult task for the Navy, and time was everything, seeing that everywhere the enemy was digging in as fast as he possibly could dig. Also, where large numbers of troops were to be smuggled into Anzac and another large force was to land by surprise at Suvla, it was essential to eliminate the moon. Unless the plunge could be taken by the second week in August, the whole venture must be postponed for a month. The dangers of such delay were clear. To realize them I had only to consider how notably my prospects would have been bettered, had these same reinforcements arrived in time to enable me to anticipate the moon of July.

Place and date having shaped themselves, the intervening period had to be filled in with as much fighting as possible. First, to gain ground: secondly, to maintain the moral ascendancy which my troops had by this time established; thirdly, to keep the enemy's eyes fixed rather upon Helles than Anzac.

Working out my ammunition allowance, I found I could accumulate just enough high explosive shell to enable me to deliver one serious attack per each period of three weeks. I was thus limited to a single effort on the large scale, plus a prescribed unceasing offensive routine, with bombing, sniping and mining as its methods.

The action of the 12th and 13th of July was meant to be a sequel to the action of the 28th June. That advance had driven back the Turkish right on to their second main system of defence just south of Krithia.

But, on my centre and right, the enemy still held their forward system of trenches, and it was my intention on the 12th July to seize the remaining trenches of this foremost system from the sea at the mouth of the Kereves Dere to the main Sedd-el-Bahr-Krithia road, along a front of some 2,000 yards.

On our right the attack was to be entrusted to the French Corps; on the right centre to the 52nd (Lowland) Division. On the 52nd Division's front the operation was planned to take place in two phases: our right was to attack in the morning, our left in the afternoon. Diversions by the 29th Division on the left of the southern section and at Anzac were to take place on the same day, so as to prevent the enemy's reserves from reinforcing the real point of attack.

At 7-35 A.M., after a heavy bombardment, the troops, French and Scottish, dashed out of their trenches and at once captured two lines of enemy trenches. Pushing forward with fine élan the 1st Division of the French Corps completed the task assigned to it by carrying the whole of the Turkish forward system of works, namely, the line of trenches skirting the lower part of the Kereves Dere. Further to the left the 2nd French Division and our 155th Brigade maintained the two lines of trenches they had gained. But on the left of the 155th Brigade the 4th Battalion, King's Own Scottish Borderers, pressed on too eagerly. They not only carried the third line of trenches, but charged on up the hill and beyond the third line, then advanced indeed until they came under the "feu de barrage" of the French artillery. Nothing could live under so cruel a cross fire from friend and foe, so the King's Own Scottish Borderers were forced to fall back with heavy losses to the second line of enemy trenches which they had captured in their first rush.

During this fighting telephone wires from forward positions were cut by enemy's shell fire, and here and there in the elaborate network of trenches numbers of Turks were desperately resisting to the last. Thus, though the second line of captured trenches continued to be held as a whole, much confused fighting ensued: there were retirements in parts of the line, reserves were rapidly being used up, and generally the situation was anxious and uncertain. But the best way of clearing it up seemed to be to deliver the second phase of the attack by the 157th Brigade just as it had originally been arranged. Accordingly, after a preliminary bombardment, the 157th Brigade rushed forward under heavy machine-gun and rifle fire, and splendidly carried the whole of the enemy trenches allotted as their objective. Here, then, our line had advanced some 400 yards, while the 155th Brigade and the 2nd French Division had advanced between 200 and 300 yards. At 6 P.M., the 52nd Division was ordered to make the line good; it seemed to be fairly in our grasp.

All night long determined counter-attacks, one after another, were repulsed by the French and the 155th Brigade, but about 7-30 A.M., the right of the 157th Brigade gave way before a party of bombers, and our grip upon the enemy began to weaken.

I therefore decided that three battalions of the Royal Naval Division should reinforce a fresh attack to be made that afternoon, 13th July, on such portions of our original objectives as remained in the enemy's hands. This second attack was a success. The 1st French Division pushed their right down to the mouth of the Kereves Dere; the 2nd French Division attacked the trenches they had failed to take on the preceding day; the Nelson Battalion, on the left of the Royal Naval Division attack, valiantly advanced and made good, well supported by the artillery of the French. The Portsmouth Battalion, pressing on too far fell into precisely the same error at precisely the same spot as did the 4th King's Own Scottish Borderers on the 12th, an over-impetuosity which cost them heavy losses.

The 1/5th Royal Scots Fusiliers, commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel J. B. Pollok-McCall; the 1/7th Royal Scots, commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel W. C. Peebles; the 1/5th King's Own Scottish Borderers, commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel W. J. Miller; and the 1/6th Highland Light Infantry, commanded by Major J. Anderson, are mentioned as having specially distinguished themselves in this engagement.

Generally, the upshot of the attack was this. On our right and on the French left two lines had been captured, but in neither case was the third, or last line of the system in their hands. Elsewhere a fine feat of arms had been accomplished, and a solid and enduring advance had been achieved giving us far the best sited line for defence with much the best field for machine-gun and rifle fire we had hitherto obtained upon the peninsula.

A machine-gun and 200 prisoners were captured by the French; the British took a machine-gun and 329 prisoners. The casualties in the French Corps were not heavy, though it is with sorrow that I have to report the mortal wound of General Masnou, commanding the 1st Division. Our own casualties were a little over 3,000; those of the enemy about 5,000.

On 17th July Lieutenant-General Hunter Weston, commanding the 8th Corps, left the peninsula for a few days' rest, and, to my very deep regret was subsequently invalided home. I have already drawn attention to his invincible self-confidence, untiring energy and trained ability.

As I was anxious to give the Commander of the new troops all the local experience possible, I appointed Lieutenant-General Hon. Sir Frederick Stopford, whose own Corps were now assembling at Mudros, temporarily to succeed Lieutenant-General Hunter Weston, but on July 24th when General Stopford had to set to work with his own Corps, Major-General W. Douglas, General Officer Commanding 42nd Division, took over temporary command of the 8th Crops; while Major-General W. R. Marshall, General Officer Commanding 87th Brigade assumed temporary command of the 42nd Division.

Only one other action need be mentioned before coming to the big operations of August. On the extreme right of Anzac the flank of a work called Tasmania Post was threatened by the extension of a Turkish trench. The task of capturing this trench was entrusted to the 3rd Australian Brigade. After an artillery bombardment, mines were to be fired, whereupon four columns of 50 men each were to assault and occupy specified lengths of the trench. The regiment supplying the assaulting columns was the 11th Australian Infantry Battalion.

At 10-15 P.M. on 31st July the bombardment was opened. Ten minutes later and the mines were duly fired. The four assaulting parties dashed forwarded at once, crossed our own barbed wire on planks, and were into the craters before the whole of the débris had fallen. Total casualties: 11 killed and 74 wounded; Turkish killed, 100.

By the time this action was fought a large proportion of my reinforcements had arrived, and, on the same principle which induced me to put General Stopford in temporary command at Helles, I relieved the war-worn 29th Division at the same place by the 13th Division under Major-General Shaw. The experiences here gained, in looking after themselves, in forgetting the thousand and one details of peace soldiering and in grasping the two or three elementary rules of conduct in war soldiering, were, it turned out, to be of priceless advantage to the 13th Division throughout the heavy fighting of the following month.

And now it was time to determine a date for the great venture. The moon would rise on the morning of the 7th at about 2 A.M. A day or two previously the last reinforcements, the 53rd and 54th Divisions, were due to arrive. The first day of the attack was fixed for the 6th of August.

Once the date was decided a certain amount of ingenuity had to be called into play so as to divert the attention of the enemy from my main strategical conception. This—I repeat for the sake of clearness—was:—

(1) To break out with a rush from Anzac and cut off the bulk of the Turkish Army from land communication with Constantinople.

(2) To gain such a command for my artillery as to cut off the bulk of the Turkish Army from sea traffic whether with Constantinople or with Asia.

(3) Incidentally, to secure Suvla Bay as a winter base for Anzac and all the troops operating in the northern theatre.

My schemes for hoodwinking the Turks fell under two heads: First, strategical diversons meant to draw away enemy reserves not yet committed to the peninsula. Secondly, tactical diversions meant to hold up enemy reserves already on the peninsula. Under the first heading came a surprise landing by a force of 300 men on the northern shore of the Gulf of Xeros; demonstrations by French ships opposite Mitylene along the Syrian coast; concentration at Mitylene; inspections at Mitylene by the Admiral and myself; making to order of a whole set of maps of Asia and Egypt, as well as secret service work, most of which bore fruit. Amongst the tactical diversions were a big containing attack at Helles Soundings, registration of guns., etc., by Monitors between Gaba Tepe and Kum Tepe. An attack to be carried out by Anzac on Lone Pine trenches, which lay in front of their right wing and as far distant as the local terrain would admit from the scene of the real battle. Thanks entirely to the reality and vigour which the Navy and the troops threw into them, each one of these ruses was, it so turned out, entirely successful with the result that the Turks, despite their excellent spy system, were caught completely off their guard at dawn on the 7th of August.

Having settled upon the manner and time of the diversions, orders had to be issued for the main operation. And here I must pause a moment to draw your Lordship's attention to the extraordinary complexity of the staff work caused by the unique distribution of my forces. Within the narrow confines of the positions I held on the peninsula it was impossible to concentrate even as much as one-third of the fresh troops about to be launched to the attack. Nor could Mudros and Imbros combined absorb the whole of the remainder. The strategic concentration which precedes a normal battle had in my case to be a very wide dispersion. Thus, of the forces destined for my offensive, on the day before the battle, part were at Anzac, part at Imbros, part at Mudros, and part at Mitylene. These last three detachments were separated respectively by 14, 60 and 120 miles of sea from the arena into which they were simultaneously to appear. To ensure the punctual arrival of all these masses of inexperienced troops at the right moment and spot, together with their material, munitions, stores, supplies, water, animals and vehicles, was a prodigious undertaking demanding not only competence, but self-confidence; and I will say for my General Staff that I believe the clearness and completeness of their orders for this concentration and landing will hereafter be studied as models in military academies. The need for economy in sea transport, the awkwardness and restriction of open beaches, the impossibility of landing guns, animals or vehicles rapidly—all these made it essential to create a special, separate organisation for every single unit taking part in the adventure. A pack mule corps to supply 80,000 men had also to be organised for that specific purpose until such time as other transport could be landed.

As to water, that element of itself was responsible for a whole chapter of preparations. An enormous quantity had to be collected secretly, and as secretly stowed away at Anzac, where a high-level reservoir had to be built, having a holding capacity of 30,000 gallons, and fitted out with a regular system of pipes and distribution tanks. A stationary engine was brought over from Egypt to fill that reservoir. Petroleum tins, with a carrying capacity of 80,000 gallons were got together, and fixed up with handles, etc., but the collision of the "Moorgate" with another vessel delayed the arrival of large numbers of these just as a breakdown in the stationary engine upset for a while the well-laid plan of the high-level reservoir. But Anzac was ever resourceful in face of misadventures, and when the inevitable accidents arose it was not with folded hands that they were met.

Turning to Suvla Bay, it was believed that good wells and springs existed both in the Biyuk, Anafarta Valley and in Suvla Plain. But nothing so vital could possibly be left to hearsay, and although, as it turned out, our information was perfectly correct, yet the War Office were asked to despatch with each reinforcing division water receptacles for pack transport at the rate of half a gallon per man.

The sheet-anchor on which hung the whole of these elaborate schemes was the Navy. One tiny flaw in the perfect mutual trust and confidence animating the two services would have wrecked the whole enterprise. Experts at a distance may have guessed as much; it was self-evident to the rawest private on the spot. But with men like Vice-Admiral de Robeck, Commodore Roger Keyes, Rear-Admiral Christian and Captain F. H. Mitchell at our backs, we soldiers were secured against any such risk, and it will be seen how perfect was the precision the sailors put into their job.

The hour was now approaching, and I waited for it with as much confidence as is posible, when to the inevitable uncertainties of war are to be added those of the weather. Apart from feints, the first blow was to be dealt in the southern zone.

In that theatre I had my own Poste de Commandement. But upon the 6th of August attacks in the south were only to form a subsidiary part of one great concerted attack. Anzac was to diliver the knock-down blow; Helles and Suvla were complementary operations. Were I to commit myself at the outset to any one of these three theatres, I must lose my sense of proportion. Worse, there being no lateral communication between them as soon as I landed at one I was cut off from present touch with both of the others. At Imbros I was 45 minutes from Helles, 40 minutes from Anzac, and 50 minutes from Suvla. Imbros was the centre of the cable system, and thence I could follow each phase of the triple attack and be ready with my two divisions of reserve to throw in reinforcements where they seemed most to be required. Therefore I decided to follow the opening moves from General Headquarters.

At Helles the attack of the 6th was directed against 1,200 yards of the Turkish front opposite our own right and right centre, and was to be carried out by the 88th Brigade of the 29th Division. Two small Turkish trenches enfilading the main advance had, if possible, to be captured simultaneously, an affair which was entrusted to the 42nd Division.

After bombardment the infantry assaulted at 3-50 P.M. On the left large sections of the enemy's line were carried, but on our centre and right the Turks were encountered in masses, and the attack, pluckily and perserveringly as it was pressed, never had any real success. The 1st Battalion, Essex Regiment, in particular forced their way into the crowded enemy trench opposite them, despite the most determined resistance, but, once in, were subjected to the heaviest musketry fire from both flanks, as well as in reverse, and were shattered by showers of bombs. Two separate resolute attacks were made by the 42nd Division, but both of them recoiled in face of the unexpected volume of fire developed by the Turks.

After dark officer's patrols were sent up to ascertain the exact position of affairs. Heavy Turkish counter-attacks were being pressed against such portions of the line we still retained. Many of our men fought it out where they stood to the last, but by nightfall none of the enemy's line remained in our possession.

Our set-back was in no wise the fault of the troops. That ardour which only dashed itself to pieces against the enemy's strong entrenchments and numerous, stubborn defenders on the 6th of August would, a month earlier, have achieved notable success. Such was the opinion of all. But the morale, as well as the strength of the Turks, had had time to rise to great heights since our last serious encounters with them on the 21st and 28th of June and on the 12th of July. On those dates all ranks had felt, as an army feels, instinctively, yet with certitude, that they had fairly got the upper hand of the enemy, and that, given the wherewithal, they could have gone on steadily advancing. Now that self-same, half-beaten enemy were again making as stout a resistance as they had offered us at our original landing!

For this recovery of the Turks there were three reasons; one moral, one material, and one fortuitous:—

(1) The news of the enemy's advance on the Eastern front had come to hand and had been advertised to us on posters from the Turkish trenches before we heard about it from home.

(2) Two new divisions had come down south to Helles to replace those we had most severely handled.

(3) The enemy trenches selected for our attack were found to be packed with troops and so were their communication trenches, the reason being, as explained to us by prisoners, that the Turkish Commander had meant to launch from them an attack upon us. We had, in fact, by a coincidence as strange as it was unlucky, anticipated a Turkish offensive by an hour or two at most!

Sure enough, next morning, the enemy in their turn attacked the left of the line from which our own troops had advanced to the assault. A few of them gained a footing in our trenches and were all killed or captured. The remainder were driven back by fire.

As the aim of my action in this southern zone was to advance if I could, but in any case to contain the enemy and prevent him reinforcing to the northwards, I persevered on the 7th with my plans, notwithstanding the counter-attack of the Turks which was actually in progress. My objective this time was a double line of Turkish trenches on a front of about 800 yards between the Mal Tepe Dere and the west branch of the Kanli Dere. After a preliminary bombardment the troops of the 125th Brigade on the right and the 129th on the left made the assault at 9-40 A.M. From the outset it was evident that the enemy were full of fight and in great force, and that success would only be gained after a severe struggle. On the right and on the centre the first enemy line was captured, and small parties pushed on to the second line, where they were unable to maintain themselves for long.

On the left, but little ground was gained, and by 11 A.M., what little had been taken had been relinquished. But in the centre a stiff battle raged all day up and down a vineyard some 200 yards long by 100 yards broad on the west of the Krithia Road. A large portion of the vineyard had been captured in the first dash, and the East Lancashire men in this part of the field gallantly stood their ground here against a succession of vigorous counter-attacks. The enemy suffered very severely in these counter-attacks, which were launched in strength and at short intervals. Both our Brigades had also lost heavily during the advance and in repelling the fierce onslaughts of the enemy, but owing to the fine endurance of the 6th and 7th Battalions of the Lancashire Fusiliers, it was found possible to hold the vineyard through the night, and a massive column of the enemy which strove to overwhelm their thinned ranks was shattered to pieces in the attempt.

On 8th August Lieutenant-General Sir F. J. Davis took over command of the 8th Army Corps, and Major-General W. Douglas reverted to the command of the 42nd Divison. For two more days his troops were called upon to show their qualities of vigilance and power of determined resistance, for the enemy had by no means yet lost hope of wresting from us the ground we had won in the vineyard. This unceasing struggle was a supreme test for battalions already exhausted by 48 hours' desperate fighting and weakened by the loss of so many good leaders and men; but the peculiar grit of the Lancastrians was equal to the strain, and they did not fail. Two specially furious counter-attacks were delivered by the Turks on the 8th August, one at 4-40 A.M., and another at 8-30 P.M., where again our bayonets were too much for them. Throughout the night they made continuous bomb attacks, but the 6th Lancashire Fusiliers and the 4th East Lancashire Regiment stuck gamely to their task at the eastern corner of the vineyard. There was desparate fighting also at the northern corner, where the personal bravery of Lieutenant W. T. Forshaw, 1/9th Manchester Regiment, who stuck to his post after his detachment had been relieved (an act for which he has since been awarded the V.C.), was largely instrumental in the repulse of three very determined onslaughts.

By the morning of the 9th August things were quieter, and the sorely tried troops were relieved. On the night of the 12th—13th the enemy made one more sudden, desperate dash for their vineyard—and got it! But, on the 13th, our bombers took the matter in hand. The Turks were finally driven out; the new fire trenches were wired and looopholed, and have since become part of our line.

These two attacks had served their main purpose. If the local successes were not all that had been hoped for, yet a useful advance had been achieved, and not only had they given a fresh, hard fighting enemy more than he had bargained for, but they had actually drawn down Turkish reinforcements to their area. And how can a Commander say enough for the troops who, aware that their task was only a subsidiary one, fought with just as much vim and resolution as if they were storming the battlements of Constantinople.

I will now proceed to tell of the assault on Chunuk Bair by the forces under General Birdwood and of the landing of the 9th Corps in the neighbourhood of Suvla Bay. The entire details of the operations allotted to the troops to be employed in the Anzac area were formulated by Lieutenant-General Birdwood, subject only to my final approval. So excellently was this vital business worked out on the lines of the instructions issued that I had no modifications to suggest, and all these local preparations were completed by August 6th in a way which reflects the greatest credit, not only on the Corps Commander and his staff, but also upon the troops themselves, who had to toil like slaves to accumulate food, drink and munitions of war. Alone the accommodation for the extra troops to be landed necessitated an immense amount of work in preparing new concealed bivouacs, in making interior communications, and in storing water and supplies, for I was determined to put on shore as many fighting men as our modest holding at Anzac could possibly accommodate or provision. All the work was done by Australian and New Zealand soldiers almost entirely by night, and the uncomplaining efforts of these much-tried troops in preparation are in a sense as much to their credit as their heroism in the battles that follow. Above all, the water problem caused anxiety to the Admiral, to Lieutenant-General Birdwood and to myself. The troops to advance from Suvla Bay across the Anafarta valley might reckon on finding some wells—it was certain, at least, that no water was waiting for us on the crests of the ridges of Sari Bair! Therefore, first, several days' supply had to be stocked into tanks along the beach and thence pumped up into other tanks half-way up the mountains; secondly, a system of mule transport had to be worked out, so that in so far as was humanly possible, thirst should not be allowed to overcome the troops after they had overcome the difficulties of the country and the resistance of the enemy.

On the nights of the 4th, 5th and 6th August the reinforcing troops were shipped into Anzac very silently at the darkest hours. Then, still silently, they were tucked away from enemy aeroplanes or observatories in their prepared hidding places. The whole sea route lay open to the view of the Turks upon Achi Baba's summit and Battleship Hill. Aeroplanes could count every tent and every ship at Mudros or at Imbros. Within rifle fire of Anzac's open beach hostile riflemen were looking out across the Ægean no more than twenty feet from our opposing lines. Every modern appliance of telescope, telegraph, wireless was at the disposal of the enemy. Yet the instructions worked out at General Headquarters in the minutest detail (the result of conferences with the Royal Navy, which were attended by Brigadier-General Skeen, of General Birdwood's Staff) were such that the scheme was carried through without a hitch. The preparation of the ambush was treated as a simple matter by the services therein engaged, and yet I much doubt whether any more pregnant enterprise than this of landing so large a force under the very eyes of the enemy, and of keeping them concealed there three days, is recorded in the annals of war.

The troops now at the disposal of General Birdwood amounted in round numbers to 37,000 rifles and 72 guns, with naval support from two cruisers, four monitors and two destroyers. Under the scheme these troops were to be divided into two main portions. The task of holding the existing Anzac position, and of making frontal assaults therefrom, was assigned to the Australian Division (plus the 1st and 3rd Light Horse Brigades and two battalions of the 40th Brigade); that of assaulting the Chunuk Bair ridge was entrusted to the New Zealand and Australian Division (less the 1st and 3rd Light Horse Brigades), to the 13th Division (less five battalions), and to the 29th Indian Infantry Brigade and to the Indian Mountain Artillery Brigade. The 29th Brigade of the 10th Division (less one battalion) and the 38th Brigade were held in reserve.

The most simple method of developing this complicated series of operations will be first to take the frontal attacks from the existing Anzac position, and afterwards to go on to the assault on the more distant ridges. During the 4th, 5th and 6th of August the works on the enemy's left and centre were subjected to a slow bombardment, and on the afternoon of the 6th August an assault was made upon the formidable Lone Pine entrenchment. Although, in its essence, a diversion to draw the enemy's attention and reserves from the grand attack impending upon his right, yet, in itself, Lone Pine was a distinct step on the way across to Maidos. It commanded one of the main sources of the Turkish water supply, and was a work, or, rather, a series of works, for the safety of which the enemy had always evinced a certain nervousness. The attack was designed to highten this impression.

The work consisted of a strong point d'appui on the south-western end of a plateau, where it confronted, at distances varying from 60 to 120 yards, the salient in the line of our trenches named by us the Pimple. The entrenchment was evidently very strong; it was entangled with wire, and provided with overhead cover, and it was connected by numerous communication trenches with another point d'appui known as Johnston's Jolly on the north, as well as with two other works on the east and south. The frontage for attack amounted at most to some 220 yards and the approaches lay open to heavy enfilade fire, both from the north and from the south.

The detailed scheme of attack was worked out with care and forethought by Major-General H. B. Walker, Commanding 1st Australian Division, and his thoroughness contributed, I consider, largely to the success of the enterprise.

The action commenced at 4-30 P.M. with a continuous and heavy bombardment of the Lone Pine and adjacent trenches, H.M.S. "Bacchante" assisting by searching the valleys to the north-east and east, and the Monitors by shelling the enemy's batteries south of Gaba Tepe. The assualt had been entrusted to the 1st Australian Brigade (Brigadier-General N. M. Smyth), and punctually at 5-30 P.M. it was carried out by the 2nd, 3rd and 4th Australian Battalions, the 1st Battalion forming the Brigade reserve. Two lines left their trenches simultaneously, and were closely followed up by a third. The rush across the open was a regular race against death, which came in the shape of a hail of shell and rifle bullets from front and from either flank. But the Australians had firmly resolved to reach the enemy's trenches, and in thi determination they became for the moment invincible. The barbed wire entanglement was reached and was surmounted. Then came a terrible moment, when it seemed as though it would be physically impossible to penetrate into the trenches. The overhead cover of stout pine beams resisted all individual efforts to move it, and the loopholes continued to spit fire. Groups of our men then bodily lifted up the beams and individual soldiers leaped down into the semi-darkened galleries amongst the Turks. By 5-47 P.M. the 3rd and 4th Battalions were well into the enemy's vitals, and a few minutes later the reserves of the 2nd Battalion advanced over their parados, and driving out, killing or capturing the occupants, made good the whole of the trenches. The reserve companies of the 3rd and 4th Battalions followed, and at 6-20 P.M. the 1st Battalion (in reserve) was launched to consolidate the position.

At once the Turks made it plain, as they have never ceased to do since, that they had no intention of acquiescing in the capture of this capital work. At 7-0 P.M. a determined and violent counter-attack began, both from the north and from the south. Wave upon wave the enemy swept forward with the bayonet. Here and there a well-directed salvo of bombs emptied a section of a trench, but whenever this occurred the gap was quickly filled by the initiative of the officers and the gallantry of the men.

The enemy allowed small respite. At 1-30 that night the battle broke out afresh. Strong parties of Turks swarmed out of the communication trenches, preceded by showers of bombs. For seven hours these counter-attacks continued. All this time consolidation was being attempted, although the presence of so many Turkish prisoners hampered movement and constituted an actual danger. In beating off these desperate counter-attacks very heavy casualties were suffered by the Australians. Part of the 12th Battalion, the reserve of the 3rd Brigade, had therefore to be thrown into the mêlée.

Twelve hours later, at 1-30 P.M. on the 7th, another effort was made by the enemy, lasting uninterruptedly at closest quarters till 5 P.M., then being resumed at midnight and proceeding intermittently till dawn. At an early period of this last counter-attack the 4th Battalion were forced by bombs to relinquish postion of a trench, but later on, led by their commanding officer, Lieutenant-Colonel McNaghten, they killed every Turk who had got in.

During the 8th of August advantage was taken of every cessation in the enemy's bombing to consolidate. The 2nd Battalion, which had lost its commanding officer and suffered especially severely, was withdrawn and replaced by the 7th Battalion, the reserve to the 2nd Infantry Brigade.

At 5 A.M. on 9th August the enemy made a sudden attempt to storm from the east and south-east after a feint of fire attack from the north. The 7th Battalion bore the brunt of the shock, and handled the attack so vigorously that by 7-45 A.M. there were clear signs of demoralisation in the enemy's ranks. But although this marked the end of counter-attacks on the large scale, the bombing and sniping continued, though in less volume, throughout this day and night, and lasted till 12th August, when it at last became manifest that we had gained complete ascendancy. During the final grand assault our losses from artillery fire were large, and ever since the work has passed into our hands it has been a favourite daily and nightly mark for heavy shells and bombs.

Thus was Lone Pine taken and held. The Turks were in great force and very full of fight, yet one weak Australian brigade, numbering at the outset but 2,000 rifles, and supported only by two weak battalions, carried the work under the eyes of a whole enemy division, and maintained their grip upon it like a vice during six days' successive counter-attacks. High praise is due to Brigadier-General N. M. Smyth and to his battalion commanders. The irresistible dash and daring of officers and men in the initial charge were a glory to Australia. The stout-heartedness with which they clung to the captured ground in spite of fatigue, severe losses and the continual strain of shell fire and bomb attacks may seem less striking to the civilian; it is even more admirable to the soldier. From start to finish the artillery support was untiring and vigilant. Owing to the rapid, accurate fire of the 2nd New Zealand Battery, under Major Sykes, several of the Turkish onslaughts were altogether defeated in their attempts to get to grips with the Australians. Not a chance was lost by these gunners, although time and again the enemy's artillery made direct hits on their shields. The hand-to-hand fighting in the semi-obscurity of the trenches was prolonged and very bitterly contested. In one corner eight Turks and 6 Australians were found lying as they had bayonetted one another. To make room for the fighting men the dead were ranged in rows on either side of the gangway. After the first violence of the counter-attacks had abated, 1,000 corpses—our own and Turkish—were dragged out from the trenches.

For the severity of our own casualties some partial consolation may be found in the facts, first, that those of the enemy were much heavier, our guns and machine-guns having taken toll of them as they advanced in mass formation along the reverse slopes; secondly, that the Lone Pine attack drew all the local enemy reserves towards it, and may be held, more than any other cause, to have been the reason that the Suvla Bay landing was so lightly opposed, and that comparatively few of the enemy were available at first to reinforce against our attack on Sari Bair. Our captures in this feat of arms amounted to 134 prisoners, seven machine-guns, and a large quantity of ammunition and equipment.

Other frontal attacks from the existing Anzac positions were not so fortunate. They fulfilled their object in so far as they prevented the enemy from reinforcing against the attack upon the high ridges, but they failed to make good any ground. Taken in sequence of time, they included an attack upon the work known as German Officers' Trench, on the extreme right of our line, at midnight on August 6th—7th, also assaults on the Nek and Baby 700 trenches opposite the centre of our line, delivered at 4-30 A.M. on the 7th. The 2nd Australian Brigade did all that men could do; the 8th Light Horse only accepted their repulse after losing three-fourths of that devoted band, who so bravely sallied forth from Russell's Top. Some of the works were carried, but in these cases the enemy's concealed machine guns made it impossible to hold on. But all that day, as the result of these most gallant attacks, Turkish reserves on Battleship Hill were being held back to meet any dangerous development along the front of the old Anzac line, and so were not available to meet our main enterprise, which I will now endeavour to describe.

The first step in the real push—the step which above all others was to count—was the night attack on the summits of the Sari Bair ridge. The crest line of this lofty mountain range runs parallel to the sea, dominating the under-features contained within the Anzac position, although these fortunately defilade the actual landing-place. From the main ridge a series of spurs run down towards the level beach, and are separated from one another by deep jagged gullies choked up with dense jungle. Two of these leading up to Chunuk Bair are called Chailak Dere and Sazli Beit Dere; another deep ravine runs up to Koja Chemen Tepe (Hill 305), the topmost peak of the whole ridge, and is called the Aghyl Dere.

It was our object to effect a lodgment along the crest of the high, main ridge with two columns of troops, but, seeing the nature of the ground and the dispositions of the enemy, the effort had to be made by stages. We were bound, in fact, to undertake a double subsidiary operation before we could hope to launch these attacks with any real prospect of success.

(1) The right covering force was to seize Table Top, as well as all other enemy positions commanding the foothills between the Chailak Dere and the Sazli Beit Dere ravines. If this enterprise succeeded it would open up the ravines for the assaulting columns, whilst at the same time interposing between the right flank of the left covering force and the enemy holding the Sari Bair main ridge.

(2) The left covering force was to march northwards along the beach to seize a hill called Damakjelik Bair, some 1,400 yards north of Table Top. If successful it would be able to hold out a hand to the 9th Corps as it landed south of Nibrunesi Point, whilst at the same time protecting the left flank of the left assaulting column against enemy troops from the Anafarta valley during its climb up the Aghyl Dere ravine.

(3) The right assaulting column was to move up the Chailak Dere and Sazli Beit Dere ravines to the storm of the ridge of Chunuk Bair.

(4) The left assaulting column was to work up the Aghyl Dere and prolong the line of the right assaulting column by storming Hill 305 (Koja Chemen Tepe), the summit of the whole range of hills.

To recapitulate, the two assaulting columns, which were to work up three ravines to the storm of the high ridge, were to be preceded by two covering columns. One of these was to capture the enemy's positions commanding the foothills, first to open the mouths of the ravines, secondly to cover the right flank of another covering force whilst it marched along the beach. The other covering column was to strike far out to the north until, from a hill called Damajelik Bair, it could at the same time facilitate the landing of the 9th Corps at Nibrunesi Point, and guard the left flank of the column assaulting Sari Bair from any forces of the enemy which might be assembled in the Anafarta valley.

The whole this big attack was placed under the command of Major-General Sir A. J. Godley, General Officer Commanding New Zealand and Australian Division. The two covering and the two assaulting columns were organized as follows :—

Right Covering Column, under Brigadier-General A. H. Russell.—New Zealand Mounted Rifles Brigade, the Otago Mounted Rifles Regiment, the Maori Contingent and New Zealand Field Troop.

Right Assaulting Column, under Brigadier-General F. E. Johnston.—New Zealand Infantry Brigade, Indian Mountain Battery (less one section), one Company New Zealand Engineers.

Left Covering Column, under Brigadier-General J. H. Travers.—Headquarters 40th Brigade, half the 72nd Field Company, 4th Battalion, South Wales Borderers, and 5th Battalion, Wiltshire Regiment.

Left Assaulting Column, under Brigadier-General (now Major-General) H. V. Cox.—29th Indian Infantry Brigade, 4th Australian Infantry Brigade, Indian Mountain Battery (less one section), one Company New Zealand Engineers.

Divisional Reserve.—6th Battalion, South Lancashire Regiment, and 8th Battalion, Welsh Regiment (Pioneers) at Chailak Dere, and the 39th Infantry Brigade and half 72nd, Field Company at Aghyl Dere.

The right covering column, it will be remembered, had to gain command of the Sazli Beit Dere and the Aghyl Dere ravines, so as to let the assaulting column arrive intact within striking distance of the Chunuk Bair ridge. To achieve this object it had to clear the Turks off from their right flank positions upon Old No. 3 Post and Table Top.

Old No. 3 Post connected with Table Top by a razor back, formed the apex of a triangular piece of hill sloping gradually down to our No. 2 and No. 3 outposts. Since its recapture from us by the Turks on 30th May, working parties had done their best with unstinted material to convert this commanding point into an impregnable redoubt. Two lines of fire trench, very heavily entangled, protected its southern face—the only one accessible to us—and, with its head cover of solid timber baulks and its strongly rivetted outworks, it dominated the approaches of both the Chailak Dere and the Sazli Beit Dere.

Table Top is steep-sided, flat-topped hill, close on 400 feet above sea level. The sides of the hill are mostly sheer and quite impracticable, but here and there a ravine, choked with scrub, and under fire of enemy trenches, gives precarious foothold up the precipitous cliffs. The small plateau on the summit was honeycombed with trenches, which were connected by a communication alley with that underfeature of Sari Bair, known as Rhododendron Spur.

Amongst other stratagems the Anzac troops, assisted by H.M.S. "Colne," had long and carefully been educating the Turks how they should lose Old No. 3 Post, which could hardly have been rushed by simple force of arms. Every night, exactly at 9 P.M., H.M.S. "Colne" threw the beam of her searchlight on to the redoubt, and opened fire upon it for exactly ten minutes. Then, after a ten minutes' interval, came a second illumination and bombardment commencing always at 9-20 and ending precisely at 9-30 P.M.

The idea was that, after successive nights of such practice, the enemy would get into the habit of taking the searchlight as a hint to clear out until the shelling was at an end. But on the eventful night of the 6th, the sound of their footsteps drowned by the loud cannonade, unseen as they crept along in that darkest shadow which fringes a searchlight's beam—came the right covering column. At 9-30 the light switched off, and instantly our men poured out of the scrub jungle and into the empty redoubt. By 11 P.M., the whole series of surrounding entrenchments were ours !

Once the capture of Old No. 3 Post was fairly under way, the remainder of the right covering column carried on with their attack upon Bauchop's

Hill and the Chailak Dere. By 10 P.M., the northernmost point, with its machine-gun, was captured and by 1 o'clock in the morning the whole of Bauchop's Hill, a maze of ridge and ravine, everywhere entrenched, was fairly in our hands.

The attack along the Chailak Dere was not so cleanly carried out—made indeed just about as ugly a start as any enemy could wish. Pressing eagerly forward through the night, the little column of stormers found themselves held up by a barbed-wire erection of unexampled height, depth and solidity, which completely closed the river bed—that is to say, the only practicable entrance to the ravine. The entanglement was flanked by a strongly-held enemy trench running right across the opening of the Chailak Dere. Here that splendid body of men, the Otago Mounted Rifles, lost some of their bravest and their best, but in the end, when things were beginning to seem desperate, a passage was forced through the stubborn obstacle with most conspicuous and cool courage by Captain Shera and a party of New Zealand Engineers, supported by the Maoris, who showed themselves worthy descendants of the warriors of the Gate Pah. Thus was the mouth of the Chailak Dere opened in time to admit of the unopposed entry of the right assaulting column.

Simultaneously the attack on Table Top had been launched under cover of a heavy bombardment from H.M.S. "Colne." No General on peace manœuvres would ask troops to attempt so break-neck an enterprise. The flanks of Table Top are so steep that the height gives an impression of a mushroom shape—of the summit bulging out over its stem. But just as faith moves mountains, so valour can carry them. The Turks fought bravely. The angle of Table Top's ascent is recognised in our regulations as "impracticable for infantry." But neither Turks nor angles of ascent were destined to stop Russell or his New Zealanders that night. There are moments during battle when life becomes intensified, when men become supermen, when the impossible becomes simple—and this was one of those moments. The scarped heights were scaled, the plateau was carried by midnight. With this brilliant feat the task of the right covering force was at an end. Its attacks had been made with the bayonet and bomb only; magazines were empty by order: hardly a rifle shot had been fired. Some 150 prisoners were captured as well as many rifles and much equipment, ammunition and stores. No words can do justice to the achievement of Brigadier-General Russell and his men. There are exploits which must be seen to be realised.

The right assaulting column had entered the two southerly ravines—Sazli Beit Dere and Chailak Dere—by midnight. At 1-30 A.M., began a hotly contested fight for the trenches on the lower part of Rhododendron Spur, whilst the Chailak Dere column pressed steadily up the valley against the enemy.

The left covering column, under Brigadier-General Travers, after marching along the beach to No. 3 Outpost, resumed its northerly advance as soon as the attack on Bauchop's Hill had developed. Once the Chailak Dere was cleared the column moved by the mouth of the Aghyl Dere, disregarding the enfilade fire from sections of Bauchop's Hill still uncaptured. The rapid success of this movement was largely due to Lieutenant-Colonel Gillespie, a very fine man, who commanded the advance guard consisting of his own regiment, the 4th South Wales Borderers, a corps worthy of such a leader. Every trench encountered was instantly rushed by the Borderers until, having reached the predetermined spot, the whole column was unhesitatingly launched at Damakjelik Bair. Several Turkish trenches were captured at the bayonet's point, and by 1-30 A.M., the whole of the hill was occupied, thus safeguarding the left rear of the whole of the Anzac attack.

Here was an encouraging sample of what the New Army, under good auspices, could accomplish. Nothing more trying to inexperienced troops can be imagined than a long night march exposed to flanking fire, through a strange country winding up at the end with a bayonet charge against a height formless and still in the starlight, garrisoned by those spectres of the imagination, worst enemies of the soldier.

The left assulting column crossed the Chailak Dere at 12-30 A.M., and entered the Aghyl Dere at the heels of the left covering column. The surprise, on this side, was complete. Two Turkish officers were caught in their pyjamas; enemy arms and ammunition were scattered in every direction.

The grand attack was now in full swing, but the country gave new sensations in cliff climbing even to officers and men who had graduated over the goat tracks of Anzac. The darkness of the night, the density of the scrub, hands and knees progress up the spurs, sheer physical fatigue, exhaustion of the spirit caused by repeated hairbreadth escapes from the hail of random bullets—all these combined to take the edge off the energies of our troops. At last, after advancing some distance up the Aghyl Dere, the column split up into two parts. The 4th Australian Brigade struggled, fighting hard as they went, up to the north of the northern fork of the Aghyl Dere, making for Hill 305 (Koja Chemen Tepe). The 29th Indian Infantry Brigade scrambled up the southern fork of the Aghyl Dere and the spurs north of it to the attack of a portion of the Sari Bair ridge known as Hill Q

Dawn broke and the crest line was not yet in our hands, although, considering all things, the left assaulting column had made a marvellous advance. The 4th Australian Infantry Brigade was on the line of the Asma Dere (the next ravine north of the Aghyl Dere) and the 29th Indian Infantry Brigade held the ridge west of the Farm below Chunuk Bair and along the spurs to the north-east. The enemy had been flung back from ridge to ridge; an excellent line for the renewal of the attack had been secured, and (except for the exhaustion of the troops) the auspices were propitious.

Turning to the right assaulting column, one battalion, the Canterbury Infantry Battalion, clambered slowly up the Sazli Beit Dere. The remainder of the force led by the Otago Battalion, wound their way amongst the pitfalls and forced their passage through the scrub of the Chailak Dere, where fierce opposition forced them ere long to deploy. Here, too, the hopeless country was the main hindrance, and it was not until 5-45 A.M. that the bulk of the column joined the Canterbury Battalion on the lower slopes of Rhododendron Spur. The whole force then moved up the spur, gaining touch with the left assaulting column by means of the 10th Gurkhas, in face of very heavy fire and frequent bayonet charges. Eventually they entrenched on the top of Rhododendron Spur, a quarter of a mile short of Chunuk Bair, i.e., of victory.

At 7 A.M. the 5th and 6th Gurkhas, belonging to the left assaulting column, had approached the main ridge north-east of Chunuk Bair, whilst, on their left, the 14th Sikhs had got into touch with the 4th Australian Brigade on the southern watershed of the Asma Dere. The 4th Australian Brigade now received orders to leave half a battalion to hold the spur, and, with the rest of its strength, plus the 14th Sikhs, to assault Hill 305 (Koja Chemen Tepe). But by this time the enemy's opposition had hardened, and his reserves were moving up from the direction of Battleship Hill. Artillery support was asked for and given, yet by 9 A.M. the attack of the right assaulting column on Chunuk Bair was checked, and any idea of a further advance on Koja Chemen Tepe had to be, for the moment, suspended. The most that could be done was to hold fast to the Asmak Dere watershed whilst attacking the ridge north-east of Chunuk Bair—an attack to be supported by a fresh assault launched against Chunuk Bair itself.

At 9-30 A.M. the two assaulting columns pressed forward whilst our guns pounded the enemy moving along the Battleship Hill spurs. But in spite of all their efforts their increasing exhaustion as opposed to the gathering strength of the enemy's fresh troops began to tell—they had shot their bolt. So all day they clung to what they had captured and strove to make ready for the night. At 11 A.M. three battalions of the 39th Infantry Brigade were sent up from the general reserve to be at hand when needed, and, at the same hour, one more battalion of the reserve was dispatched to the 1st Australian Division to meet the drain caused by all the desperate Lone Pine fighting.

By the afternoon the position of the two assaulting columns was unchanged. The right covering force were in occupation of Table Top, Old No. 3 Post and Bauchop's Hill, which General Russel had been ordered to maintain with two regiments of Mounted Rifles, so that he might have two other regiments and the Maori Contingent available to move as required. The left covering force held Damakjelik Bair. The forces which had attacked along the front of the original Anzac line were back again in their own trenches. The Lone Pine work was being furiously disputed. All had suffered heavily and all were very tired.

So ended the first phase of the fighting for the Chunuk Bair ridge. Our aims had not fully been attained, and the help we had hoped for from Suvla had not been forthcoming. Yet I fully endorse the words of General Birdwood when he says: "The troops had performed a feat which is without parallel."

Great kudos is due to Major-Generals Godley and Shaw for their arrangements; to Generals Russel, Johnston, Cox, and Travers for their leading;

but most of all, as every one of these officers will gladly admit, to the rank and file for their fighting. Nor may I omit to add that the true destroyer spirit with which H. M. S. "Colne" (Commander Claude Seymour, R.N.) and H. M. S. "Chelmer" (Commander Hugh T. England, R.N.) backed us up will live in the grateful memories of the Army.

In the course of this afternoon (7th August) reconnaissances of Sari Bair were carried out and the troops were got into shape for a fresh advance in three columns to take place in the early morning.

The columns were composed as follows:—

Right column, Brigadier-General F. E. Johnston.—26th Indian Mountain Battery (less one section), Auckland Mounted Rifles, New Zealand Infantry Brigade, two battalions, 13th Division, and the Maori Contingent.

Centre and left columns Major-General H. V. Cox.—21st Indian Mountain Battery (less one section), 4th Australian Brigade, 39th Infantry Brigade (less one battalion) with 6th Battalion, South Lancashire Regiment, attached, and the 29th Indian Infantry Brigade.

The right column was to climb up the Chunuk Bair ridge; the left column was to make for the prolongation of the ridge north-east to Koja Chemen Tepe, the topmost peak of the range.

The attack was timed for 4-15 A.M. At the first faint glimmer of dawn observers saw figures moving against the sky-line of Chunuk Bair. Were they our own men, or were they the Turks? Telescopes were anxiously adjusted; the light grew stronger; men were seen climbing up from our side of the ridge; they were our own fellows—the topmost summit was ours!

On the right General Johnston's column, headed by the Wellington Battalion and supported by the 7th Battalion, Gloucestershire Regiment, the Auckland Mounted Rifles Regiment, the 8th Welsh Pioneers, and the Maori Contingent, the whole most gallantly led by Lieutenant-Colonel W. G. Malone, had raced one another up the steep. Nothing could check them. On they went, until with a last determined rush, they fixed themselves firmly on the south-western slopes and crest of the main knoll known as the height of Chunuk Bair. With deep regret I have to add that the brave Lieutenant-Colonel Malone fell mortally wounded as he was marking out the line to be held. The 7th Gloucesters suffered terrible losses here.

The fire was so hot that they never got a chance to dig their trenches deeper than some six inches, and there they had to withstand attack after attack. In the course of these fights every single officer, Company Serjeant-Major, or Company Quartermaster Serjeant, was either killed or wounded, and the Battalion by mid-day consisted of small groups of men commanded by junior non-commissioned officers or privates. Chapter and verse may be quoted for the view that the rank-and-file of an army can not long endure the strain of close hand-to-hand fighting unless they are given confidence by the example of good officers. Yet here is at least one instance where a battalion of the New Army fought right on, from midday till sunset, without any officers.

In the centre the 39th Infantry Brigade and the 29th Indian Brigade moved along the gullies leading up to the Sari Bair ridge—the right moving south of the Farm on Chunuk Bair, the left up the spurs to the north-east of the Farm against a portion of the main ridge north-east of Chunuk Bair, and the col to the north of it. So murderous was the enemy's fire that little progress could be made, though some ground was gained on the spurs to the north-east of the Farm.

On the left the 4th Australian Brigade advanced from the Asmak Dere against the lower slopes of Abdul Rahman Bair (a spur running due north from Koja Chemen Tepe) with the intention of wheeling to its right and advancing up the spur. Cunningly placed Turkish machine-guns and a strong entrenched body of infantry were ready for this move, and the Brigade were unable to get on. At last, on the approach of heavy columns of the enemy, the Australians, virtually surrounded, and having already suffered losses of over 1 0 0. were withdrawn to their original position. Here they stood at bay, and though the men were by now half dead with thirst and with fatigue, they bloodily repulsed attack after attack delivered by heavy columns of Turks.

So stood matters at noon. Enough had been done for honour and much ground had everywhere been gained. The expected support from Suvla hung fire. but the capture of Chunuk Bair was a presage of victory; even the troops who had been repulsed were quite undefeated—quite full of fight—and so it was decided to hold hard as we were till nightfall, and then to essay one more grand attack, wherein the footing gained of Chunuk Bair would this time be used as a pivot.

In the afternoon the battle slackened, excepting always at Lone Pine, where the enemy were still coming on in mass, and being mown down by our fire. Elsewhere the troops were busy digging and getting up water and food, no child's play, with their wretched lines of communication running within musketry range of the enemy.

That evening the New Zealand Brigade, with two regiments of New Zealand Mounted Rifles and the Maoris, held Rhododendron Spur and the south-western slopes of the main knoll of Chunuk Bair The front line was prolonged by the columns of General Cox and General Monash (with the 4th Australian Brigade). Behind the New Zealanders were the 38th Brigade in reserve, and in rear of General Monash two battalions of the 40th Brigade. The inner line was held as before, and the 29th Brigade (less two battalions), had been sent up from the general reserve, and remained still further in rear.

The columns for the renewed attack were composed as follows :—

No. 1 Column, Brigadier-General F. E. Johnston—26th Indian Mountain Battery (less one section), the Auckland and Wellington Mounted Rifles Regiments, the New Zealand Infantry Brigade, and two battalions of the 13th Division.

No. 2 Column, Major-General H. V. Cox—21st Indian Mountain Battery (less one section), 4th Australian Brigade, 39th Brigade (less the 7th Gloucesters relieved), with the 6th Battalion South Lancashire Regiment attached and the Indian Infantry Brigade.

No. 3 Column. Brigadier-General A. H. Baldwin, Commanding 38th Infantry Brigade—Two battalions each from the 38th and 29th Brigades and one from the 40th Brigade.

No. 1 column was to hold and consolidate the ground gained on the 6th, and, in co-operation with the other columns, to gain the whole of Chunuk Bair, and extend to the south-east. No. 2 column was to attack Hill Q on the Chunuk Bair ridge, and No. 3 column was to move from the Chailak Dere, also on Hill Q. This last column was to make the main attack, and the others were to co-operate with it.

At 4-30 A.M. on August 9th the Chunuk Bair ridge and Hill Q were heavily shelled. The naval guns, all the guns on the left flank, and as many as possible from the right flank (whence the enemy's advance could be enfiladed), took part in this cannonade, which rose to its climax at 5 15 A.M., when the whole ridge seemed a mass of flame and smoke. whence huge clouds of dust drifted slowly upwards in strange patterns on to the sky. At 5-16 A.M., this tremendous bombardment was to be switched off on to the flanks and reverse slopes of the heights.

General Baldwin's column had assembled in the Chailak Dere, and was moving up towards General Johnston's headquarters. Our plan contemplated the massing of this column immediately behind the trenches held by the New Zealand Infantry Bridge. Thence it was intended to launch the battalion in successive lines, keeping them as much as possible on the high ground. Infinite trouble had been taken to ensure that the narrow track should be kept clear, guides also were provided ; but in spite of all precautions the darkness, the rough scrub-covered country, its sheer steepness, so delayed the column that they were unable to take full advantage of the configuration of the ground, and, inclining to the left, did not reach the line of the Farm—Chunuk Bair till 5-15 A.M. In plain English, Baldwin, owing to the darkness and the awful country, lost his way—through no fault of his own. The mischance was due to the fact that time did not admit of the detailed careful reconnaissance of routes which is so essential where operations are to be carried out by night.

And now, under that fine leader, Major C. G. L. Allanson, the 6th Gurkhas of the 29th Indian Infantry Brigade pressed up the slopes of Sari Bair, crowned the heights of the column between Chunuk Bair and Hill Q, viewed far beneath them the waters of the Hellespont, viewed the Asiatic shores along which motor transport was bringing supplies to the lighters. Not only did this battalion, as well as some of the 6th South Lancashire Regiment, reach the crest, but they began to attack down the far side of it, firing as they went at the fast retreating enemy. But the fortune of war was against us. At this supreme moment Baldwin's column was still a long way from our trenches on the crest of Chunuk Bair, whence they should even now have been sweeping out towards Q along the whole ridge of the mountain. And instead of Baldwin's support came suddenly a salvo of heavy shell. These falling so unexpectedly among the stormers threw them into terrible confusion. The Turkish Commander saw his chance; instantly his troops were rallied and brought back in a countercharge, and the South Lancashires and Gurkhas, who had seen the promised land and had seemed for a moment to have held victory in their grasp, were forced backwards over the crest and on to the lower slopes whence they had first started.

But where was the main attack—where was Baldwin? When that bold but unlucky commander found he could not possibly reach our trenches on the top of Chunuk Bair in time to take effective part in the fight he deployed for attack where he stood, i.e., at the farm to the left of the New Zealand Brigade's trenches on Rhododendron Spur. Now his men were coming on in fine style and, just as the Turks topped the ridge with shouts of elation, two companies of the 6th East Lancashire Regiment, together with the 10th Hampshire Regiment, charged up our side of the slope with the bayonet. They had gained the high ground immediately below the commanding knoll on Chunuk Bair, and a few minutes earlier would have joined hands with the Gurkhas and South Lancashires and combined with them, would have carried all before them. But the Turks by this time were lining the whole of the high crest in overwhelming numbers. The New Army troops attacked with a fine audacity, but they were flung back from the height and then pressed still further down the slope, until General Baldwin had to withdraw his command to the vicinity of the Farm, whilst the enemy, much encouraged, turned their attention to the New Zealand troops and the two New Army battalions of No. 1 Column still holding the south-west half of the main knoll of Chunuk Bair. Constant attacks urged with fanatical persistence, were met here with a sterner resolution, and although, at the end of the day, our troops were greatly exhausted, they still kept their footing on the summit. And if that summit meant much to us, it meant even more to the Turks. For the ridge covered our landing places, it is true, but it covered not only the Turkish beaches at Kilia Leman and Maidos, but also the Narrows themselves and the road leading northward to Bulair and Constantinople.

That evening our line ran along Rhododendron Spur up to the crest of Chunuk Bair, where about 200 yards were occupied and held by some 800 men. Slight trenches had hastily been dug, but the fatigue of the New Zealanders and the fire of the enemy had prevented solid work being done. The trenches in many places were not more than a few inches deep. They were not protected by wire. Also many officers are of opinion that they had not been well sited in the first instance. On the South African system the main line was withdrawn some twenty-five yards from the crest instead of being actually on the crestline itself, and there were not even look-out posts along the summit. Boer skirmishers would thus have had to show themselves against the skyline before they could annoy. But here we were faced by regulars taught to attack in mass with bayonet or bomb. And the power of collecting overwhelming numbers at very close quarters rested with whichever side held the true skyline in force. From Chunuk Bair the line ran down to the Farm and almost due north to the Asma Dere southern watershed, whence it continued westward to the sea near Asmak Kuyu. On the right the Australian Division was still holding its line and Lone Pine was still being furiously attacked. The first Australian Brigade was now reduced from 2,900 to 1,000, and the total casualties up to 8 P.M. on the 9th amounted to about 8,500. But the troops were still in extraordinarily good heart, and nothing could damp their keenness. The only discontent shown was by men who were kept in reserve.

During the night of the 9th—10th, the New Zealand and new Army troops on Chunuk Bair were relieved. For three days and three nights they had been ceaselessly fighting. They were half dead with fatigue. Their lines of communication started from sea level, ran across trackless ridges and ravines to an altitude of 800 feet, and were exposed all the way to snipers' fire and artillery bombardment. It had become imperative, therefore, to get them enough food, water, and rest; and for this purpose it was imperative also to withdraw them. Chunuk Bair, which they had so magnificently held, was now handed over to two battalions of the 13th Division, which were connected by the 10th Hampshire Regiment with the troops at the farm. General Sir William Birdwood is emphatic on the point that the nature of the ground is such that there was no room on the crest for more than this body of 800 to 1,000 rifles.

The two battalions of the New Army chosen to hold Chunuk Bair were the 6th Loyal North Lancashire Regiment and the 5th Wiltshire Regiment. The first of these arrived in good time and occupied the trenches. Even in the darkness their Commanding Officer, Lieutenant-Colonel Levinge, recognised how dangerouly these trenches were sited, and he began at once to dig observation posts on the actual crest and to strengthen the defences where he could. But he had not time given him to do much. The second battalion, the Wiltshires, were delayed by the intricate country. They did not reach the edge of the entrenchment until 4 A.M., and were then told to lie down in what was believed erroneously to be a covered position.

At daybreak on Tuesday, 10th August, the Turks delivered a grand attack from the line Chunuk Bair-Hill Q against these two battalions, already weakened in numbers, though not in spirit, by previous fighting. First our men were shelled by every enemy gun, and then, at 5-30 A.M., were assaulted by a huge column, consisting of no less than a full division plus a regiment of three battalions. The North Lancashire men were simply overwhelmed in their shallow trenches by sheer weight of numbers, whilst the Wilts, who were caught out in the open, were literally almost annihilated. The ponderous mass of the enemy swept over the crest, turned the right flank of our line below, swarmed round the Hampshires and General Baldwin's column, which had to give ground, and were only extricated with great difficulty and very heavy losses.

Now it was our turn. The warships and the New Zealand and Australian Artillery, the Indian Mountain Artillery Brigade, and the 69th Brigade Royal Field Artillery were getting the chance of a lifetime. As the successive solid lines of Turks topped the crest of the ridge gaps were torn through their formation, and an iron rain fell on them as they tried to reform in the gullies.

Not here only did the Turks pay dearly for their recapture of the vital crest. Enemy reinforcements continued to move up Battleship Hill under heavy and accurate fire from our guns, and still they kept topping the ridges and pouring down the western slopes of the Chunuk Bair as if determined to regain everything they had lost. But once they were over the crest they became exposed not only to the full blast of the guns, naval and military, but also to a battery of ten machine guns belonging to the New Zealand Infantry Brigade, which played upon their serried ranks at close range until the barrels were red hot. Enormous losses were inflicted, specially by these ten machine-guns; and, of the swarms which had once fairly crossed the crest line, only the merest handful ever straggled back to their own side of Chunuk Bair.

At the same time strong forces of the enemy (forces which I had reckoned would have been held back to meet our advance from Suvla Bay) were hurled against the Farm and the spurs to the north-east, where there arose a conflict so deadly that it may be considered as the climax of the four days' fighting for the ridge. Portions of our line were pierced. and the troops driven clean down the hill. At the foot of the hill the men were rallied by Staff Captain Street, who was there supervising the transport of food and water. Without a word. unhesitatingly, they followed him back to the Farm, where they plunged again into the midst of that series of struggles in which generals fought in the ranks and men dropped their scientific weapons and caught one another by the throat. So desperate a battle cannot be described. The Turks came on again and again, fighting magnificently. Our men stood to it, and maintained, by many a deed of daring, the old traditions of their race. There was no flinching. They died in the ranks where they stood. Here Generals Cayley, Baldwin, and Cooper and all their gallant men achieved great glory. On this bloody field fell Brigadier-General Baldwin, who earned his first laurels on Cæsar's Camp at Ladysmith. There, too, fell Brigadier-General Cooper, badly wounded; and there, too, fell Lieutenant-Colonel M. H. Nunn, commanding the 9th Worcestershire Regiment; Lieutenant-Colonel H. G. Levinge, commanding the 6th Loyal North Lancashire Regiment; and Lieutenant-Colonel J. Carden, commanding the 5th Wiltshire Regiment.

Towards this supreme struggle the absolute last two battalions from the General Reserve were now hurried, but by 10 A.M. the effort of the enemy was spent. Soon their shattered remnants began to trickle back, leaving a track of corpses behind them, and by night, except prisoners or wounded, no live Turk was left upon our side of the slope.

That same day, 10th August, two attacks, one in the morning and the other in the afternoon, were delivered on our positions along the Asmak Dere and Damakjelik Bair. Both were repulsed with heavy loss by the 4th Australian Brigade and the 4th South Wales Borderers, the men of the New Army showing all the steadiness of veterans. Sad to say, the Borderers lost their intrepid leader, Lieutenant-Colonel Gillespie, in the course of this affair.

By evening the total casualties of General Birdwood's force had reached 12,000, and included a very large proportion of officers. The 13th Division of the New Army, under Major-General Shaw, had alone lost 6,000 out of a grand total of 10,500. Baldwin was gone and all his staff. Ten Commanding Officers out of thirteen had disappeared from the fighting effectives. The Warwicks and the Worcesters had lost literally every single officer. The old German notion that no unit would stand a loss of more than 25 per cent. had been completely falsified. The 13th Division and the 29th Brigade of the 10th (Irish) Division had lost more than twice that proportion, and, in spirit, were game for as much more fighting as might be required. But physically, though Birdwood's forces were prepared to hold all they had got, they were now too exhausted to attack—at least until they had rested and reorganised. So far they had held on to all they had gained, excepting only the footholds on the ridge between Chunuk Bair and Hill 'Q.' momentarily carried by the Gurkhas, and the salient of Chunuk Bair itself, which they had retained for forty-eight hours. Unfortunately, these two pieces of ground, small and worthless as they seemed, were worth, according to the ethics of war, 10,000 lives, for by their loss or retention they just marked the difference between an important success and a signal victory.

At times I had thought of throwing my reserves into this stubborn central battle, where probably they would have turned the scale. But each time the water troubles made me give up the idea, all ranks at Anzac, being reduced to one pint a day. True thirst is a sensation unknown to the dwellers in cool, well-watered England. But at Anzac, when mules with water "pakhals" arrived at the front, the men would rush up to them in swarms just to lick the moisture that had exuded through the canvas bags. It will be understood, then, that until wells had been discovered under the freshly-won hills, the reinforcing of Anzac by even so much as a brigade was unthinkable.

The grand coup had not come off. The Narrows were still out of sight and beyond field-gun range But this was not the fault of Lieutenant-General Birdwood or any of the officers and men under his command. No mortal can command success; Lieutenant-General Birdwood had done all that mortal man can do to deserve it. The way in which he worked out his instructions into practical arrangements and dispositions upon the terrain reflect high credit upon his military capacity. I also wish to bring to your Lordship's notice the valuable services of Major-General Godley, commanding the New Zealand and Australian Division. He had under him at one time a force amounting to two divisions, which he handled with conspicuous ability. Major-General F. C. Shaw, Commanding 13th Division, also rose superior to all the trials and tests of these trying days. His calm and sound judgment proved to be of the greatest value throughout the arduous fighting I have recorded.

As for the troops, the joyous alacrity with which they faced danger, wounds and death, as if they were some new form of exciting recreation, has astonished me—old campaigner as I am. I will say no more, leaving Major-General Godley to speak for what happened under his eyes:—"I cannot close my report," he says, "without placing on record my unbounded admiration of the work performed, and the gallantry displayed, by the troops and their leaders during the severe fighting involved in these operations. Though the Australian, New Zealand, and Indian units had been confined to trench duty in a cramped space for some four months, and though the troops of the New Armies had only just landed from a sea voyage, and many of them had not been previously under fire, I do not believe that any troops in the world could have accomplished more. All ranks vied with one another in the performance of gallant deeds and more than worthily upheld the best traditions of the British Army."

Although the Sari Bair ridge was the key to the whole of my tactical conception, and although the temptation to view this vital Anzac battle at closer quarters was very hard to resist, there was nothing in its course or conduct to call for my personal intervention.

The conduct of the operations which were to be based upon Suvla Bay was entrusted to Lieutenant-General the Hon'ble Sir F. Stopford. At his disposal was placed the 9th Army Corps, less the 13th Division and the 29th Brigade of the 10th Division.

We believed that the Turks were still unsuspicious about Suvla and that their only defences near that part of the coast were a girdle of trenches round Lala Baba and a few unconnected lengths of fire trench on Hill 10 and on the hills forming the northern arm of the bay. There was no wire. Inland a small work had been constructed on Yilghin Burnu (locally known as Chocolate Hills), and a few guns had been placed upon these hills, as well as upon Ismail Oglu Tepe, whence they could be brought into action either against the beaches of Suvla Bay or against any attempt from Anzac to break out northwards and attack Chunuk Bair. The numbers of the enemy allotted for the defence of the Suvla and Ejelmer areas (including the troops in the Anafarta villages, but exclusive of the general reserves in rear of the Sari Bair) were supposed to be under 4,000. Until the Turkish version of these events is in our hands it is not possible to be certain of the accuracy of this estimate. All that can be said at present is that my Intelligence Department were wonderfully exact in their figures as a rule and that, in the case in question, events, the reports made by prisoners, etc., etc., seem to show that the forecast was correct.

Arrangements for the landing of the 9th Corps at Suvla were worked out in minute detail by my General Headquarters Staff in collaboration with the staff of Vice-Admiral de Robeck, and every precaution was taken to ensure that the destination of the troops was kept secret up to the last moment.

While concentrated at the Island of Imbros the spirit and physique of the 11th Division had impressed me very favourably. They were to lead off the landing. From Imbros they were to be ferried over to the Peninsula in destroyers and motor-lighters. Disembarkation was to begin at 10-30 P.M., half an hour later than the attack on the Turkish out-posts on the northern flank at Anzac, and I was sanguine enough to hope that the elaborate plan we had worked out would enable three complete brigades of infantry to be set ashore by daylight. Originally it had been intended that all three brigades should land on the beach immediately south of Nibrunesi Point, but in deference to the representations of the Corps Commander I agreed, unfortunately, as it turned out, to one brigade being landed inside the bay.

The first task of the 9th Corps was to seize and hold the Chocolate and Ismail Oglu Hills together with the high ground on the north and east of Suvla Bay. If the landing went off smoothly, and if my information regarding the strength of the enemy were correct, I hoped that these hills, with their guns, might be well in our possession before daybreak. In that case I hoped, further, that the first division which landed would be strong enough to picket and hold all the important heights within artillery range of the bay, when General Stopford would be able to direct the remainder of his force, as it became available, through the Anafartas to the east of the Sari Bair, where it should soon smash the mainspring of the Turkish opposition to Anzac.

On the 22nd July I issued secret instruction and tables showing the number of craft available for the 9th Corps Commander, their capacity, and the points whereat the troops could be disembarked; also what numbers of troops, animals, vehicles, and stores could be landed simultaneously. The allocation of troops to the ships and boats was left to General Stopford's own discretion, subject only to naval exigencies, otherwise the order of the disembarkation might not have tallied with the order of his operations.

The factors governing the hour of landing were: First, that no craft could quit Kephalos Bay before dark (about 9 P.M.); secondly, that nothing could be done which would attract the attention of the enemy before 10 P.M., the moment when the outposts on the left flank of the Anzac position were to be rushed.

General Stopford next framed his orders on these secret instructions, and after they had received my complete approval he proceeded to expound them to the General Officer Commanding 11th Division and General Officer Commanding 10th Division, who came over from Mudros for the purpose.

As in the original landing, the luck of calm weather favoured us, and all the embarkation arrangements at Kephalos were carried out by the Royal Navy in their usual ship-shape style. The 11th Division was to be landed at three places, designated and shown on the map as A, B, and C. Destroyers were told off for these landing-places, each destroyer towing a steam-lighter and picket-boat. Every light was to be dowsed, and as they neared the shore the destroyers were to slip their motor-lighters and picket-boats, which would then take the beach and discharge direct on to it. The motor-lighters were new acquisitions since the first landing, and were to prove the greatest possible assistance. They moved five knots an hour under their own engines, and carried 500 men, as well as stores of ammunition and water. After landing their passengers they were to return to the destroyers, and in one trip would empty them also. Ketches with service launches and transport lifeboats were to follow the destroyers and anchor at the entrance of the bay, so that in case of accidents or delays to any one of the motor-lighters a picket-boat could be sent at once to a ketch to pick up a tow of lifeboats and take the place of a disabled motor-lighter. These ketches and tows were afterwards to be used for evacuating the wounded.

H. M. S. "Endymion" and H. M. S. "Theseus" each carrying a thousand men, were also to sail from Imbros after the destroyers, and lying off the beach, were to discharge their troops directly the motor lighters—three to each ship—were ready to convey the men to the shore, i.e., after they had finished disembarking their own loads and those of the destroyers. When this was done—i.e., after three trips—the motor-lighters would be free to go on transporting guns, stores, mules, etc.

The following crafts brought up the rear :—

(1) Two ketches, each towing four horse boats carrying four 18-pounder guns and twenty-four horses.

(2) One ketch, towing horse-boats with forty horses.

(3) The sloop "Aster," with 500 men, towing a lighter containing eight mountain guns.

(4) Three ketches, towing horse-boats containing eight 18-pounder guns and seventy-six horses.

Water-lighters, towed by a tank steamer, were also timed to arrive at A beach at day-light. When they had been emptied they were to return at once to Kephalos to refill from the parent water-ship.

A specially fitted-out steamer, the "Prah" with stores (shown by our experience of 25th April to be most necessary)—i.e., water-pumps, hose, tanks, troughs, entrenching tools, and all ordnance stores requisite for the prompt development of wells or springs—was also sent to Suvla.

So much detail I have felt bound, for the sake of clearness, to give in the body of my despatch. The further detail, showing numbers landed, etc., etc., will be found in the appendix and tables attached.

When originally I conceived the idea of these operations, one of the first points to be weighed was that of the water-supply in the Biyuk Anafarta valley and the Suvla plain. Experience at Anzac had shown quite clearly that the whole plan must be given up unless a certain amount of water could be counted upon, and, fortunately, the information I received was reassuring. But, in case of accidents, and to be on the safe side, so long ago as June had I begun to take steps to counter the chance that we might from one cause or another find difficulty in developing the wells. Having got from the War Office all that they could give me, I addressed myself to India and Egypt, and eventually from these three sources I managed to secure portable receptacles for 100,000 gallons, including petrol tins, milk cans, camel tanks, water bags and "pakhals".

Supplementing these were lighters and water-ships, all under naval control. Indeed, by arrangement with the Admiral, the responsibility of the Army was confined to the emptying of the lighters and the distribution of the water to the troops, the Navy undertaking to bring the full lighters to the shore to replace the empty ones, thus providing a continuous supply.

Finally 3,700 mules, together with 1,750 water carts, were provided for Anzac and Suvla—this in addition to 950 mules already at Anzac. Representatives of the Director of Supplies and Transport at Suvla and Anzac were sent to allot the transport which was to be used for carrying up whatever was most needed by units ashore, whether water, food or ammunition.

This statement, though necessarily brief, will, I hope, suffice to throw some light upon the complexity of the arrangements thought out beforehand in order, so far as was humanly possible, to combat the disorganisation, the hunger and the thirst which lie in wait for troops landing on a hostile beach.

On the evening of 6th August the 11th Division sailed on its short journey from Imbros (Kephalos) to Suvla Bay and, meeting with no mischance, the landing took place, the brigades of the 11th Division getting ashore practically simultaneously; the 32nd and 33rd Brigades at B and C beaches, the 34th at A beach.

The surprise of the Turks was complete. At B and C the beaches were found to be admirably suited to their purpose, and there was no opposition. The landing at A was more difficult, both because of the shoal water and because there the Turkish pickets and sentries—the normal guardians of the coast—were on the alert and active. Some of the lighters grounded a good way from the shore, and men had to struggle towards the beach in as much as four feet six inches of water. Ropes in several instances were carried from the lighters to the shore to help to sustain the heavily accoutred infantry. To add to the difficulties of the 34th Brigade the lighters came under flanking rifle fire from the Turkish outposts at Lala Baba and Ghazi Baba. The enemy even, knowing every inch of the ground, crept down in the very dark night on to the beach itself, mingling with our troops and getting between our firing line and its supports. Fortunately the number of these enterprising foes was but few, and an end was soon put to their activity on the actual beaches by the sudden storming of Lala Baba from the south. This attack was carried out by the 9th West Yorkshire Regiment and the 6th Yorkshire Regiment, both of the 32nd Brigade which had landed at B beach and marched up along the coast. The assault succeeded at once, and without much loss, but both battalions deserve great credit for the way it was delivered in the inky darkness of the night.

The 32nd Brigade was now pushed on to the support of the 34th Brigade, which was held up by another outpost of the enemy on Hill 10 (117 R and S), and it is feared that some of the losses incurred here were due to misdirected fire. While this fighting was still in progress the 11th Battalion, Manchester Regiment, of the 34th Brigade was advancing northwards in very fine style driving the enemy opposed to them back along the ridge of the Karakol Dagh towards the Kiretch Tepe Sirt. Beyond doubt these Lancashire men earned much distinction, fighting with great pluck and grit against an enemy not very numerous perhaps but having an immense advantage in knowledge of the ground. As they got level with Hill 10 it grew light enough to see, and the enemy began to shell. No one seems to have been present who could take hold of the two brigades, the 32nd and 34th, and launch them in a concerted and cohesive attack. Consequently there was confusion and hesitation, increased by gorse fires lit by hostile shell, but redeemed, I am proud to report, by the conspicuously fine, soldierly conduct of several individual battalions. The whole of the Turks locally available were by now in the field, and they were encouraged to counter-attack by the signs of hesitation, but the 9th Lancashire Fusiliers and the 11th Manchester Regiment took them on with the bayonet, and fairly drove them back in disorder over the flaming Hill 10.

As the infantry were thus making good, the two Highland Mountain batteries and one battery, 59th Brigade, Royal Field Artillery, were landed at B beach. Day was now breaking and with the dawn sailed into the bay six battalions of the 10th Division, under Brigadier-General Hill, from Mitylene.

Here perhaps I may be allowed to express may gratitude to the Royal Navy for their share in this remarkable achievement, as well as a very natural pride at staff arrangements, which resulted in the infantry of a whole division and three batteries being landed during a single night on a hostile shore, whilst the arrival of the first troops of the supporting division, from another base distant 120 miles, took place at the very psychological moment when support was most needed, namely, at break of dawn.

The intention of the Corps Commander was to keep the 10th Division on the left, and with it to push on as far forward as possible along the Kiretch Tepe Sirt towards the heights above Ejelmer Bay. He wished, therefore, to land these six battalions of the 10th Division at A beach and, seeing Brigadier-General Hill, he told him that as the left of the 34th Brigade was being hard pressed he should get into touch with General Officer Commanding, 11th Division, and work in support of his left until the arrival of his own Divisional General. But the naval authorities, so General Stopford reports, were unwilling, for some reason not specified, to land these troops at A beach, so that they had to be sent in lighters to C beach, whence they marched by Lala Baba to Hill 10, under fire. Hence were caused loss, delay and fatigue. Also the angle of direction from which these fresh troops entered the fight was not nearly so effective.

The remainder of the 10th Division, three battalions (from Mudros), and with them the G. O. C. Lieutenant-General Sir B. Mahon, began to arrive, and the Naval authorities having discovered a suitable landing place near Ghazi Baba, these battalions were landed there together with one battalion of the 31st Brigade, which had not yet been sent round to "C" beach. By this means it was hoped that both the brigades of the 10th Division would be able to rendezvous about half a mile to the north-west of Hill 10.

After the defeat of the enemy round and about Hill 10, they retreated in an easterly direction towards Sulajik and Kuchuk Anafarta Ova, followed by the 34th and 32nd Brigades of the 11th Division and by the 31st Brigade of the 10th Division, which had entered into the fight, not as the Corps Commander had intended, on the left of the 11th Division, but between Hill 10 and the Salt Lake. I have failed in my endeavours to get some live human detail about the fighting which followed, but I understand from the Corps Commander that the brunt of it fell upon the 31st Brigade of the 10th (Irish) Division, which consisted of the 6th Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers, the 6th Royal Irish Fusiliers, and the 6th Royal Dublin Fusiliers, the last-named battalion being attached to the 31st Brigade.

By the evening General Hammersley had seized Yilghin Burnu (Chocolate Hills) after fight for which he specially commends the 6th Lincoln Regiment and the 6th Border Regiment. At the sametime he reported that he was unable to make any further progress towards the vital point, Ismail Oglu Tepe. At nightfall his brigade and the 31st Brigade were extended from about Hetman Chair through Chocolate Hills, Sulajik, to near Kuchuk Anafarta Ova.

This same day Sir B. Mahon delivered a spirited attack along the Kiretch Tepe Sirt ridge, in support of the 11th Battalion Manchester Regiment, and taking some small trenches en route, secured and established himself on a position extending from the sea about 135 p., through the high ground about the p., of Kiretch Tepe Sirt, to about 135 Z. 8. In front of him, on the ridge, he reported the enemy to be strongly entrenched. The 6th Royal Munster Fusiliers have been named as winning special distinction here. The whole advance was well carried out by the Irishmen over difficult ground against an enemy—500 to 700 Gendarmerie—favoured by the lie of the land.

The weather was very hot, and the new troops suffered much from want of water. Except at the southernmost extremity of the Kiretch Tepe Sirt ridge there was no water in that part of the field, and although it existed in some abundance throughout the area over which the 11th Division was operating, the Corps Commander reports that there was no time to develop its resources. Partly this seems to have been owing to the enemy's fire; partly to a want of that nous which stands by as second nature to the old campaigner; partly it was inevitable. Anyway, for as long as such a state of things lasted, the troops became dependent on the lighters and upon the water brought to the beaches in tins, pakhals, etc.

Undoubtedly the distribution of this water to the advancing troops was a matter of great difficulty, and one which required not only well-worked-out schemes from Corps and Divisional Staffs, but also energy and experience on the part of those who had to put them into practice As it turned out, and judging merely by results, I regret to say that the measures actually taken in regard to the distribution proved to be inadequate, and that suffering and disorganisation ensued. The disembarkation of artillery horses was therefore at once, and rightly, postponed by the Corps Commander, in order that mules might be landed to carry up water.

And now General Stopford, recollecting the vast issues which hung upon his success in forestalling the enemy, urged his Divisional Commanders to push on. Otherwise, as he saw, all the advantages of the surprise landing must be nullified. But the Divisional Commanders believed themselves, it seems, to be unable to move. Their men, they said, were exhausted by their efforts of the night of the 6th-7th and by the action of the 7th. The want of water had told on the new troops. The distribution from the beaches had not worked smoothly. In some cases the hose had been pierced by individuals wishing to fill their own bottles; in others lighters had grounded so far from the beach that men swam out to fill batches of water bottles. All this had added to the disorganisation inevitable after a night landing, followed by fights here and there with an enemy scattered over a country to us unknown. These pleas for delay were perfectly well founded. But it seems to have been overlooked that the half-defeated Turks in front of us were equally exhausted and disorganised, and that an advance was the simplest and swiftest method of solving the water trouble and every other sort of trouble. Be this as it may, the objections overbore the Corps Commander's resolution. He had now got ashore three batteries (two of them mountain batteries), and the great guns of the ships were ready to speak at his request. But it was lack of artillery support which finally decided him to acquiesce in a policy of going slow which, by the time it reached the troops, became translated into a period of inaction. The Divisional Generals were, in fact, informed that "in view of the inadequate artillery support," General Stopford did not wish them to make frontal attacks on entrenched positions, but desired them, so far as was possible, to try and turn any trenches which were met with. Within the terms of this instruction lies the root of our failure to make use of the priceless daylight hours of the 8th of August.

Normally, it may be correct to say that in modern warfare infantry cannot be expected to advance without artillery preparation. But in a landing on a hostile shore the order has to be inverted. The infantry must advance and seize a suitable position to cover the landing, and to provide artillery positions for the main thrust. The very existence of the force, its water-supply, its facilities for munitions and supplies, its power to reinforce, must absolutely depend on the infantry being able instantly to make good sufficient ground without the aid of the artillery other than can be supplied for the purpose by floating batteries.

This is not a condition that should take the commander of a covering force by surprise. It is one already foreseen. Driving power was required, and even a certain ruthlessness, to brush aside pleas for a respite for tired troops. The one fatal error was inertia. And inertia prevailed.

Late in the evening of the 7th the enemy had withdrawn the few guns which had been in action during the day. Beyond half a dozen shells dropped from very long range into the bay in the early morning of the 8th, no enemy artillery fired that day in the Suvla area. The guns had evidently been moved back, lest they should be captured when we pushed forward. As for the entrenched positions, these in the ordinary acceptance of the term, were non-existent. The General Staff Officer whom I had sent on to Suvla early in the morning of the 8th reported by telegraph the absence of hostile gun-fire, the small amount of rifle fire, and the enemy's apparent weakness. He also drew attention to the inaction of our own troops, and to the fact that golden opportunities were being missed. Before this message arrived at general headquarters I had made up my mind, from the Corps Commander's own reports, that all was not well at Suvla. There was risk in cutting myself adrift, even temporarily, from touch with the operations at Anzac and Helles; but I did my best to provide against any sudden call by leaving Major-General W. P. Braithwaite, my Chief of the General Staff, in charge, with instructions to keep me closely informed of events at the other two fronts; and having done this, I took ship and set out for Suvla.

On arrival at about 5 P.M. I boarded H.M.S. "Jonquil," where I found corps headquarters, and where General Stopford informed me that the General Officer Commanding, 11th Division, was confident of success in an attack he was to make at dawn next morning (the 9th). I felt no such confidence. Beyond a small advance by a part of the 11th Division between the Chocolate Hills and Ismail Oglu Tepe, and some further progress along the Kiretch Tepe Sirt ridge by the 10th Division, the day of the 8th had been lost. The commander of the 11th Division had, it seems, ordered strong patrols to be pushed forward so as to make good all the strong positions in advance which could be occupied without serious fighting; but, as he afterwards reported, "little was done in this respect." Thus a priceless twelve hours had already gone to help the chances of the Turkish reinforcements which were, I knew, both from naval and aerial sources, actually on the march for Suvla. But when I urged that even now, at the eleventh hour, the 11th Division should make a concerted attack upon the hills, I was met by a non possumus. The objections of the morning were no longer valid: the men were now well rested, watered, and fed. But the divisional commanders disliked the idea of an advance by night, and General Stopford did not care, it seemed, to force their hands.

So it came about that I was driven to see whether I could not, myself, put concentration of effort and purpose into the direction of the large number of men ashore. The Corps Commander made no objection. He declared himself to be as eager as I could be to advance. The representations made by the Divisional Commanders had seemed to him insuperable. If I could see my way to get over them no one would be more pleased than himself.

Accompanied by Commodore Roger Keyes and Lieutenant-Colonel Aspinall, of the Headquarters General Staff, I landed on the beach, where all seemed quiet and peaceful, and saw the Commander of the 11th Division, Major-General Hammersley. I warned him the sands were running out fast, and that by dawn the high ground to his front might very likely be occupied in force by the enemy. He saw the danger, but declared that it was a physical impossibility, at so late an hour (6 P.M.), to get out orders for a night attack, the troops being very much scattered. There was no other difficulty now, but this was insuperable; he could not recast his orders or get them round to his troops in time. But one brigade, the 32nd, was, so General Hammersley admitted, more or less concentrated and ready to move. The General Staff Officer of the division Colonel Neil Malcolm, a soldier of experience, on whose opinion I set much value, was consulted. He agreed that the 32nd Brigade was now in a position to act. I, therefore, issued a direct order that, even if it were only with this 32nd Brigade, the advance should begin at the earliest possible moment, so that a portion at least of the 11th Division should anticipate the Turkish reinforcements on the heights and dig themselves in there upon some good tactical point.

In taking upon myself the serious responsiblity of thus dealing with a detail of divisional tactics I was careful to limit the scope of the interference. Beyond directing that the one brigade which was reported ready to move at once should try and make good the heights before the enemy got on to them I did nothing, and said not a word calculated to modify or in any way affect the attack already planned for the morning. Out of the thirteen battalions which were to have advanced against the heights at dawn four were now to anticipate that movement by trying to make good the key of the enemy's position at once and under cover of darkness.

I have not been able to get a clear and coherent account of the doings of the 32nd Brigade; but I have established the fact that it did not actually commence its advance till 4 A.M. on the 9th of August. The reason given is that the units of the brigade were scattered. In General Stopford's despatch he says that, "One company of the 6th East Yorks Pioneer Battalion succeeded in getting to the top of the hill north of Anafarta Sagir, but the rest of the battalion and the 32nd Brigade were attacked from both flanks during their advance, and fell back to a line north and south of Sulajik. Very few of the leading company or the Royal Engineers who accompanied it got back, and that evening the strength of the battalion was nine officers and 380 men."

After their retirement from the hill north of Anafarta Sagir (which commanded the whole battlefield) this 32nd Brigade then still marked the high-water level of the advance made at dawn by the rest of the division. When their first retirement was completed they had to fall back further, so as to come into line with the most forward of their comrades The inference seems clear. Just as the 32nd Brigade in their advance met with markedly less opposition than the troops who attacked an hour and a half later, so, had they themselves started earlier, they would probably have experienced less opposition. Further, it seems reasonable to suppose that had the complete division started at 4 A.M. on the 9th, or, better still, at 10 P M on the 8th, they would have made good the whole of the heights in front of them.

That night I stayed at Suvla, preferring to drop direct cable contact with my operations as a whole to losing touch with a corps battle which seemed to be going wrong.

At dawn on the 9th I watched General Hammersley's attack, and very soon realised by the well-sustained artillery fire of the enemy (so silent the previous day), and by the volume of the musketry, that Turkish reinforcements had arrived; that with the renewed confidence caused by our long delay the guns had been brought back; and that, after all, we were forestalled. This was a bad moment. Our attack failed; our losses were very serious. The enemy's enfilading shrapnel fire seemed to be especially destructive and demoralising, the shell bursting low and all along our line. Time after time it threw back our attack just as it seemed upon the point of making good. The 33rd Brigade at first made most hopeful progress in its attempt to seize Ismail Oglu Tepe. Some of the leading troops gained the summit, and were able to look over on to the other side. Many Turks were killed here. Then the centre seemed to give way. Whether this was the result of the shrapnel fire or whether as some say, an order to retire came up from the rear, the result was equally fatal to success. As the centre fell back the steady, gallant behaviour of the 6th Battalion, Border Regiment, and the 6th Battalion, Lincoln Regiment, on either flank was especially noteworthy. Scrub fires on Hill 70 did much to harass and hamper our troops. When the 32nd Brigade fell back before attacks from the slopes of the hill north of Anafarta Sagir and from the direction of Abrijka they took up the line north and south through Sulajik. Here their left was protected by two battalions of the 34th Brigade, which came up to their support. The line was later on prolonged by the remainder of the 34th Brigade and two battalions of the 159th Brigade of the 53rd Division. Their right was connected with the Chocolate Hills by the 33rd Brigade on the position to which they had returned after their repulse from the upper slopes of Ismail Oglu Tepe.

Some of the units which took part in this engagement acquitted themselves very bravely. I regret I have not had sufficient detail given me to enable me to mention them by name. The Divisional Commander speaks with appreciation of one freshly-landed battalion of the 53rd Division, a Hereford battalion, presumbly the 1-1st Herefordshire, which attacked with impetuosity and courage between Hetman Chair and Kaslar Chair, about Azmak Dere, on the extreme right of his line.

During the night of the 8th-9th and early morning of the 9th the whole of the 53rd (Territorial) Division (my general reserve) had arrived and disembarked. I had ordered it up to Suvla, hoping that by adding its strength to the 9th Corps General Stopford might still be enabled to secure the commanding ground round the bay. The infantry brigades of the 53rd Division (no artillery had accompanied it from England) reinforced the 11th Division.

On August 10th the Corps Commander decided to make another attempt to take the Anafarta ridge. The 11th Division were not sufficiently rested to play a prominent part in the operation, but the 53rd Division, under General Lindley, was to attack, supported by General Hammersley. On the 10th there were one brigade of Royal Field Artillery ashore, with two mountain batteries, and all the ships' guns were available to co-operate. But the attack failed though the Corps Commander considers that seasoned troops would have succeeded, especially as the enemy were showing signs of being shaken by our artillery fire. General Stopford points out, however, and rightly so, that the attack was delivered over very difficult country, and that it was a high trial for troops who had never been in action before, and with no regulars to set a standard. Many of the battalions fought with great gallantry, and were led forward with much devotion by their officers. At a moment when things were looking dangerous two battalions of the 11th Division (not specified by the Corps Commander) rendered very good service on the left of the Territorials. At the end of the day our troops occupied the line Hill east of Chocolate Hill—Sulajik, whilst the enemy—who had been ably commanded throughout—were still receiving reinforcements, and, apart from their artillery, were three times as strong as they had been on the 7th August.

Orders were issued to the General Officer Commanding 9th Corps to take up and entrench a line across the whole front from near the Azmak Dere, through the knoll east of the Chocolate Hill, to the ground held by the 10th Division about Kiretch Tepe Sirt. General Stopford took advantage of this opportunity to re-organise the divisions, and, as there was a gap in the line between the left of the 53rd Division, and the right of the 10th Division, gave orders for the preparation of certain strong points to enable it to be held.

The 54th Division (infantry only) arrived, and were disembarked on August 11th and placed in reserve. On the following day—August 12th—I proposed that the 54th Division should make a night march in order to attack, at dawn on the 13th, the heights Kavak Tepe—Teke Tepe. The Corps Commander having reason to believe that the enclosed country about Kuchuk Anafarta Ova and the north of it was held by the enemy, ordered one brigade to move forward in advance, and make good Kuchuk Anafarta Ova, so as to ensure an unopposed march for the remainder of the division as far as that place. So that afternoon the 163rd Brigade moved off, and, in spite of serious opposition, established itself about the A of Anafarta (118m. 4 and 7), in difficult and enclosed country. In the course of the fight, creditable in all respects to the 163rd Brigade, there happened a very mysterious thing. The 1-5th Norfolks were on the right of the line, and found themselves for a moment less strongly opposed than the rest of the brigade.

Against the yielding forces of the enemy Colonel Sir H. Beauchamp, a bold, self-confident officer, eagerly pressed forward followed by the best part of the battalion. The fighting grew hotter, and the ground became more wooded and broken. At this stage many men were wounded or grew exhausted with thirst. These found their way back to camp during the night. But the Colonel with 16 officers and 240 men, still kept pushing on, driving the enemy before him. Amongt these ardent souls was part of a fine company enlisted from the King's Sandringham estates. Nothing more was ever seen or heard of any of them. They charged into the forest, and were lost to sight or sound. Not one of them ever came back.

The night march and projected attack were now abandoned, owing to the Corps Commander's representations as to the difficulties of keeping the division supplied with food, water, etc., even should they gain the height. General Birdwood had hoped he would soon be able to make a fresh attack on Sari Bair, provided that he might reckon on a corresponding vigorous advance to be made by the 11th and 54th Divisions on Ismail Oglu Tepe. On August 13th I so informed General Stopford. But when it came to business General Birdwood found he could not yet carry out his new attack on Sari Bair—and, indeed, could only help the 9th Corps with one brigade from Damakjelik Bair. I was obliged, therefore, to abandon this project for the nonce, and directed General Stopford to confine his attention of strengthening his line across his present front. To straighten out the left of this line General Stopford ordered the General Officer Commanding the 10th Division to advance on the following day (15th August), so as to gain possession of the Kiretch Tepe Sirt, the 54th Division to co-operate.

The 30th and 31st Infantry Brigades of the 10th Irish Division were to attack frontally along the high ridge. The 162nd Infantry Brigade of the 54th Division were to support on the right. The infantry were to be seconded by a machine-gun detachment of the Royal Naval Air Service, by the guns of H.M.S. "Grampus," and H.M.S. "Foxhound" from the Gulf of Saros, by the Argyll Mountain Battery, the 15th Heavy Battery, and the 58th Field Battery. After several hours of indecisive artillery and musketry fighting, the 6th Royal Dublin Fusiliers charged forward with loud cheers, and captured the whole ridge, together with eighteen prisoners. The vigorous support rendered by the naval guns was a feature of this operation. Unfortunately, the point of the ridge was hard to hold, and means for maintaining the forward trenches had not been well thought out. Casualties became very heavy, the 5th Royal Irish Fusiliers having only one officer left, and the 5th Inniskilling Fusiliers also losing heavily in officers. Reinforcements were promised, but before they could arrive the officer left in command decided to evacuate the front trenches. The strength of the Turks opposed to us was steadily rising, and had had now reached 20,000.

On the evening of the August 15th General Stopford handed over command of the 9th Corps.

The units of the 10th and 11th Divisions had shown their mettle when they leaped into the water to get more quickly to close quarters, or when they stormed Lala Baba in the darkness. They had shown their resolution later when they tackled the Chocolate Hills and drove the enemy from Hill 10 right back out of rifle range from the beaches

Then had come hesitation. The advantage had not been pressed. The senior Commanders at Suvla had had no personal experience of the new trench warfare; of the Turkish methods; of the paramount importance of time. Strong, clear leadership had not been promptly enough applied. These were the reasons which induced me, with your Lordship's approval, to appoint Major-General H. de B. De Lisle to make over temporary command.

I had already seen General De Lisle on his way from Cape Helles, and my formal instructions—full copy in Appendix—were handed to him by my Chief of the General Staff. Under these he was to make it is most pressing business to get the Corps into fighting trim again, so that as big a proportion of it as possible might be told off for a fresh attack upon Ismail Oglu Tepe and the Anafarta spur. At his disposal were placed the 10th Division (less one brigade), the 11th Division, the 53rd and 54th Divisions—a force imposing enough on paper, but totalling, owing to casualties, under 30,000 rifles.

The fighting strength of ourselves and our adversaries stood at this time at about the following figures :—Lieutenant-General Birdwood commanded 25,000 rifles at Anzac; Lieutenant-General Davies, in the southern zone, commanded 23,000 rifles; whilst the French corps alongside of him consisted of some 17,000 rifles. The Turks had been very active in the south, doubtless to prevent us reinforcing Anzac or Suvla; but it is doubtful if there were more than 35,000 of them in that region. The bulk of the enemy were engaged against Anzac or were in reserve in the valleys east and north of Sari Bair. Their strength was estimated at 75,000 rifles.

The Turks then, I reckoned, had 110,000 rifles to our 95,000, and held all the advantages of ground; they had plenty of ammunition, also drafts wherewith to refill ranks depleted in action within two or three days. My hopes that these drafts would be of poor qualify had been every time disappointed. After weighing all these points, I sent your Lordship a long cable. In it I urged that if the campaign was to be brought to a quick, victorious decision, large reinforcements must at once be sent out. Autumn, I pointed out, was already upon us, and there was not a moment to be lost. At that time (August 16th) my British divisions alone were 45,000 under establishment, and some of my fine battalions had dwindled down so far that I had to withdraw them from the fighting line. Our most vital need was the replenishment of these sadly depleted ranks. When that was done I wanted 50,000 fresh rifles. From what I knew of the Turkish situation, both in its local and general aspects, it seemed, humanly speaking, a certainty that if this help could be sent to be at once we could still clear a passage for our fleet to Constantinople.

It may be judged, then, how deep was my disappointment when I learnt that the essential drafts, reinforcements and munitions could not be sent to me, the reason given being one which prevented me from any further insistence. So I resolved to do my very best with the means at my disposal, and forthwith reinforced the northern wing with the 2nd Mounted Division (organised as dismounted troops from Egypt and the 29th Division from the southern area. These movements, and the work of getting the 9th Corps and attached divisions into battle array took time, and it was not until the 21st that I was ready to renew the attack—an attack to be carried out under very different conditions from those of the 7th and 8th August.

The enemy's positions were now being rapidly entrenched, and, as I could not depend on receiving reinforcing drafts, I was faced with the danger that if I could not drive the Turks back I might lose so many men that I would find myself unable to hold the very extensive new area of ground which had been gained. I therefore decided to mass every available man against Ismail Oglu Tepe, a sine quâ non to my plans whether as a first step towards clearing the valley, or, if this proved impossible, towards securing Suvla Bay and Anzac Cove from shell fire.

The scheme for this attack was well planned by General De Lisle. The 53rd and 54th Divisions were to hold the enemy from Sulajik to Kiretch Tepe Sirt while the 29th Division and 11th Division stormed Ismail Oglu Tepe. Two brigades, 10th Division and the 2nd Mounted Division, were retained in Corps Reserve. I arranged that General Birdwood should cooperate by swinging forward his left flank to Susuk Kuyu and Kaiajik Aghala. Naturally I should have liked still further to extend the scope of my attack by ordering an advance of the 9th Corps all along their line, but many of the battalions had been too highly tried, and I felt it was unwise to call upon them for another effort so soon. The attack would only be partial, but it was an essential attack if any real progress was to be made. Also, once the Anafarta ridge was in my hands the enemy would be unable to reinforce through the gap between the two Anafartas, and then, so I believed, my left would find no difficulty in getting on.

My special objective was the hill which forms the south-west corner of the Anafarta Sagir spur. Ismail Oglu Tepe, as it is called, forms a strong natural barrier against an invader from the Ægean who might wish to march direct against the Anafartas. The hill rises 350 feet from the plain, with steep spurs jutting out to the west and south-west, the whole of it covered with dense holly oak scrub, so nearly impenetrable that it breaks up an attack and forces troops to move in single file along goat tracks between the bushes. The comparatively small number of guns landed up to date was a weakness, seeing we had now to storm trenches, but the battleships were there to back us, and as the bombardment was limited to a narrow front of a mile it was hoped the troops would find themselves able to carry the trenches and that the impetus of the charge would carry them up to the top of the crest. Our chief difficulty lay in the open nature and shallow depth of the ground available for the concentration for attack. The only cover we possessed was the hill Lala Baba, 200 yards from the sea, and Yilghin Burnu, half a mile from the Turkish front, the ground between these two being an exposed plain. The 29th Division, which was to make the attack on the left, occupied the front trenches during the preceding night; the 11th Division, which was to attack on the right, occupied the front trenches on the right of Yilghin Burnu.

By some freak of nature Suvla Bay and plain were wrapped in a strange mist on the afternoon of the 21st of August. This was sheer bad luck, as we had reckoned on the enemy's gunners being blinded by the declining sun and upon the Turkish trenches being shown up by the evening light with singular clearness, as would have been the case on ninety-nine days out of a hundred. Actually we could hardly see the enemy lines this afternoon, whereas out to the westward targets stood out in strong relief against the luminous mist. I wished to postpone the attack, but for various reasons this was not possible, and so, from 2-30 P.M. to 3 P.M., a heavy but none too accurate artillery bombardment from land and sea was directed against the Turkish first line of trenches, whilst twenty-four machine-guns in position on Yilghin Burnu did what they could to lend a hand.

At 3 P.M., an advance was begun by the infantry on the right of the line. The 34th Brigade of the 11th Division rushed the Turkish trenches between Hetman Chair and Aire Kavak, practically without loss, but the 32nd Brigade, directed against Hetman Chair and the communication trench connecting that point with the south-west corner of the Ismail Oglu Tepe spur, failed to make good its point. The brigade had lost direction in the first instance, moving north-east instead of east, and though it attempted to carry the communication trench from the north-east with great bravery and great disregard of life, it never succeeded in rectifying the original mistake. The 33rd Brigade, sent up in haste with orders to capture this communication trench at all costs, fell into precisely the same error, part of it marching north-east and part south-east to Susuk Kuyu.

Meanwhile the 29th Division, whose attack had been planned for 3-30 P.M., had attacked Scimitar Hill (Hill 70) with great dash. The 87th Brigade, on the left, carried the trenches on Scimitar Hill, but the 86th Brigade were checked and upset by a raging forest fire across their front. Eventually pressing on, they found themselves unable to advance up the valley between the two spurs owing to the failure of the 32nd Brigade of the 11th Division on their right. The brigade then tried to attack eastwards, but were decimated by a cross fire of shell and musketry from the north and south-east. The leading troops were simply swept off the top of the spur, and had to fall back to a ledge south-west of Scimitar Hill, where they found a little cover. Whilst this fighting was in progress the 2nd Mounted Division moved out from Lala Baba in open formation to take up a position of readiness behind Yilghin Burnu. During this march they came under a remarkably steady and accurate artillery fire. The advance of these English Yeomen was a sight calculated to send a thrill of pride through anyone with a drop of English blood running in their veins. Such superb martial spectacles are rare in modern war. Ordinarily it should always be possible to bring up reserves under some sort of cover from shrapnel fire. Here, for a mile and a half, there was nothing to conceal a mouse, much less some of the most stalwart soldiers England has ever sent from her shores. Despite the critical events in other parts of the field, I could hardly take my glasses from the Yeomen; they moved like men marching on parade. Here and there a shell would take toll of a cluster; there they lay; there was no straggling; the others moved steadily on; not a man was there who hung back or hurried. But such an ordeal must consume some of the battle-winning fighting energy of those subjected to it, and it is lucky indeed for the Turks that the terrain, as well as the lack of trenches, forbade us from letting the 2nd Mounted Division loose at close quarters to the enemy without undergoing this previous too heavy baptism of fire.

Now that the 11th Division had made their effort, and failed, the 2nd South Midland Brigade (commanded by Brigadier-General Earl of Longford) was sent forward from its position of readiness behind Yilghin Burnu, in the hope that they might yet restore the fortunes of the day. This brigade, in action for the first time, encountered both bush fires and musketry without flinching, but the advance had in places to be almost by inches, and the actual close attack by the Yeomen did not take place until night was fast falling. On the left they reached the foremost line of the 29th Division, and on the right also they got as far as the leading battalions. But, as soon as it was dark, one regiment pushed up the valley between Scimitar Hill and Hill 100 (on Ismail Oglu Tepe), and carried the trenches on a small knoll near the centre of this horseshoe. The regiment imagined it had captured Hill 100, which would have been a very notable success, enabling as it would the whole of our line to hang on and dig in. But when the report came in some doubt was felt as to its accuracy, and a reconnaissance by staff officers showed that the knoll was a good way from Hill 100, and that a strongly-held semi-circle of Turkish trenches (the enemy having been heavily reinforced) still denied us access to the top of the hill. As the men were too done, and had lost too heavily to admit of a second immediate assault, and as the knoll actually held would have been swept by fire at daybreak, there was nothing for it but to fall back under cover of darkness to our original line. The losses in this attack fell most heavily on the 29th Division. They were just under 5,000.

I am sorry not to be able to give more detail as to the conduct of individuals and units during this battle. But the 2nd South Midland Brigade has been brought to my notice, and it consisted of the Bucks Yeomanry, the Berks Yeomanry and the Dorset Yeomanry. The Yeomanry fought very bravely, and on personal, as well as public, grounds I specially deplore the loss of Brigadier-General Earl of Longford, K.P., M.V.O., and Brigadier-General P. A. Kenna, V.C., D.S.O., A.D.C.

The same day, as pre-arranged with General Birdwood, a force consisting of two battalions of New Zealand Mounted Rifles, two battalions of the 29th Irish Brigade, the 4th South Wales Borderers, and 29th Indian Infantry Brigade, the whole under the command of Major-General H. V. Cox, was working independently to support the main attack.

General Cox divided his force into three sections; the left section to press forward and establish a permanent hold on the existing lightly-held outpost line covering the junction of the 11th Division with the Anzac front; the centre section to seize the well at Kabak Kuyu, an asset of utmost value, whether to ourselves or the enemy; the right section to attack and capture the Turkish trenches on the north-east side of the Kaiajik Aghala.

The advance of the left section was a success; after a brisk engagement the well at Kabak Kuyu was seized by the Indian Brigade, and, by 4-30, the right column, under Brigade-General Russell, under heavy fire, effected a lodgment on the Kaiajik Aghala, where our men entrenched, and began to dig communications across the Kaiajik Dere towards the lines of the 4th Australian Brigade south of the Dere. A pretty stiff bomb fight ensued, in which General Russell's troops held their own through the night against superior force. At 6 A.M. on the morning of the 22nd August General Russell, reinforced by the newly-arrived 18th Australian Battalion, attacked the summit of the Kaiajik Aghala. The Australians carried 150 yards of the trenches, losing heavily in so doing, and were then forced to fall back again owing to enfilade fire, though in the meantime the New Zealand Mounted Rifle managed, in spite of constant counter-attacks, to make good another 80 yards. A counter-attack in strength launched by the Turks at 10 A.M., was repulsed; the new line from the Kaiajik Aghala to Susuk Kuyu was gradually strengthened, and eventually joined on the right of the 9th Army Corps, thereby materially improving the whole situation. During this action the 4th Australian Brigade, which remained facing the Turks on the upper part of the Kaiajik Aghala, was able to inflict several hun dred casualties on the enemy as they retreated or endeavoured to reinforce.

On the 21st of August we had carried the Turkish entrenchments at several points, but had been unable to hold what we had gained except along the section where Major-General Cox had made a good advance with Anzac and Indian troops. To be repulsed is not to be defeated, as long as the commander and his troops are game to renew the attack. All were eager for such a renewal of the offensive; but clearly we would have for some time to possess our souls in patience, seeing that re-inforcements and munitions were short, that we were already outnumbered by the enemy, and that a serious outbreak of sickness showed how it had become imperative to give a spell of rest to the men who had been fighting so magnificently and so continuously. To calculate on rest, it may be suggested was to calculate without the enemy. Such an idea has no true bearing on the feelings of the garrison of the peninsula. That the Turks should attack had always been the earnest prayer of all of us, just as much after the August 21st as before it. And now that we had to suspend progress for a bit, work was put in hand upon the line from Suvla to Anzac, a minor offensive routine of sniping and bombing was organised, and, in a word, trench warfare set in on both sides.

On August 24th Lieutenant-General the Hon. J. H. G. Byng, K.C.M.G., C.B., M.V.O., assumed command of the 9th Army Corps.

The last days of the month were illumined by a brilliant affair carried through by the troops under General Birdwood's command. Our object was to complete the capture of Hill 60 north of the Kaiajik Aghala, commenced by Major-General Cox on the August 21st. Hill 60 overlooked the Biyuk Anafarta valley, and was therefore tactically a very important feature.

The conduct of the attack was again entrusted to Major-General Cox, at whose disposal were placed detachments from the 4th and 5th Australian Brigades, the New Zealand Mounted Rifles Brigade, and the 5th Connaught Rangers. The advance was timed to take place at 5 P.M. on the 27th of August, after the heaviest artillery bombardment we could afford. This bombardment seemed effective; but the moment the assailants broke cover they were greeted by an exceeding hot fire from the enemy field guns, rifles, and machine-guns, followed after a brief interval by a shower of heavy shell, some of which, most happily, pitched into the trenches of the Turks. On the right the detachment from the 4th and 5th Australian Brigades could make no headway against a battery of machine-guns which confronted them. In the centre the New Zealanders made a most determined onslaught, and carried one side of the topmost knoll. Hand-to-hand fighting continued here till 9-30 P.M. when it was reported that nine-tenths of the summit had been gained. On the left the 250 men of the 5th Connaught Rangers excited the admiration of all beholders by the swiftness and cohesion of their charge. In five minutes they had carried their objective, the northern Turkish communications, when they at once set to and began a lively bomb-fight along the trenches against strong parties which came hurrying up from the enemy supports and afterwards from their reserves. At midnight fresh troops were to have strengthened our grip upon the hill, but before that hour the Irishmen had been out-bombed, and the 9th Australian Light Horse, who had made a most plucky attempt to recapture the lost communication trench, had been repulsed Luckily, the New Zealand Mounted Rifles refused to recognize that they were worsted. Nothing would shift them. All that night and all next day, through bombing, bayonet charges, musketry, shrapnel, and heavy shell, they hung on to their 150 yards of trench. At 1 A.M. on August 29th the 10th Light Horse made another attack on the lost communication trenches to the left, carried them, and finally held them. This gave us complete command of the underfeature, an outlook over the Anafarta Sagir valley, and safer lateral communications between Anzac and Suvla Bay.

Our casualties in this hotly contested affair amounted to 1,000. The Turks lost out of all proportion more. Their line of retreat was commanded from our Kaiajik Dere trenches, whence our observers were able to direct artillery fire equally upon their fugitives and their reinforcements. The same observers estimated the Turkish casualties as no less than 5,000. Three Turkish machine-guns and forty-six prisoners were taken, as well as three trench mortars, 300 Turkish rifles, 60,000 rounds of ammunition, and 500 bombs. Four hundred acres were added to the territories of Anzac. Major-General Cox showed his usual forethought and wisdom. Brigadier-General Russell fought his men splendidly.

My narrative of battle incidents must end here. From this date onwards up to the date of my departure on October 17th the flow of munitions and drafts fell away. Sickness, the legacy of a desperately trying summer, took heavy toll of the survivors of so many arduous conflicts. No longer was there any question of operations on the grand scale, but with such troops it was difficult to be downhearted. All ranks were cheerful; all remained confident that, so long as they stuck to their guns, their country would stick to them, and see them victoriously through the last and greatest of the crusades.

On the October 11th your Lordship cabled asking me for an estimate of the losses which would be involved in an evacuation of the peninsula. On the October 12th I replied in terms showing that such a step was to me unthinkable. On the October 16th I received a cable recalling me to London for the reason, as I was informed by your Lordship on my arrival, that His Majesty's Government desired a fresh, unbiased opinion, from a responsible Commander, upon the question of early evacuation.

In bringing this dispatch to a close I wish to refer gratefully to the services rendered by certain formations, whose work has so far only been recognized by a sprinkling of individual rewards.

Much might be written on the exploits of the Royal Naval Air Service, but these bold flyers are laconic, and their feats will mostly pass unrecorded. Yet let me here thank them, with their Commander, Colonel F. H Sykes, of the Royal Marines, for the nonchalance with which they appear to affront danger and death, when and where they can. So doing, they quicken the hearts of their friends on land and sea—an asset of greater military value even than their bombs or aerial reconnaissances, admirable in all respects as these were.

With them I also couple the Service de l'Aviation of the Corps Expeditionnaire d'Orient, who daily wing their way in and out of the shrapnel under the distinguished leadership of M. le Capitaine Césari.

The Armoured Car Division (Royal Naval Air Service) have never failed to respondent to any call which might be made upon them. Their organisation was broken up; their work had to be carried out under strange conditions—from the bows of the "River Clyde," as independent batteries attached to infantry divisions, etc., etc.—and yet they were always cheerful, always ready to lend a hand in any sort of fighting that might give them a chance of settling old scores with the enemy.

Next I come to the Royal Artillery. By their constant vigilance, by their quick grasp of the key to every emergency, by their thundering good shooting, by hundreds of deeds of daring, they have earned the unstinted admiration of all their comrade services. Where all fought so remarkably the junior officers deserve a little niche of their own in the Dardanelles record of fame. Their audacity in reconnaissance, their insouciance under the hotest of fires, stand as a fine example not only to the Army, but to the nation at large.

A feature of every report, narrative or diary I have read has been a tribute to the stretcher bearers. All ranks, from Generals in command to wounded men in hospital, are unanimous in their praise. I have watched a party from the moment when the telephone summoned them from their dug-out to the time when they returned with their wounded. To see them run lightheartedly across fire-swept slopes is to be privileged to witness a superb example of the hero in man. No braver corps exists, and I believe the reason to be that all thought of self is instinctively flung aside when the saving of others is the motive.

The services rendered by Major-General (temporary Lieutenant-General) E. A. Altham, C.B., C.M.G., Inspector-General of Communications, and all the Departments and Services of the Lines of Communication assured us a life-giving flow of drafts, munitions and supplies. The work was carried out under unprecedented conditions, and is deserving, I submit, of handsome recognition.

With General Altham were associated Brigadier-General (temporary Major-General) C. R. R. McGrigor, C.B., at first Commandant of the Base at Alexandria and later Deputy Inspector-General of Communications, and Colonel T. E. O'Leary, Deputy Adjutant-General, 3rd Echelon. Both of these officers carried out their difficult duties to my entire satisfaction.

My Military Secretary, Lieutenant-Colonel S. H. Pollen, has displayed first-class ability in the conduct of his delicate and responsible duties.

Also I take the opportunity of my last dispatch to mention two of my Aides-de-Camp—Major F. L. Magkill-Crichton-Maitland, Gordon Highlanders, Lieutenant Hon. G. St. J. Brodrick, Surrey Yeomanry.

I have many other names to bring to notice for distinguished and gallant service during the operations under review, and these will form the subject of a separate communication.

And now, before affixing to this dispatch my final signature as Commander-in-Chief of the Mediterranean Expeditionary Force, let me first pay tribute to the everlasting memory of my dear comrades who will return no more. Next, let me thank each and all, Generals, Staff, Regimental Leaders, and rank and file, for their wonderful loyalty, patience, and self-sacrifice. Our progress was constant, and if it was painfully slow—they know the truth. So I bid them all farewell with a special God-speed to the campaigners who have served with me right through from the terrible yet most glorious earlier days—the incomparable 29th Division; the young veterans of the Naval Division; the ever-victorious Australians and New Zealanders; the stout East Lancs, and my own brave fellow-countrymen of the Lowland Division of Scotland.

I have the honour to be,

Your Lordship's most obedient servant,

IAN HAMILTON,

General, Commander-in-Chief,

Mediterranean Expeditionary Force.

CANTONMENTS—REGULATIONS.

No. 286. In exercise of the powers conferred by section 21 of the Cantonments Act, 1910 (XV of 1910), the Governor-General in Council is pleased to direct that in the Cantonment Code, 1912, published under the notification of the Government of India in the Army Department, No. 192, dated the 1st March 1912, as subsequently amended, the following amendment shall be made, namely:—

In section 29, sub-section (1), after clause (o), the following clause shall be inserted, namely:—

(p) to meet any expenditure or make any payments specially authorised by the Governor-General in Council.

B. HOLLOWAY, Major-General,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

The following Act, issued by the Government of India in the Legislative Department, published in the Gazette of India, dated the 11th March 1916, are republished for general information.

J. H. KERR,
Offg. Chief Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

The following Act of the Indian Legislative Council received the assent of the Governor-General on the 8th March, 1916, and is hereby promulgated for general information:—

ACT NO. III OF 1916.

An Act to provide for the trial, by court-martial, of foreigners for offences against the Defence of India Rules.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the trial, by court-martial, of foreigners for offences against the Defence of India Rules; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title, extent and duration.

1. (1) This Act may be called the "Foreigners' (Trial by Court-martial) Act, 1916."

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, including British Baluchistan, the Sonthal Parganas, and the district of Angul.

(3) It shall be in force during the continuance of the present war and for a period of six months thereafter:

Provided that the expiration of this Act shall not affect the validity of anything done in pursuance of it, and any person convicted under this Act may be punished as if it had continued in force, and all prosecutions and other legal proceedings pending under this Act at the time of the expiration thereof may be completed and carried into effect and the sentences carried into execution as if this Act had not expired.

Definitions.

2. In this Act—

(a) "British Subject" has the same meaning as in section 27 of the British Nationality and Status of Aliens Act, 1914:

Provided that any person who holds a certificate of naturalization as a British subject granted under any Act of the Governor-General in Council for the time being in force shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be a British subject.

(b) "Defence of India Rules" means any rules for the time being in force made under section 2 of the Defence of India (Criminal Law Amendment) Act, 1915.

(c) "Foreigner" means any person who is not a British subject.

Trial of foreigners contravening rules under section 2 of the Defence of India Act, 1915.

3. (1) The Governor-General in Council may, by order in writing, direct that a foreigner accused of anything which is an offence in virtue of the Defence of India Rules shall be tried by court-martial.

(2) An order made under sub-section (1) may be made in respect of all foreigners or any particular foreigner or any class of foreigners, and in respect of all offences against the said rules or any particular offence or any class of offences.

(3) An order made under sub-section (1) may be made in respect of, or include, any foreigner so accused whether such offence was committed before or after the commencement of this Act.

Procedure on making of order under section 3.

4. When an order under section 3 has been made in respect of, or includes, any foreigner, such foreigner, when so accused, may be taken into military custody, and shall, if he is already in other custody, be handed over to military custody, and shall be proceeded against and dealt with as if he was a person subject to military law in accordance with the Army Act, and as if the offence of which he is accused was an offence against military law; and may, on conviction, be sentenced to, and shall be liable to suffer, any punishment assigned by the Defence of India Rules for the offence of which he is found guilty.

Procedure on trial.

5. The trial and all matters precedent thereto and attendant thereon shall be held and carried out in accordance with the provisions of the Army Act and the rules for the time being in force thereunder:

Provided that the Governor-General in Council may, by general or special order, modify, in such way as he may direct, any of the said provisions.

Repeal of Ordinance III of 1916.

6. The Foreigners (Trial by Court-martial) Ordinance, 1916, is hereby repealed.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

In time of war the speedy and drastic punishment of acts by alien enemies injurious to the State and especially of offences relating to the collection and communication of information of such a nature as may be directly or indirectly useful to an enemy is a matter of great military importance. Accordingly, the Governor-General recently promulgated an Ordinance providing that any person other than a British subject accused of an offence against the Defence of India Rules might be proceeded against and dealt with as if he were a person subject to Military Law in accordance with the Army Act, and as if the offence of which he was accused was an offence against Military Law. The Ordinance further provided that such person on conviction would be liable to suffer any punishment assigned by the Defence of India Rules for the offence of which he might be found guilty and that the trial and all matters precedent thereto would be carried out in accordance with the provisions of the Army Act subject to any modifications which the Governor-General in Council might direct.

This Ordinance will have currency for six months only, and the object of the present Bill is to make the provisions of the Ordinance operative for the period of the war and six months thereafter, as has already been done in the case of other Ordinances passed to deal with emergencies which have arisen out of the present war.

BEAUCHAMP DUFF.

INDIAN FOREST SERVICE.

Regulations as to the appointment of Probationers, 1916.

1. Appointments.—In making appointments, the Secretary of State for India in Council will act with the advice of a Selection Committee.

2. Applications for Appointment.—Applications for appointment must be made on a printed form to be obtained from the Secretary, Revenue Department, India Office, Whitehall, London, S. W., and to be returned to him not later than Saturday, the 1st July 1916. Candidates must be prepared, if called upon, to attend at the India Office, at their own expense, for a personal interview with the Selection Committee within three weeks from that date.

3. Age Limit.—Candidates must, save as provided in Appendix I, be not less than 19 but under 22 years of age on the 1st January 1916.

4. Nationality, &c.—Every candidate must be a natural-born subject of His Majesty. He must be prepared to give an undertaking, if selected, that he will not marry before he reaches India. If he does so, he will forfeit his appointment. He must be of good physique, and must produce evidence of character to satisfy the Secretary of State for India in Council that he is suited for the Indian Forest Service.

5. Qualifications.—Candidates must have obtained a degree with Honours in some branch of National Science* in a University of England, Wales or Ireland, or have passed the Final Bachelor of Science Examination in Pure Science in one of the Universities of Scotland.† A degree in Applied Science will not be considered as fulfilling these conditions. Candidates will be required to produce evidence that they have a fair knowledge of either German or French.

NOTE.—Applications for appointment will be accepted from candidates who on the 1st July 1916 have already sat at an examination for a degree as mentioned above, but have not learned the result of the examination

6. Should there be more candidates considered to be qualified in every respect than vacancies to be filled, the Secretary of State reserves the right to require them to pass a competitive examination conducted by the Civil Service Commissioners, on the results of which their final selection would depend. Particulars of this examination, which would be held in August, will be found in Appendix II.

7. Medical Examination.—Selected candidates will be required to undergo a strict examination by a Medical Board at the India Office, at which particular stress will be laid on good vision and hearing, and to satisfy the Secretary of State for India that they are physically fit for service in the Indian Forest Department (see Appendix VII).

Candidates who do not satisfy the Secretary of State for India that they are physically fit for appointment to the Indian Forest Service will not be admitted to the competitive examination mentioned in Regulation 6.

8. Period of Probation.—Before appointment to the Indian Forest Department, a probationer will be required :—

(i) to have obtained, either before selection as probationer, or within the period of two years' probation, the degree or diploma in Forestry at one of the Universities named in the margin;

Oxford, Cambridge, or Edinburgh

(ii) to have undergone a special course of instruction in Forestry under the direction and supervision of the Director of Indian Forest Studies appointed by the Secretary of State for India in Council, in such British and Continental localities as may be selected for the purpose :

(iii) to have passed an examination in certain special subjects, namely, Systematic Botany of Indian trees, Indian Geology, Forest Law, Indian Working Plans, and, if required, an Indian vernacular language;

(iv) to have undergone a final competitive examination in Forestry (see Appendix III);

(v) to have satisfied the Secretary of State, in such manner as may be determined, of his ability to ride.

The period of probation will in ordinary cases be two years. The Director of Indian Forest Studies will instruct probationers in each case as to the order and manner in which they should fulfil these various requirements.

9. Charges.—The probationers will be required to defray all expenses of lodging, board, tuition, and excursions, while at the University, and on practical instruction in Great Britain and on the Continent, with the exception of fees payable to local forest officers in Great Britain and on the Continent.

10. Allowances.—The Secretary of State for India in Council will make payments to each probationer at the rate of 120*l*. annually, not exceeding a

* A Moderatorship in Natural Science or in Experimental Science at the University of Dublin will be considered as fulfilling these conditions.

† Graduates in Forestry at the University of Edinburgh are regarded as satisfying the requirements of this paragraph if they pass the Final Examination of that University in some one branch of Natural Science embraced in the degree in Pure Science.

On the 1st December	30
On the 1st March	30
On the 1st June	60

The cases of probationers whose probation does not extend over the full two years will be specially considered.

The grant of the allowances is subject to the following conditions:—

(a) that the progress of the probationer in his studies is satisfactory;

(b) that the probationer gives security to refund the payments in respect of this advance, as well as such payments, not exceeding 60*l.* in all, as may have been incurred by the Secretary of State on the probationer's behalf in respect of fees to local forest officers, in the event of his failing to qualify for an appointment in the Indian Forest Service, or not signing the articles of agreement as specified in paragraph 13, or failing to join the Indian Forest Service at the end of the peroid of probation.

11. Conduct.—Every probationer will be required to conduct himself during the period of probation in a manner satisfactory to the Secretary of State, and to give evidence of satisfactory progress in his studies in such a manner as may be required, failing which, or in the event of serious misconduct, he will be liable to have his name removed from the list of probationers.

12. Appointment and Seniority.—Probationers who comply with the requirements of Regulation 8 within the sanctioned period of time, and also satisfy such other tests as may be prescribed, will be appointed Assistant Conservators in the Indian Forest Department, provided they are of sound constitution and free from physical defects which would render them unsuitable for employment in the Indian Forest Service. Their position in the Provincial Forest Lists will be determined by the Secretary of State for India in Council on the report of the Director of Indian Forest Studies; but in making selections for the post of Conservator, officers joining the service in the same year are reckoned as equal in seniority unless the Secretary of State for India in Council shall for special reasons have directed otherwise in any particular case or cases.

Probationers will be allowed at the end of the period of probation to state their preference in respect to the Provinces to which they desire to be allotted; but the distribution will be made to the several Provinces according to the needs of the public service, at the discretion of the Secretary of State for India in Council. Officers are, however, at all times liable to be transferred from one Province to another at the pleasure of the Government of India.

13 Articles of Agreement.—A probationer is required, on qualifying for appointment as Assistant Conservator, to sign articles of agreement setting forth the terms and conditions of his appointment; he must embark for India when required to do so by the Secretary of State. Failure to embark at the stated time will, in the absence of satisfactory explanation, lead to forfeiture of appointment.

14. Passage to India.—Each probationer on appointment to the Indian Forest Service will be provided with a free first-class passage to India.

15. Salary.—An Assistant Conservator of Forests will draw pay at the rate of Rs. 380 a month (equivalent to 304*l.* a year, when the rupee is at 1*s.* 4*d.*) from the date of his reporting his arrival in India.

16. Promotion, Leave, Pension, and Provident Fund.—Promotion, leave, and pension will be governed by the Regulations laid down by the Government of India, and applicable to Forest officers, such regulations being subject to any modifications or alterations which may be made in them from time to time by the Government of India, and their interpretation in case of any doubt arising being left to that Government. A copy of the existing regulations can be seen on application at the India Office.

Certain information regarding appointments in the upper controlling staff of the Indian Forest Service, the pay of which has been recently improved, will be found in Appendix IV; a summary of information regarding leave is contained in Appendix V; and regarding Pensions and the Provident Fund in Appendix VI.

INDIA OFFICE,

APPENDICES.

APPENDIX I.—DEDUCTIONS FROM AGE IN RESPECT OF MILITARY SERVICE.

1. Any person who has joined since the 4th August 1914, or may join during the present war, the Army or Navy or Royal Marines, or has rendered or may render during the same period actual military service in the Special Reserve or Territorial Force, Royal Naval Reserve or Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve, may, if eligible in point of age under the Regulations as they now stand for admission to the competition held in 1915, 1916, or 1917 (but over age in 1916, 1917, or 1918 respectively), deduct from his actual age at the time of the competition held in 1916, 1917, or 1918, as the case may be :—

(a) The actual period of such service, if it has not exceeded three months.

(b) One year, if the actual period of service has exceeded three months. No candidate will be allowed to deduct more than one year from his actual age.

2. The same concession may also be granted to those who have been employed during the same period in connection with the armed forces of the Crown at home or abroad giving their whole time and under obligation to serve for the duration of the war or until their discharge, or for any period not terminable at their own option, provided that their employment be not on ordinary commercial terms, such as that of Assistant Paymasters, clerks, artisans, and the like.

3. The grant of the concession described in paragraph (2) will be at the discretion of the Secretary of State for India in Council, whose decision in each case will be final. Candidates who contemplate applying for an age deduction under (2) will do well to apply to the India Office for a ruling on their case.

4. Candidates to be eligible for the concessions in (1) or (2) must furnish an official certificate of the period and satisfactory character of their service, and if any doubt arise whether the service of any candidate is of the kind contemplated by this Notice, the Secretary of State for India in Council reserves the right to decide the case upon its merits.

APPENDIX II.—COMPETITIVE EXAMINATION.

In the event of the Civil Service Commissioners being requested by the Secretary of State for India in Council to hold an examination in any year of candidates nominated by him to compete for appointment as Probationers for the above Service, the following will be the subjects in which such candidates will be examined :—

	Subject	Maximum marks.		Subject	Maximum marks.
1.	English Composition ...	100	5.	Physics	100
2.	German or French ...	100	6.	Geology	100
3.	Elementary Chemistry	50	7.	Botany	100
4.	Higher Chemistry ...	100	8.	Zoology	100

Not more than three of the subjects numbered 4 to 8 may be offered.

Candidates must pass to the satisfaction of the Civil Service Commissioners in the first three subjects.

In the subjects numbered 4 to 8, only marks showing real attainment will be counted towards the order of merit, so that a candidate who has a thorough knowledge of one or two of the optional subjects may obtain on that knowledge alone as many marks as a candidate who offers the maximum number of the optional subjects on a lower standard.

SYLLABUS.

Languages.—The examination in German and French will include translation, composition, and conversation.

Sciences.—The standard of the examination in Higher Chemistry, Physics, Geology, Botany, and Zoology will be that of the Honours Schools of the Universities.

The examination in Elementary Chemistry will consist of a written paper on the more elementary parts of Inorganic Chemistry, together with the outlines of Organic Chemistry.

APPENDIX III.—FINAL EXAMINATION.

1. With a view to the allocation of the annual Currie Scholarship for Indian Forest Students (value about 35*l*.), and to facilitate the allotment of probationers to the several provinces in accordance with paragraph 12 of the Regulations as to appointments in the Indian Forest Service, probationers who have completed their prescribed course of training will be required to undergo a competitive final examination in Forestry.

2. A list of the probationers in order of merit will be prepared by adding together (a) the marks obtained at the final examination, and (b) the marks obtained during the course of practical training in forestry under the control of the Director of Indian Forest Studies. The maximum of marks obtainable under (a) will be the same as under (b).

3. The final examination will consist of an oral examination and three or more papers, as follows :—

(i) One or more papers in Sylviculture, Forest Protection (including Forest Botany and Forest Entomology), and Forest Utilisation (including Forest Engineering).

(ii) One or more papers in Forest Management, Forest Mensuration, Forest Valuation, and Forest Administration.

(iii) A paper in General Forestry (Practical) dealing with the work done and with the forests visited during the course of practical training.

4. The final examination will be held at the beginning of October. Arrangements as to the date and place of examination will be made by the Director of Indian Forest Studies. Probationers will not be required to pay any fee for the examination.

APPENDIX IV.—LIST OF APPOINTMENTS OPEN TO MEMBERS OF THE IMPERIAL BRANCH OF THE INDIAN FOREST SERVICE.

Total 236†
These appointments are included in (d) and (e): 5 Foreign Service appointments; §12 Officers employed at the Forest Research Institute and College, Dehra Dun.

*The officer holding this appointment draws in addition to the pay of his grade a minimum local allowance of Rs. 200 a month.

†These appointments are allotted to the various provinces as follows:—Burma, 66; Madras, 32; Bombay, 28; Central Provinces, 24; United Provinces, 30; Punjab, 12, Bengal, 12; Assam, 18; and Bihar and Orissa, 8; and 4 Imperial Instructors and 2 Assistants at Dehra Dun.

‡Until he has passed the prescribed Departmental examinations, an Assistant Conservator is liable to stoppage of increments of pay On passing the examinations he will resume drawing pay under the time scale at the rate to which his length of service entitles him.

§Of these officers, the President, Forest Research Institute and College, draws a local allowance of Rs. 200 a month in addition to his grade pay; nine of the remainder draw a local allowance of Rs. 150 a month, and two a local allowance of Rs. 100 a month, in addition to their grade pay. Of these 12 appointments, the four posts of Imperial Instructors have been sanctioned for five years from 1912 for the present.

APPENDIX V.

[NOTE.—Appendices V and VI are intended merely to show the principal leave and pension rules in the Civil Service Regulations at present applicable to officers appointed to the Indian Forest Service by the Secretary of State from the United Kingdom, without going into minute details, and do not profess to deal with every case that may arise. The rules are subject to alteration, and any disputed question must be decided with reference to the authorised text of the Civil Service Regulations for the time being.]

LEAVE.

Long Leave.

1. Furlough and special leave with allowances (see paragraph 5) are admissible to an aggregate maximum amount of six years during an officer's service. The amount of furlough "earned" is one-fourth of an officer's active service, and the amount "due" is that amount less any enjoyed.

2. Furlough without medical certificate can, if due, be generally taken after eight years' active service, and again after intervals of not less than three years' continuous service. It is limited to two years at a time.

3. Furlough on medical certificate may be granted (a) to an officer who has rendered three years' continuous service, for not more than two years, but capable of extension up to three years; and (b) to an officer who has not rendered three years' continuous service, up to one year in any case, and up to such longer period, if any (but not exceeding two years in all), as the officer may have furlough "due" to him.

4. The allowances admissible during furlough are:—

(1) During the first two years of furlough without medical certificate and during so much of furlough with medical certificate as may be "due"—half average salary, subject to certain maximum and minimum limits.

(2) After the expiration of the period for which the foregoing allowances are admissible—one quarter of average salary, subject to certain maximum and minimum limits.

5. Special Leave may be granted at any time for not more than six months, with intervals of six years' service; allowances, calculated as during furlough, are given during the first six months only, whether taken in one or more instalments.

Short Leave.

6. Privilege Leave is a holiday which may be granted to the extent of one-eleventh part of the time that an officer has been on duty without interruption; and it may be accumulated up to three months, earned by 33 months duty. During privilege leave, the officer retains a lien on his appointment, and receives the salary which he would have received if on duty. An interval of not less than six months must elapse between two periods of absence on privilege leave.

Privilege leave may be prefixed to furlough, special leave, or extraordinary leave without allowances. The whole period of leave thus taken in combination is known as combined leave. Combined leave may not be granted for a period of less duration than six months, nor, except on medical certificate, may it be extended beyond two years.

7. Subsidiary Leave in India for a minimum of 10 days, usually with half average salary, is granted to an officer proceeding on or returning from leave out of India, or on retirement, to enable him to reach the port of embarkation or to rejoin his appointment. It is admissible only at the end and not at the beginning of combined leave.

8. Short Leave is also granted to enable officers to appear at examinations, etc.

9. Extraordinary Leave without allowances may be granted in case of necessity, and, except in certain specified cases, only when no other kind of leave is by rule admissible. It may be granted in continuation of other leave.

General Rules.

10. Leave of absence can never be claimed as of right, and is given or refused at the discretion of Government.

11. When leave allowances other than privilege leave pay are paid at the Home Treasury, or in a Colony where the standard of currency is gold, rupees are converted into sterling at the rate of exchange fixed for the time being for the adjustment of financial transactions between the Imperial and Indian Treasuries, unless any other rate has been exceptionally authorised. But for the present the rate of conversion is subject to a minimum of 1*s.* 6*d.* to the rupee. Privilege Leave pay when issued from the Home Treasury (this is only admissible when privilege leave is combined with other leave) is converted at 1*s.* 4*d.* to the rupee.

APPENDIX VI.

(See Note under Appendix V.)

PENSIONS AND PROVIDENT FUND.

1. An officer of the Indian Forest Service is eligible for a pension on voluntary retirement after completing 20 years' qualifying service or attaining the age of 55 years. If at an earlier date he is compelled to retire from the service through ill-health, not occasioned by irregular or intemperate habits, he becomes eligible for an invalid pension or a gratuity according to the length of his service.

The amount of pension or gratuity is regulated as follows :—

After a service of less than 10 years, an invalid gratuity not exceeding one month's emoluments for each completed year of service.

After a service of not less than 10 years an invalid pension not exceeding the following amounts :—

Years of Completed Service	Maximum Limit of Pension
10	Rs. 1,000 a year.
11	1,400 ,,
12	1,800 ,,
13	2,200 ,,
14	2,600 ,,
15 to 19	3,000 ,,

After a service of not less than 20 years, a retiring pension not exceeding the following amounts :—

Years of Completed Service	Scale of Pensions — Sixtieths of Average Emoluments	Maximum Limit of Pension
20 to 24	30	Rs. 4,000 a year.
25 and above	30	5,000 ,,

Officers who have shown special energy and efficiency during an effective service of three years as Inspector-General of Forests or Conservator may, at the discretion of the Government of India, be allowed an additional pension of Rs. 1,000 a year, subject to the condition that the officer must not retire voluntarily before the completion of a total qualifying service of 28 years.

Subject to certain prescribed conditions, rupee pensions are now issued to pensioners residing in countries where the Indian rupee is not legal tender at the rate of exchange of 1*s.* 9*d.* the rupee.

2. A General Provident Fund has also been established on the following basis :—

(a) The contribution is compulsory up to 6¼ per cent. on salaries, with voluntary contributions of not more than a further 9¾ per cent. Subscriptions on leave of any kind are optional.

(b) Compound interest on such payments is annually credited by Government to each officer subscribing, the rate being at present 4 per cent. per annum.

(c) The sum which thus accumulates to the credit of an officer is his absolute property, subject to the rules of the Fund, and is handed over to him, unconditionally, on quitting the service; or, in the event of his death before retirement, to his legal representatives or such other person or persons as, under and subject to the rules of the Fund for the time being in force, may be entitled thereto.

(d) Other forms of life insurance will, however, if they fulfil certain conditions, be accepted in lieu of the contributions in (a).

APPENDIX VII.

GENERAL PHYSICAL REQUIREMENTS.

[Note.—These Regulations are published for the convenience of candidates and in order to enable them to ascertain the probability of their coming up to the required physical standard. But it must be clearly understood that the Secretary of State reserves to himself an absolute discretion to reject as unfit any candidate whom he may consider, after hearing the opinion of his medical advisers, to be physically disqualified for the public service; and that his discretion is in no respect limited by these Regulations.]

1. A candidate must be in good mental and bodily health, and free from any physical defect likely to interfere with efficient performance of duty.

2. In the examination of candidates the Medical Board will apply the following table of correlation of age, height, and chest girth :—

Age.	Height without Shoes.	Chest. Girth when expanded.	Chest. Range of Expansion.
	Inches.	Inches.	Inches.
19 to 20 ...	62½ and under 65	35	2
	65 „ 68	35	2
	68 „ 70	35½	2
	70 „ 72	36	2
	72 and upwards	36½	2½
21 and upwards ...	62½ and under 65	35	2
	65 „ 68	35½	2
	68 „ 70	36	2
	72 and upwards	37	2½

3. Measurement of Height.—The candidate will be placed against the standard with his feet together, and the weight thrown on the heels, and not on the toes or outside of the feet. He will stand erect without rigidity, and with the heels, calves, buttocks, and shoulders touching the standard; the chin will be depressed to bring the vertex of the head level under the horizontal bar, and the height will be noted in parts of an inch to eighths. No fixed limit of height is imposed.

4. Measurement of Chest.—The candidate will be made to stand erect with his feet together, and to raise his hands above his head. The tape will be carefully adjusted round the chest, the posterior upper edge touching the inferior angles of the shoulder blades, and its anterior lower edge the upper part of the nipples. The arms will then be lowered to hang loosely by the side, and care will be taken that the shoulders are not thrown upwards or backwards so as to displace the tape. The candidate will then be directed to empty his chest of air as much as possible. This is best done by continuous whistling with the lips as long as sound can be produced. The tape is carefully gathered in during the process, and when the minimum measurement is reached it is recorded. The candidate will then be directed to inflate his chest to his utmost capacity. This maximum measurement will likewise be noted. The girth with the chest fully expanded and the range of expansion between the minimum and the maximum will then be recorded.

5. The hearing must be good.

6. The speech without impediment.

7. The teeth in good order, i.e., decayed or broken teeth must be properly stopped or crowned, and deficient teeth replaced by artificial teeth where necessary for effective mastication.

8. The chest must be well formed, the lungs and heart sound.

9. Rupture, hydrocele, varicocele, varicose veins in a severe degree, or other condition likely to cause inefficiency will disqualify a candidate, unless such condition is cured by operation.

10. The limbs, feet, and toes must be well formed and developed, with free and perfect motion of all the joints.

11. A candidate must have no congenital malformation or defect likely to interfere with efficiency.

12. A candidate must not be the subject of chronic skin disease.

13. Evidence of previous acute or chronic disease pointing to an impaired constitution will disqualify.

14. Candidates may, if they wish it, undergo a preliminary examination as to their physical fitness by the Medical Board, which meets at the India Office every Tuesday, under the following conditions :—

(a) Applications must be addressed to the Under Secretary of State, India Office, Whitehall, London, accompanied by a fee of two guineas.

(b) Candidates must pay their travelling expenses.

(c) It must be understood that the opinion of the Medical Board, which will be communicated by the Board to the candidate at the end of the examination, is solely for the candidate's own information and is not an official finding. The Board, if they consider a candidate unfit, will exercise their discretion as to informing him of the particular grounds on which their opinion is based. No further information can in any case be given as to the Medical Board's opinion which will be confined solely to the physical fitness of the candiadte; and any question as to the eligibility of the candidate, if found physically fit, to be admitted to the particular Indian service which he desires to enter, should be addressed in writing to the Under Secretary of State.

(d) Candidates considered to be unfit by the Medical Board at this preliminary examination are not bound to accept its opinion, but may, at their own risk, continue their studies, with the knowledge that they will have to submit themselves for a final medical examination by the Medical Board prior to their appointment.

(e) As the preliminary examination by the Medical Board is held solely for the candidate's information, a candidate who is informed after such an examination that he is physically fit will have on that account no claim to be accepted as physically fit when he presents himself for the final medical examination, upon which alone his acceptance or rejection will depend Candidates may be considered fit for the Service at the preliminary examination, but may be found at the final examination to be unfit, either on account of some physical defect which did not exist or passed undetected at the preliminary examination, or for other reasons.

REGULATIONS AS TO THE STANDARD OF VISION FOR THE INDIAN FOREST SERVICE.

1. If myopia in one or both eyes exists, a candidate may be passed, provided the ametropia does not exceed 2·5 D, and if with correcting glasses, not exceeding 2·5 D, the acuteness of vision in one eye equals $\frac{6}{9}$ and in the other $\frac{6}{6}$, there being normal range of accommodation with the glasses.

2. Myopic astigmatism does not disqualify a candidate for service, provided the lens or the combined spherical and cylindrical lenses required to correct the error of refraction do not exceed—2·5 D, the acuteness of vision in one eye, when corrected, being equal to $\frac{6}{6}$, and in the other eye $\frac{6}{9}$, together with normal range of accommodation with the correcting glasses, there being no evidence of progressive disease in the choroid or retina.

3. A candidate having total hypermetropia not exceeding 4 D is not disqualified, provided the sight in one eye (when under the influence of atropine) equals $\frac{6}{9}$, and in the other eye equals $\frac{6}{6}$ with + 4 D or any lower power.

4. Hypermetropic astigmatism does not disqualify a candidate for the service, provided the lens or combined lenses required to cover the error of refraction do not exceed 4 D, and that the sight of one eye equals $\frac{6}{6}$ and of the other $\frac{6}{9}$, with or without such lens or lenses.

5. A candidate having a defect of vision arising from nebula of the cornea is disqualified if the sight of one eye be less than $\frac{6}{12}$. In such a case the better eye must be emmetropic. Defects of vision arising from pathological or other changes in the deeper structures of either eye, which are not referred to in the above rules, may exclude a candidate for admission into the service.

6. Squint, or any morbid condition, subject to the risk of aggravation or recurrence, in either eye, may cause the rejection of a candidate. The existence of imperfection of colour sense will be noted on the candidate's papers.

IRRIGATION DEPARTMENT.

[Fifth publication.]

The 22nd February 1916.

No. 4.—Notification.—The following draft of rules which, in exercise of the powers conferred by section 90 of the Bengal Embankment Act, 1882 (Bengal Act II of 1882), and in supersession of Notification No. 108, dated the 26th February 1884 (published at pages 399-400 of the Calcutta Gazette of the 27th idem), as amended by Notification No. 11, dated the 16th November 1908, the Governor in Council intends to make for carrying out the provisions of the said Act, is published for the information of persons likely to be affected thereby.

II. The draft will be taken into consideration on or after the 25th March 1916, and any objection or suggestion which may be received by the undersigned before that date will be duly considered.

Draft Rules.

1. All estimates for works or repairs or for maintenance of public embankments which are prepared under section 7 or section 47 of the Bengal Embankment Act, 1882 (Bengal Act II of 1882), shall include the estimated cost of all petty establishment employed for watching or guarding embankments and for working sluices.

2. (1) Such estimates shall also include such charges for directing and supervising establishment and for the use of tools and plant as may be directed by the Governor in Council from time to time.

(2) The said charges shall not exceed in all 26 per cent. on the estimated outlay on the works or repairs, exclusive of charges for the acquisition of land or for petty establishment. The charge for supervising establishment and tools and plant shall ordinarily be a consolidated one of 10 per cent. on the outlay on the works (excluding land and petty establishment), but if in any particular case it is desired to make a higher charge or to reduce or remit the charge altogether, a reference must be made to Government at the time when the estimate is prepared.

3. The Collector shall, previous to submitting a report to the Commissioner under section 11, 19 or 43 of the Act, obtain the written opinion of the Superintending Engineer, which shall form part of the record of proceedings in the case.

No notices regarding new works, the estimated cost of which exceeds Rs. 2,500, shall be published under section 9 of the Act, until the estimates, specifications and plans have received the approval of the Chief Engineer.

4. No estimate referred to in section 49 of the Act shall be transmitted to the Collector, until it has been countersigned by the Superintending Engineer, who shall be responsible that the repairs proposed to be executed are necessary, that it is proposed to execute them in the proper manner and that the rates entered in the estimate are fair and reasonable.

5. The Superintending Engineer shall, on the requisition of the Collector, furnish a written opinion on any work which it is proposed to execute under the Act, causing all necessary surveys to be made.

6. Where the Collector, under the last preceding rule, requires surveys to be made, he shall either cause the estimated cost of the same to be paid to the Engineer, or procure sanction, under the ordinary rules for the disbursement of public money, to the proposed expenditure. Such deposit or sanction shall provide for the salaries and allowances of the Engineers and Surveyors intended to be employed.

7. The Superintending Engineer shall, in any enquiry under section 51 of the Act, on receiving a requisition to that effect from the Collector, give his written opinion as to the boundaries of the lands affected by such works or repairs, and the extent to which they have been benefited or affected. This opinion shall form part of the record of proceedings in the case.

8. Notwithstanding that there is no express mention in section 52 of the Act of objections preferred before the Collector to the Engineer's accounts and certificate of expenses, on the ground that certain lands are not benefited by the works or repairs as specified in such certificate, the Collector shall entertain and consider such objections. As the disposal of such objections will often depend on professional enquiries, the Collector shall ordinarily consult the Engineer and, if necessary, the Superintending Engineer, before passing orders, and the substance of the reference to the Engineer, and of his reply shall form part of the record.

If, on such objection the Collector shall come to the conclusion that any alteration should be made in the certificate which has been signed by the Engineer, under section 51, he may at any time, before making an order charging or apportioning the amount under section 58 of the Act, make such alteration as provided in section 52.

9. When it appears likely that the ordinary procedure under the Act would be attended with grave and imminent danger to life and property, and proceedings are taken by the Collector, under section 25 of the Act, or by the Engineer, under section 29, the Collector shall make an immediate report to the Commissioner, and forward a copy thereof to the Superintending Engineer. In such cases the Commissioner shall lose no time in submitting a copy of the said report, with his opinion thereon, for the orders of Government.

10. All orders passed under section 31 of the Act shall be in writing, and the applicant shall be entitled to receive a copy of the same, free of charge, on application. The Engineer shall delegate to all Public Works Subdivisional Officers the power of receiving applications, under section 31 of the Act, for temporary roadways and temporary water-courses, but no person so appointed shall pass an order for the construction of a temporary water-course, unless he has been specially authorised to do so by the Superintending Engineer. Such authority shall specify the embankments in regard to which only this power is to be exercised. In all cases where an application for a temporary water-course is made to a person appointed by the Engineer, such application shall be submitted to the Engineer for transmission to the Collector. The Engineer, in forwarding applications under this section to the Collector, shall state in writing whether, in his opinion, they can be sanctioned without endangering the safety of the embankment.

11. All Public Works Subdivisional Officers shall be authorised to open or shut sluices under general rules to be issued by the Engineer, with the approval of the Collector. A copy of all rules made under this section shall be transmitted to the Superintending Engineer.

12. Any order to remove an embankment or obstruction, or to repair damage, passed under section 79 of the Act, shall be appealable to the Court to which an appeal ordinarily lies from the decision of the Magistrate who passes the order.

13. The Engineer shall submit to Government, through the Superintending Engineer, an annual report on the state of each Schedule D embankment in his charge on the 1st of April of each year. The report shall contain the following particulars :—

(a) the original length of the embankment ;
(b) the length as maintained during the year ;
(c) the area it protects ;
(d) the floods during the year ;
(e) how the embankment was affected by the floods of the year ;
(f) the cost of its upkeep ;
(g) whether there has been any encroachment on embankment land during the year ; if in the affirmative, what steps have been taken to bring the offender to justice ;
(h) if the crest of the embankment is sufficiently high to protect the lands within from floods in the river.

14. The Engineer in charge shall submit to Government annually, through the Superintending Engineer, a report with plans shewing what embankments, if any, have been erected or added to within any tract included in a prohibitory notification issued under section 6 of the Act.

NOTICE.

Examination of Compounders at the Dacca Medical School.

IT is hereby notified, for general information, that the next half-yearly examination for compounders will be held on the 17th April 1916, and subsequent days.

The examination will be conducted in accordance with Bengal Government Notifications Nos 1410 and 1411 Medical, dated the 7th July 1913:—

(a) The Examining Committee will consist of—

PRESIDENT:

Lieut.-Col. E. A. R. Newman, I.M.S.,
Superintendent, Medical School, Dacca.

MEMBERS:

Teacher of Anatomy.
Teacher of Midwifery.

(b) No person will be admitted to this examination unless he produces certificates as required by rules 9, 10, 11 and 12 of Government Notification No. 1410 Medical, dated the 7th July 1913.

(c) All male candidates must forward to the undersigned an examination fee of Rs. 5, at least one week before the commencement of examination; a fresh fee must be paid on each occasion that the candidate enters for the examination; but a candidate, who, after payment of the fee, is unable, through illness, to attend the examination, will be allowed, on producing a satisfactory medical certificate to that effect, to attend the next examination without payment of a fresh fee.

NOTE.—Women candidates are examined free of charge.

(d) The students of the compounder class of the Medical Schools at the end of the one year of study and the students of the Licentiate class of these schools, on the completion of their second year's course, will be allowed to appear at an optional examination, to be conducted by the Committee of Examiners notified above—in minor bandaging, preparation of antiseptic lotions and dressings, sterilization of dressings and instruments, and in all the minor duties of hospital work. No additional fee shall be charged for this optional examination.

This examination is also open to persons qualified for admission to the examination prescribed under the Rules for the grant of certificates to compounders, on production of a certificate that they have received instruction in a hospital or dispensary recognised by Government in minor bandaging, preparation of antiseptic lotions and dressings, sterilization of dressings and instruments, and in all the minor duties of hospital work. Such persons shall be required to pay a fee of Rs. 2-8 for this examination. But no fee will be required from a candidate who appears at the combined Compounders' and Dressership Examination and who has paid the fee of Rs. 5 prescribed in para. (c).

BY THE KING.

A PROCLAMATION

FOR PROHIBITING THE IMPORTATION OF PAPER MAKING MATERIALS, PAPER, TOBACCO, FURNITURE WOODS, STONES AND SLATES INTO THE UNITED KINGDOM.

GEORGE R. I.

WHEREAS by section forty-three of the Customs Consolidation Act, 1876, it is provided that the importation of arms, ammunition, gunpowder, or any other goods may be prohibited by Proclamation :

And whereas it is expedient that the importation into the United Kingdom of certain goods of a bulky character should be prohibited as hereinafter provided :

Now, THEREFORE, We, by and with the advice of Our Privy Council, in pursuance of the said Act and of all other powers enabling Us, in that behalf, do hereby proclaim, direct and ordain as follows :—

As from and after the First day of March, 1916, subject as hereinafter provided, the importation into the United Kingdom of the following goods is hereby prohibited, viz :—

All materials for the manufacture of paper including wood pulp, esparto grass, and linen and cotton rags.

Paper and cardboard (including strawboard, pasteboard, millboard and wood pulp board) and manufactures of paper and cardboard.

All periodical publications exceeding 16 pages in length, imported otherwise than in single copies through the post.

Tobacco unmanufactured and manufactured (including cigars and cigarettes).

Furniture woods, hard woods and veneers.

Stones and slates.

Provided always, and it is hereby declared, that nothing in this Proclamation shall apply to any goods of the descriptions specified which are imported under licence given by or on behalf of the Board of Trade, and subject to the provisions and conditions of such licence.

This Proclamation may be cited as the Prohibition of Import (Paper, Tobacco, Furniture Woods and Stones) Proclamation, 1916.

Given at Our Court at Buckingham Palace, this Fifteenth day of February, in the year of our Lord One thousand nine hundred and sixteen, and in the Sixth year of Our Reign.

GOD SAVE THE KING.

No. 2121-W.—The following Order in Council is published for general information :—

AT THE COUNCIL CHAMBER, WHITEHALL.

The 12th day of February 1916.

BY THE LORDS OF HIS MAJESTY'S MOST HONOURABLE PRIVY COUNCIL.

WHEREAS it is provided by section 2 of the Customs (Exportation Prohibition) Act, 1914, that any Proclamation or Order in Council made under section 8 of the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1879, as amended by the Act now in recital, may, whilst a state of war exists, be varied or added to by an Order made by the Lords of the Council on the recommendation of the Board of Trade :

And whereas it is provided by section 2 of the Customs (Exportation Restriction) Act, 1914, that any Proclamation made under section 1 of the Exportation of Arms Act, 1900, may, whether the Proclamation was made before or after the passing of the Act now in recital, be varied or added to, whilst a state of war exists, by an Order made by the Lords of the Council on the recommendation of the Board of Trade :

And whereas by a Proclamation, dated the 28th day of July 1915, and made under section 8 of the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1879, and section 1 of the Exportation of Arms Act, 1900, and section 1 of the Customs (Exportation Prohibition) Act, 1914, the exportation from the United Kingdom of certain articles to certain or all destinations was prohibited :

And whereas by subsequent Orders of Council the said Proclamation was amended and added to in certain particulars :

And whereas there was this day read at the Board a recommendation from the Board of Trade to the following effect :—

That the Proclamation, dated the 28th day of July 1915, as amended and added to by subsequent Orders of Council, should be further amended by making the following amendments in and additions to the same :—

(1) That the exportation of the following goods should be prohibited to all destinations :—

Carbon electrodes for electric furnaces.
Petroleum coke.

(2) That the heading "Capsicum and oleo-resin of capsicum" in the list of goods the exportation of which is prohibited to all destinations should be deleted, and there be substituted therefor the heading "Oleo-resin of capsicum."

(3) That the heading "Bladders, casings and sausage skins," in the list of goods the exportation of which is prohibited to all destinations abroad other than British Possessions and Protectorates. should be deleted, and there be substituted therefor the heading "Bladders, guts, casings and sausage skins."

(4 That the heading "Bones for manure, dissolved bones, bone flour, bone meal and bone ash" in the list of goods the exportation of which is prohibited to all destinations abroad other than British Possessions and Protectorates should be deleted and there be substituted therefor the heading, "Bones, in any form, whole or crushed (including dissolved bones, bone flour and bone meal), and bone ash."

(5) That the heading "Capsicum and peppers" should be included in the list of goods the exportation of which is prohibited to all destinations abroad other than British Possessions and Protectorates.

(6) That the heading "Lead, pig, sheet or pipe (including solder containing lead)" in the list of goods the exportation of which is prohibited to all destinations abroad other than British Possessions and Protectorates should be deleted, and there be substituted therefor the heading "Lead, pig, sheet, pipe or scrap (including solder containing lead)."

(7) That the heading "Pepper" in the list of goods the exportation of which is prohibited to all foreign countries in Europe and on the Mediterranean and Black Seas, other than France, Russia (except through Baltic ports), Italy, Spain and Portugal should be deleted.

(8) That the exportation of the following goods should be prohibited to all foreign countries in Europe and on the Mediterranean and Black Seas, other than France, Russia (except through Baltic ports), Italy, Spain and Portugal:—

Arrack;
Casein;
Cork and cork dust not including floor coverings manufactured partly of cork dust.

Now, therefore, Their Lordships, having taken the said recommendation into consideration, are pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered, that the same be approved.

Whereof the Commissioners of His Majesty's Customs and Excise, the Director of the War Trade Department, and all other persons whom it may concern, are to take notice and govern themselves accordingly.

The 18th March 1916.

No. 2152-W.—With reference to the Notification in this Department No. 857-W., dated the 11th December 1915, the following order of His Majesty the King in Council is published for general information:—

AT THE COURT AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE.

The 15th day of February 1916.

PRESENT:

THE KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY IN COUNCIL.

WHEREAS a state of war exists between His Majesty and the German Emperor, the Emperor of Austria King of Hungary, the Sultan of Turkey and the King of the Bulgarians:

And whereas His Majesty holds it to be His Prerogative Duty as well as His Prerogative Right to take all steps necessary for the Defence and Protection of the Realm:

And whereas His Majesty did by Order in Council dated November 10th, 1915, prohibit the carriage of cargo by any British steamship exceeding 500 tons gross tonnage registered in the United Kingdom from one foreign port to another, unless exempted by licence:

And whereas it has been made to appear to His Majesty that it is essential to the Defence and Protection of the Realm that, in the exercise of His Prerogatives as aforesaid, He should prohibit as from and after the First day of March 1916, any British steamship registered in the United Kingdom exceeding 500 tons gross tonnage, except steamships engaged in the coasting trade of the United Kingdom, from proceeding on any voyage, unless the owner or charterer of such steamship has been granted a licence as hereinafter provided:

NOW, THEREFORE, His Majesty is pleased, by and with the advice of His Privy Council and in exercise of His Prerogatives as aforesaid and of all other powers Him thereunto enabling, to order and it is hereby ordered that, from and after the First day of March 1916, no British steamship registered in the United Kingdom exceeding 500 tons gross tonnage, except steamships engaged in the coasting trade of the United Kingdom, shall proceed on any voyage, unless a licence to do so has been granted to or in favour of the owner or charterer of such steamship by the Licensing Committee appointed by the President of the Board of Trade under the provisions of the aforesaid Order in Council of November 10th, 1915, which licence may be general in reference to classes of ships or their voyages or special.

And the President of the Board of Trade is to act and give instructions and directions accordingly.

ALMERIC FITZROY.

The 18th March 1916.

No. 2169-W.—In pursuance of section 2 of the Defence of India (Criminal Law Amendment) Act, 1915 (IV of 1915), as amended by Act II of 1916, the Governor General in Council is pleased to direct that the following amendment shall be made in the Defence of India (Wolfram) Rules, 1915, namely:—

After rule 6 of the said rules the following rules shall be added, namely:—

Prohibition of removal of tungsten from certain areas except under a pass

7. (1) When a license to prospect for, or a mining lease in respect of, tungsten has been granted by, or on behalf of, the Secretary of State, no person other than the holder of such license or lease or the agent of such holder shall remove tungsten from the area covered by such license or lease except under a pass specially issued for each consignment by such holder or agent.

(2) Every such pass shall specify therein the destination to which the tungsten shall be removed, and shall be issued in such form and subject to such conditions as the Financial Commissioner may prescribe.

(3) Every person issuing a pass shall, at the time of such issue, record such particulars thereof, and shall furnish to the Collector such returns of passes issued, as the Financial Commissioner may prescribe.

Prohibition of the possession, etc., of tungsten except under a permit.

8. (1) No person shall be in possession of, for any purpose, or shall deal in any way with, tungsten in any area not covered by a prospecting license or a mining lease except under a permit granted by the Collector in such form and subject to such conditions as the Financial Commissioner may prescribe: provided that nothing in this sub-rule shall apply—

(a) to the holder of a license to prospect for, or a mining lease in respect of, tungsten, or to the agent of such holder, in respect of tungsten won from the area covered by such license or lease, or

(b) to the holder of a pass issued under rule 7 in respect of the removal of tungsten in accordance with the conditions of such pass.

(2) A person, to whom a permit has been granted under sub-rule (1), shall keep such accounts, and furnish such returns to the Collector as the Financial Commissioner may prescribe, of all tungsten possessed, or dealt with by him under such permit.

Penalty for permitting removal of tungsten

9. Whoever, being authorised to issue a pass under rule 7, knowingly permits tungsten to be removed from the area in respect of which he is so authorised, except in accordance with the conditions of a pass issued under the said rule, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to Rs. 500.

Penalty for contravention of rules 7 (1) and 8 (1)

10. (1) Whoever removes tungsten in contravention of rule 7, or possesses, or deals with tungsten in contravention of rule 8, shall be punishable with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to one month, or with fine which may extend to Rs. 1,000 or with both.

(2) Whoever attempts to commit, or abets or attempts to abet the commission of, any act punishable under this rule shall be punished as if he had himself committed the act.

Penalty for failure to keep records or accounts, and to furnish returns.

11. Whoever—

(a) issues a pass in contravention of the provisions of rule 7 (2); or

(b) fails to make the record or furnish the returns prescribed by rule 7 (3); or

(c) fails to keep the accounts or furnish the returns prescribed by rule 8 (2), shall be punishable with fine which may be extend to Rs. 100.

Power of arrest.

12. (1) Any officer of the police, revenue, excise or customs departments in receipt of a monthly salary of not less than Rs. 20, may arrest any person against whom a reasonable suspicion exists of his being concerned in an offence punishable under rule 10.

(2) Every officer making an arrest under this rule shall, without unnecessary delay, take or send the person arrested before a magistrate having jurisdiction in the case, or to the officer in charge of the nearest police-station.

No. 1071M.—The 20th March 1916.—In pursuance of section 37F of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884 (Bengal Act III of 1884), it is hereby notified for general information that the scheme submitted by the Commissioners of the Dacca Municipality for improving the water-supply of that Municipality has been approved by the Governor in Council, and that the particulars of the said scheme are as follows:—

Dacca.

(a) The scheme consists of erecting two elevated reservoirs (to be built with re-inforced concrete; the capacity of one would be 120,000 gallons, and that of the other 80,000 gallons; these will virtually serve as balancing tanks, through a 15-inch diameter gravitation main, connected with one, and through a 6-inch gravitation main connected with the other; the bigger reservoir will be erected in the Victoria Park, and the smaller one near the suspension bridge), making additions and alterations to the existing distribution system, providing an additional 15 feet diameter Jewell gravity filter to the existing battery of five similar filters, laying an additional line of suction main 2,200 feet long 16 inches in diameter, and erecting a screw-pile river intake jetty over 300 feet long.

(b) The estimated cost of the scheme is Rs. 1,80,000.

(c) The estimated cost of maintenance is Rs. 3,500.

(d) The sum of Rs. 1,80,000 on account of the cost of the scheme will be met as follows:—

	Rs.
Loan from Government	1,75,000
Contribution from General Municipal Fund	5,000
Total ...	1,80,000

The annual charge of Rs. 3,500 on account of maintenance will be met from the water-rate, and that of Rs. 12,794 on account of the repayment of the loan of Rs. 1,75,000 will be met from the water-rate and the General Fund.

(e) A loan of Rs. 1,75,000, bearing interest at 4 per cent. per annum, will be taken by the Municipality from Government to meet the cost of the scheme. It will be repaid by forty half-yearly instalments of Rs. 6,397 each; twenty years will be required to repay it.

(f) The total annual charge on account of the maintenance of the scheme is estimated at Rs. 3,500, and that on account of the repayment of the loan of Rs. 1,75,000 is Rs. 12,794. The former will be met from the proceeds from the water-rate, and the latter will be met from the General Fund and the proceeds from the water-rate.

(g) The water-rate will be levied as heretofore at the rate of 2 per cent. on the annual value of holdings having no communication pipe and at the rate of 5 per cent. on the annual value of holdings having communication pipe.

(h) The average incidence of the water-rate per head of present population of the said Municipality is Re. 0-8-5.

Casual leave for any period up to a limit of fifteen days in twelve months, and leave on medical certificate for any period not exceeding a month may be granted by the Chairman, with or without pay and with or without the appointment of a substitute, to any officer or servant of the Board. The Chairman may also grant privilege leave for any period not exceeding a month in the case of employés of the Board drawing a salary of less than Rs. 50 a month. No other kind of leave may be granted except by the Board at a meeting. Chairman's power to grant leave.

21E. The Chairman shall have power to enter into contracts relating to works and expenditure sanctioned by the Board, in respect of, or involving, sums not exceeding five hundred rupees in each case. Chairman's power to enter into contracts.

(2) After rule 23 the following shall be inserted, namely:—

Special meetings.

23A. (1) The Chairman may, whenever he thinks fit, and shall, upon the written request of not less than two members, call a special meeting.

(2) A special meeting shall be called when it is necessary:—

(a) to consider the estimate of receipts and expenditure for the ensuing financial year, as prepared under rule 24 or a revised estimate of the same, as prepared under rule 28;

(b) to alter the scale of the establishment or salaries;

(c) to award any pension or gratuity from the Board's funds;

(d) to move the Local Government, under section 4 (1) of the Act, to declare any area to be a mining settlement;

(e) to raise any loan on the security of the Board's property or income;

(f) to elect or remove a Vice-Chairman.

Quorum at special meetings.

23B. The quorum at a special meeting of the Board shall be four, or half the total number of members whichever is less.

Notice of special meeting to consider annual estimates.

23C. The notice of the special meeting for the consideration of the estimate of receipts and expenditure for the ensuing financial year shall be accompanied by a copy of the draft estimate.

Adjourned meetings.

23D. (1) At an adjourned meeting no other business than that which was left unfinished at the original meeting shall be transacted.

(2) An adjourned meeting, being merely a continuation of the original meeting, shall not require any fresh notice.

Allowances.

23E. Every member of the Board shall be entitled to travelling allowance at the rates fixed for officers of the first class under the Civil Service Regulations in respect of each meeting which he attends from the beginning to the end thereof, or for such period as the person presiding thereat may consider sufficient to justify the payment of the allowance.

Receipts.

23F. Receipts for money received under the Act shall be signed by the Chairman, Vice-Chairman, or (when a Secretary has been appointed) the Secretary of the Board.

NOTIFICATION.

No. 2638A.—The 4th April 1916.—The following is substituted for rule 13 in Appendix VIII to the Rules for the Departmental Examination of Assistant Magistrates and others, dated the 14th September 1912:—

Rule 13.—Assistant Engineers should, on arrival in the country, be employed in such a manner as will afford them the experience of work necessary to enable them to pass the examinations laid down in the preceding paragraphs. Cases may, however, occur in which, owing to the exigencies of the public service, illness, or want of time, or opportunity for convening a committee, an officer may not be able to pass the examinations in question within the prescribed period. In such cases an officer may, at the discretion of Government, be afforded a reasonable extension of time up to a limit of one year, and if he passes within this further period no penalty should be enforced and he may be granted by Government the reward admissible for passing the compulsory vernacular test within the prescribed period. In the event of an officer failing to pass the examinations within the extended period his increments should be withheld and arrears of increments so withheld should not, on his passing the examinations, be granted to him except in special cases when his failure to pass has been due to circumstances beyond his own control. Failure to pass the examinations within the prescribed period will not, however, affect the amount of an officer's salary when he has subsequently passed the examinations and he will then be entitled to the rate of pay corresponding to the length of his service.

An officer of under 12 years' service who is transferred from another province where a different vernacular is current from the one prescribed for Bengal to this Presidency, may, at the discretion of Government, be required to pass the Lower Standard in Bengali within two years and the Higher Standard in Hindi by the colloquial test within four years of such transfer; and should he fail to do so he will be liable to the loss of further increments until he has passed.

J. H. KERR,
Offg. Chief Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

No. 5297P.—The 4th April 1916.—In exercise of the powers conferred by section 12, sub-section (1) of the Indian Press Act, 1910 (I of 1910), the Governor in Council hereby declares to be forfeited to His Majesty all copies, wherever found, of a leaflet in English entitled "Liberty", "A Review" beginning with the words "O Freedom! Thy birth-right was not given by human hands; thou wert twin-born with man" and ending with the words "for Freedom and Humanity are the gifts of Heaven" and all copies of all other documents containing the matter of the said leaflet, on the ground that the said leaflet contains exhortations to rebel against the British Government in India and to commit murder and therefore appears to the Governor in Council to contain words which have a tendency to incite to acts of violence and are of the nature described in section 4, sub-section (1), clause (a) of the said Act.

NOTIFICATIONS.

24-Parganas.

No. 4985P.—The 31st March 1916.—Whereas the Governor in Council has reason to believe that the members of a gang ordinarily residing in police stations Barasat, Habra, Amdanga, Khardah, Deganga and Baduria in the district of the 24-Parganas and commonly known as the members of the Joypul gang, are systematically addicted to the commission of non-bailable offences:

Now, therefore, the Governor-in-Council, in exercise of the power conferred by section 3 of the Criminal Tribes Act, 1911 (III of 1911), hereby declares the said gang to be a criminal tribe for the purposes of that Act.

24-Parganas.

No. 4986P.—The 31st March 1916.—In exercise of the power conferred by section 10 of the Criminal Tribes Act, 1911 (III of 1911), the Governor in Council hereby directs that every registered member of the Joypul gang which has been declared to be a criminal tribe by Notification No. 4985 P., dated the 31st March 1916, shall, in the prescribed manner, report himself at fixed intervals and notify his place of residence and any change or intended change of residence and any absence or intended absence from his residence.

No. 5153P.—The 3rd April 1916.—In exercise of the powers conferred by the clauses in column 3 opposite to paragraph (5) and paragraph (18), clause (c), of Schedule I to the Indian Arms Rules, 1909, issued by the Governor-General in Council with Home Department Notification No. 3102, dated the 16th August 1909, the Governor in Council is pleased to make the following amendments in the Notification of the Government of Bengal, No. 1340P.D., dated the 29th May 1913 (published at page 826 of Part I of the Calcutta Gazette of the 4th June 1913), namely :—

1. In column 3 opposite to item 2 of the table in the said Government of Bengal Notification No. 1340P.D., dated the 29th May 1913, for the word "second" substitute the word "third."
2. In column 3 opposite to item 4 of the said table, for the words "All the Great Zamindars of Bengal, and all persons included in this category" substitute the following:—

 "All persons who have been, or may hereafter be included in the category of Great Zamindars of Bengal."

3. In column 4 opposite to item 4 of the said table, for the words and brackets "for the personal use of the Zamindar himself (or the person included in the category of Zamindar)" substitute the following:—

 "for the personal use of the person included in the category of Great Zamindars."

Faridpur.

MARINE DEPARTMENT.

The 31st March 1916.

No. 43Marine.—It is hereby notified that, under section 6 of the Calcutta Port Act, 1890, the Hon'ble Mr. F. H. Stewart, C.I.E., of the Firm of Messrs. Gladstone, Wyllie & Co. has been re-elected as a representative of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce on the Calcutta Port Trust.

F. A. A. COWLEY,
Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

The 3rd April 1916.

No. 44Marine.—In exercise of the power conferred by section 10 of the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, 1859 (1 of 1859), the Governor in Council proposes to make the following rule regarding the issue, during the war, of temporary certificates of competency as Second Mate of Foreign-going and Home Trade Ships:—

"Following the procedure of the Board of Trade, the Government of Bengal have decided to issue, during the war, temporary certificates of competency as Second Mate to candidates who have served three years at sea, and who pass the examination for a Second Mate's certificate. The certificate issued will be marked "temporary" and will be valid only until three months after the termination of the present hostilities.

All the provisions of the Regulations for the examination of Masters and Mates issued by this Government which apply to the examination for a Second Mate's certificate, other than the requirement as to four years' serv ce at sea, will apply equally to the examination for a temporary Second Mate's certificate. Two years on a training ship followed by two years' service at sea will, therefore, qualify a candidate for examination for a temporary Second Mate's certificate.

On the completion of the service at sea required by the existing Regulations, the holder of a temporary Second Mate's certificate can exchange this certificate for a full Second Mate's certificate."

Any objections or suggestions with regard to the draft rule received by the undersigned within one month from the date of publication, will be duly considered.

NOTICE.

Examination of Compounders at the Dacca Medical School.

IT is hereby notified, for general information, that the next half-yearly examination for compounders will be held on the 17th April 1916, and subsequent days.

The examination will be conducted in accordance with Bengal Government Notifications Nos. 1410 and 1411 Medical, dated the 7th July 1913:—

(a) The Examining Committee will consist of—

PRESIDENT:

Lieut.-Col. E. A. R. Newman, I.M.S.,
Superintendent, Medical School, Dacca.

MEMBERS:

Teacher of Anatomy.
Teacher of Midwifery.

(b) No person will be admitted to this examination unless he produces certificates as required by rules 9, 10, 11 and 12 of Government Notification No. 1410 Medical, dated the 7th July 1913.

(c) All male candidates must forward to the undersigned an examination fee of Rs. 5, at least one week before the commencement of examination; a fresh fee must be paid on each occasion that the candidate enters for the examination; but a candidate, who, after payment of the fee, is unable, through illness, to attend the examination, will be allowed, on producing a satisfactory medical certificate to that effect, to attend the next examination without payment of a fresh fee.

NOTE.—Women candidates are examined free of charge.

(d) The students of the compounder class of the Medical Schools at the end of the one year of study and the students of the Licentiate class of these schools, on the completion of their second year's course, will be allowed to appear at an optional examination, to be conducted by the Committee of Examiners notified above—in minor bandaging, preparation of antiseptic lotions and dressings, sterilization of dressings and instruments, and in all the minor duties of hospital work. No additional fee shall be charged for this optional examination.

This examination is also open to persons qualified for admission to the examination prescribed under the Rules for the grant of certificates to compounders, on production of a certificate that they have received instruction in a hospital or dispensary recognised by Government in minor bandaging, preparation of antiseptie lotions and dressings, sterilization of dressings and instruments, and in all the minor duties of hospital work. Such persons shall be required to pay a fee of Rs. 2-8 for this examination. But no fee will be required from a candidate who appears at the combined Compounders' and Dressership Examination and who has paid the fee of Rs. 5 prescribed in para. (c).

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Darjeeling.

No. 3737For.—The 10th April 1916.—Mr. J. R. P. Gent, Assistant Conservator of Forests, is allowed combined leave for six months, viz., privilege leave for three months, under article 260 of the Civil Service Regulations, with effect from the 1st May 1916 or any subsequent date on which he may avail himself of it, and leave on medical certificate for the remaining period under article 336 of the Regulations.

Dacca.

No. 3616L.R.—The 7th April 1916.—Whereas it appears to the Board of Revenue, Bengal, that in consequence of the preparation of a record-of-rights in the district of Dacca and owing to the discovery of a considerable number of unregistered revenue-free properties, the circumstances of the district are so altered that it is no longer desirable or practicable to rewrite or maintain Part I of the Register of revenue-free lands (Register B, Part I) in the manner described in section 10 of the Land Registration Act, 1876;

And whereas the Board of Revenue directs under section 13 of the said Act that section 10 thereof shall not apply to the district of Dacca;

Now, therefore, in exercise of the power conferred by section 13 of the said Land Registration Act, 1876 (Ben. Act VII of 1876), the Governor in Council is pleased to sanction the following rules made by the Board of Revenue under the said section which shall, from the date of the publication of this notification, have the same force as if they were included in the said Act:—

Rules.

"1. There shall be kept a register called the Special Register of revenue-free lands for Dacca only which shall be a combination of Part I of the Register of revenue-free lands (Register B, Part I), and Part II of the Intermediate Register (Register D, Part II), as prescribed in sections 9 and 17, respectively, of the Land Registration Act, 1876, and shall contain the following particulars in respect of each entry:—

(a) Name of the revenue-free property.
(b) Number of revenue-free property.
(c) Former number in Register C.
(d) Name of pargana.
(e) Nature of revenue-free grant with date.
(f) Reference to authority or recognition of grant with date.
(g) Statement of mauzas in which the lands of the property are situated.
(h) Area (as ascertained by survey or other authentic measurement).
(i) Khatian number.
(j) Names and addresses of the proprietors and managers of the revenue-free property together with the character and extent of the interest of each proprietor and manager and all subsequent changes in the names of proprietors and managers and in the character and extent of interest of such proprietors and managers or any other changes relating to the revenue-free land and reference to the authority under which such changes are made."

"2. The entries in the said register of the newly discovered revenue-free properties will be made on the basis of the record-of-rights and corrections in the names of proprietors and other entries in respect of the properties already entered in the register will be made according to the record-of-rights."

"3. All the recorded proprietors and managers of the revenue-free properties entered in the said register shall be jointly and severally liable for the discharge of any duties and obligations which are by any law for the time being in force imposed upon the proprietors of such properties.

When any change affecting the proprietors or managers or the character or extent of the interests held occurs, all the proprietors and managers of the revenue-free properties entered in the aforesaid register shall be required to register their names according to the provisions of the Land Registration Act, 1876."

H. H. GREEN,
Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

IRRIGATION DEPARTMENT.

The 10th April 1916.

No. 9.—Notification.—In exercise of the powers conferred by section 90 of the Bengal Embankment Act, 1882 (Bengal Act II of 1882), and in supersession of Notification No. 108, dated the 26th February 1884 (published at pages 399-400 of the Calcutta Gazette of the 27th idem), as amended by Notification No. 11, dated the 16th November 1908, the Governor in Council is pleased to make the following rules for carrying out the provisions of the said Act.

Rules.

1. All estimates for works or repairs or for maintenance of public embankments which are prepared under section 7 or section 47 of the Bengal Embankment Act, 1882 (Bengal Act II of 1882), shall include the estimated cost of all petty establishment employed for watching or guarding embankments and for working sluices.

2. (1) Such estimates shall also include such charges for directing and supervising establishment and for the use of tools and plant as may be directed by the Governor in Council from time to time.

(2) The said charges shall not exceed in all 26 per cent. on the estimated outlay on the works or repairs, exclusive of charges for the acquisition of land or for petty establishment. The charge for supervising establishment and tools and plant shall ordinarily be a consolidated one of 10 per cent. on the outlay on the works (excluding land and petty establishment), but if in any particular case it is desired to make a higher charge or to reduce or remit the charge altogether, a reference must be made to Government at the time when the estimate is prepared.

3. The Collector shall, previous to submitting a report to the Commissioner under section 11, 19 or 43 of the Act, obtain the written opinion of the Superintending Engineer, which shall form part of the record of proceedings in the case.

No notices regarding new works, the estimated cost of which exceeds Rs. 2,500, shall be published under section 9 of the Act, until the estimates, specifications and plans have received the approval of the Chief Engineer.

4. No estimate referred to in section 49 of the Act shall be transmitted to the Collector, until it has been countersigned by the Superintending Engineer, who shall be responsible that the repairs proposed to be executed are necessary, that it is proposed to execute them in the proper manner and that the rates entered in the estimate are fair and reasonable.

5. The Superintending Engineer shall, on the requisition of the Collector, furnish a written opinion on any work which it is proposed to execute under the Act, causing all necessary surveys to be made.

6. Where the Collector, under the last preceding rule, requires surveys to be made, he shall either cause the estimated cost of the same to be paid to the Engineer, or procure sanction, under the ordinary rules for the disbursement of public money, to the proposed expenditure. Such deposit or sanction shall provide for the salaries and allowances of the Engineers and Surveyors intended to be employed.

7. The Superintending Engineer shall, in any enquiry under section 51 of the Act, on receiving a requisition to that effect from the Collector, give his written opinion as to the boundaries of the lands affected by such works or repairs, and the extent to which they have been benefited or affected. This opinion shall form part of the record of proceedings in the case.

8. Notwithstanding that there is no express mention in section 52 of the Act of objections preferred before the Collector to the Engineer's accounts and certificate of expenses, on the ground that certain lands are not benefited by the works or repairs as specified in such certificate, the Collector shall entertain and consider such objections. As the disposal of such objections will often depend on professional enquiries, the Collector shall ordinarily consult the Engineer and, if necessary, the Superintending Engineer, before passing orders, and the substance of the reference to the Engineer, and of his reply shall form part of the record.

If, on such objection the Collector shall come to the conclusion that any alteration should be made in the certificate which has been signed by the Engineer, under section 51, he may at any time, before making an order charging or apportioning the amount under section 58 of the Act, make such alteration as provided in section 52.

9. When it appears likely that the ordinary procedure under the Act would be attended with grave and imminent danger to life and property, and proceedings are taken by the Collector, under section 25 of the Act, or by the Engineer, under section 29, the Collector shall make an immediate report to the Commissioner, and forward a copy thereof to the Superintending Engineer. In such cases the Commissioner shall lose no time in submitting a copy of the said report, with his opinion thereon, for the orders of Government.

10. All orders passed under section 31 of the Act shall be in writing, and the applicant shall be entitled to receive a copy of the same, free of charge, on application. The Engineer shall delegate to all Public Works Subdivisional Officers the power of receiving applications, under section 31 of the Act, for temporary roadways and temporary water-courses, but no person so appointed shall pass an order for the construction of a temporary water-course, unless he has been specially authorised to do so by the Superintending Engineer. Such authority shall specify the embankments in regard to which only this power is to be exercised. In all cases where an application for a temporary water-course is made to a person appointed by the Engineer, such application shall be submitted to the Engineer for transmission to the Collector. The Engineer, in forwarding applications under this section to the Collector, shall state in writing whether, in his opinion, they can be sanctioned without endangering the safety of the embankment.

11. All Public Works Subdivisional Officers shall be authorised to open or shut sluices under general rules to be issued by the Engineer, with the approval of the Collector. A copy of all rules made under this section shall be transmitted to the Superintending Engineer.

12. Any order to remove an embankment or obstruction, or to repair damage, passed under section 79 of the Act, shall be appealable to the Court to which an appeal ordinarily lies from the decision of the Magistrate who passes the order.

13. The Engineer shall submit to Government, through the Superintending Engineer, an annual report on the state of each Schedule D embankment in his charge on the 1st of April of each year. The report shall contain the following particulars:—

(a) the original length of the embankment;
(b) the length as maintained during the year;
(c) the area it protects:
(d) the floods during the year;
(e) how the embankment was affected by the floods of the year;
(f) the cost of its upkeep;
(g) whether there has been any encroachment on embankment land during the year; if in the affirmative, what steps have been taken to bring the offender to justice;
(h) if the crest of the embankment is sufficiently high to protect the lands within from floods in the river.

14. The Engineer in charge shall submit to Government annually, through the Superintending Engineer, a report with plans shewing what embankments, if any, have been erected or added to within any tract included in a prohibitory notification issued under section 6 of the Act.

F. A. A. COWLEY,
Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

DRAFT RULES.

MASONRY BUILDINGS.

Condition as to use of building sites.

1. No piece of land shall be used as a site for the erection or re-erection of a masonry building (other than a Government building) intended to be used as a public building or a dwelling-house, and no such building shall be erected or re-erected thereon, unless the site is certified by the Chairman to be dry and well drained or to be capable of being well drained.

Particulars to accompany notice of erecting or re-erecting a masonry building.

2. Every person who intends to erect or re-erect a masonry building shall forward to the Chairman, with the notice required by section 237(1) of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, a plan and specification of the building and a site-plan of the land on which he proposes to make the erection or re-erection. He must also indicate in the said notice the description of the building and its dimensions, and also the position of the site, the number assigned to it in the assessment book, its dimensions and such other particulars as may be prescribed by the Chairman.

Floors of certain buildings of the warehouse class.

3. The floor of every masonry building of the warehouse class, intended to be used for the manufacture or storage of articles for human consumption, shall be constructed of some impermeable material approved by the Chairman.

Building over municipal drain.

4. A masonry building shall not be placed over any Municipal drain except with the written consent of the Chairman.

Level of floor.

5. The floor or lowest floor of every masonry building erected or re-erected from the ground must be constructed at such level as will admit of the construction of a drain sufficient for the effectual drainage of the building, and placed at such level as will admit of the drainage being led into some Municipal drain at the time existing or projected.

Foundation

6. Except with the sanction of the Chairman, the foundation of a masonry building must rest on solid ground.

Plinth.

7. The plinth of a masonry building must be at least two feet above the level of the centre of the nearest street: provided that the plinth of stables and cow-sheds need not be more than one foot above such level.

8. (1) If a masonry building exceeds one storey in height.—

Walls in building exceeding one storey in height.

(a) no part of any wall, other than a cornice or a moulding, shall overhang any part of a wall underneath it, and

(b) every wall must be of such thickness as the Chairman may consider necessary to ensure safety, regard being had to the height of the building, the materials of which it is constructed and the purpose for which it is intended to use it.

(2) Nothing contained in sub-rule (1) shall prevent the placing of a second storey upon an existing masonry building, the walls of which are certified by the Chairman as being able to bear the load proposed to be put upon them.

Interior courtyards and outward open spaces to be raised.

9. Every interior courtyard and every open space must be raised at least one foot above the level of the centre of the nearest street, so as to admit of easy drainage into the street.

10. No masonry building exceeding fifty feet in height shall be erected without the special permission of the Chairman.

Height.

11. The site-plan sent to the Chairman under rule 2 must be drawn to a scale of not less than one-fiftieth of an inch to a foot, must be sent in duplicate, and must show—

Site-plan.

(a) the boundaries of the site and of any contiguous land belonging to the owner thereof ;—

(b) the position, form and dimensions of privies, urinals, drains, cesspools, stables, cattle-sheds, cow-houses, wells and other appurtenances of the building ;

(c) space to be left about the building to secure a free circulation of air, admisssion of light and access for scavengering purposes ; and

(d) such other particulars as may be prescribed by the Chairman.

12. The plan of the building (and the elevations and sections, whenever necessary), sent to the Chairman under rule 2, must be neatly and accurately drawn to a scale of not less than one-eighth of an inch to a foot, must be sent in duplicate and must show—

Building-plan.

(a) the level and width of the foundation of the building ;

(b) the level of the lowest floor of the building, and

(c) the level of all courtyards and open spaces in the building or premises and the plinth level of the building with reference to the level at the centre of the nearest street.

13. The specifications sent to the Chairman with any such plan must comprise full information as to the following particulars :—

Specifications

(i) the manner in which roof and house drainage and the surface drainage of the land will be disposed of ;

(ii) the means of access that will be available to scavengers to get to service-privies ;

(iii) if the building is intended to be used as a dwelling-house for two or more families, or as a place for carrying on any trade or business in which more than 20 people may be employed, or as a place of public resort—the means of ingress and egress ; and

(iv) such other particulars as may be prescribed by the Chairman.

14. The plan, elevations and sections referred to in rules 11 and 12 must be signed clearly and in a prominent place by the owner of the building, or if he is an illiterate man, by any other person authorised by him to sign in his behalf, in which case they must be marked with the owner's thumb-impression.

Signature of plans, elevations and sections.

Chairman to sign approved plans.

15. The Chairman shall sign all passed plans in token of his approval.

16. (1) Rules 2, 11, 12, 13, 14 and 15 shall not be applied in the case of any alteration of, or addition to, a masonry building, unless one or more of the following works is or are undertaken, namely :—

Restriction on application of certain rules.

(a) the construction of a roof or an external or party wall ;

(b) any repairs to the building which involve the reconstruction of masonry wall after the same has been entirely or in a great part demolished ;

(c) the closing of any door or window in an external wall ;

(d) the construction of an internal wall or partition ;

(e) any other alteration of the internal arrangements of a building which affects the alteration of its courtyard or courtyards, or its drainage, ventilation or sanitary arrangements or which affects its security;

(f) the addition of any building, room, outhouse or other structure;

(g) the roofing of any space between one or more walls and buildings;

(h) the conversion into more than one place for human habitation of a building originally constructed as one such place;

(j) the conversion of two or more places of human habitation into a greater number of such places;

(k) the alteration of a building for the purpose of effecting partition amongst joint owners.

(2) In the case referred to in clause (g) of sub-rule (1), the said rules 2, 11, 12, 13, 14 and 15 shall apply only as regards the structure which is formed by roofing a space and not as regards adjoining buildings.

PRIVIES FOR MASONRY BUILDINGS.

Site of privies.

17. Every service privy shall be detached from the inhabited portion of a masonry building.

Models and type-plans.

18. Models and type-plans of privies approved by the Commissioners in meeting with estimates of the cost of constructing privies in accordance therewith, shall be kept in the Municipal office and shall be open to inspection by any person at all reasonable times without charge, but no person shall be bound to construct any privy in accordance with any such model or type-plan, if the same be constructed in accordance with the other rules on the subject contained in these rules.

Drain

19. (1) A drain must be provided for every privy.

(2) Such drain must be constructed of some impervious material, and must connect the floor of the privy—

(a) with a drain communicating with a Municipal drain, or

(b) with an impervious cess-pool the contents of which can be removed to a municipal drain, either by hand or by flow after filtration.

Floor.

20. (1) The floor of every privy—

(a) must, if the Chairman in any case so directs, be made of one of the following materials, to be selected by the owner of the privy, that is to say, glazed tiles, artificial stone or cement or,

(b) if no such direction is given, must be made of thoroughly well-burnt earthen tiles or bricks plastered with cement, and

(c) must be in every part at a height of not less than twelve inches above the level of the surface of the ground adjoining the privy.

(2) The floor of every service privy must have a fall or inclination of at least half an inch to the foot towards the drain, as prescribed in rule 19.

Walls and roof.

21. The walls and the roof (if any) of every privy shall be made of such materials as may be approved by the Chairman:

Provided that in the case of service privies, the entire surface of the walls below the platform shall either be rendered in cement or be made as prescribed in clause (a) or clause (b) of rule 20.

Platform.

22. The platform of every privy must either be plastered with cement or be made of some water-tight non-absorbent material.

23. Every privy and water-closet situated in or adjacent to a building must have an opening of not less than three square feet in area in one of the walls of the privy, or water-closet as near the top of the wall as may be practicable and communicating directly with the open air.

Ventilation.

Receptacle for sewage.

24. (1) Every service privy must be provided with a movable receptacle for sewage.

(2) The following provisions shall have effect with regard to such privies and receptacles, that is to say—

(a) the space beneath the platform of the privy must be of such dimensions as to admit of a movable receptacle for sewage of a capacity not exceeding two cubic feet, being placed and fitted beneath the platform in such manner and position as will effectively prevent the deposit, otherwise than in such receptacle, of any sewage falling or thrown through the aperture of the platform;

(b) the privy must be so constructed as to afford adequate access to the said space for the purposes of cleansing such space, and of placing therein, and removing therefrom, a proper receptacle for sewage;

(c) the said receptacle must be water-tight and must be made of metal, well-tarred earthenware or glazed stoneware, and must be of such construction and shape as will admit of its being easily removed and emptied of its contents;

(d) the door for the insertion and removal of the receptacle must be made so as to completely cover the aperture.

25. Every water-closet and privy situated in a building must be separated by a masonry wall from kitchens, habitable rooms and rooms in which any person is, or is intended to be employed in any manufacture, trade or business.

Separation wall.

26. (1) The height of the ground-floor of the privy on which the movable receptacle is to be placed must be not less than one foot above the ground-level.

Height

(2) The height of the wall between the ground-floor and the first floor or platform containing the aperture must be not less than three feet; and

(3) The height of the wall between the first floor and the centre of the roof must be not less than five feet.

Drains for houses (not being huts).

27. The Chairman may, for sanitary purposes, require the owner or occupier of a house to provide for the separate drainage therefrom of foul or polluted water.

Chairman may require provision for separate drains for foul water.

28. The owner or occupier of any premises shall, provided that he first obtain the written permission of the Chairman and that he complies with such conditions as the Chairman may prescribe as to the mode in which communications between house-drains and municipal drains are to be made, be entitled to cause his house-drain to empty into a municipal drain.

House-drain may empty into municipal drain, subject to approval of Chairman.

29. Every house-drain must have an internal diameter of not less than four inches.

Capacity of house-drain.

30. Every such house-drain must be laid upon a bed of good concrete not less than six inches thick, and have a proper fall.

House-drain must be laid upon a bed of concrete.

Cess-pools.

31. No person shall construct a cess-pool beneath any part of a masonry building which is used, or intended to be used, for human habitation or in which any person is, or is intended to be, employed in any manufacture, trade or business.

Cess-pools not to be placed beneath an inhabited part of the masonry building.

2. The draft will be taken into consideration on the 22nd May 1916, and any objection or suggestion received by the undersigned through District Officers before that date will be duly considered.

DRAFT RULES FOR THE PREPARATION, SUBMISSION AND EXECUTION OF PROJECTS FOR WATER-SUPPLY, SEWERAGE OR DRAINAGE BY LOCAL AUTHORITIES.

Definition.

1. In these rules "local authority" means the members of a District or Local Board, constituted under the provisions of the Bengal Local Self-Government Act, 1885.

Schemes and Projects.

Preparation of sketch of project.

2. (1) Whenever a local authority desires to undertake a project for water-supply, or sewerage, or a comprehensive scheme of surface drainage, or the improvement or extension of existing works of this description, at an estimated cost of more than Rs. 5,000 in each case or of Rs. 5,000 and less if the scheme is part of a larger scheme or one for which financial assistance from Government is required, it shall first cause to be drawn up a sketch of the project roughly shewing its scope and approximate cost.

(2) Such sketch may be drawn up—

(a) by the Sanitary Engineer at the request of the local authority; or

(b) by the District Engineer; or

(c) by any other engineer in its employ or specially appointed for the purpose, subject in either case to the selection of such officer being approved of by the Sanitary Engineer; or (d) by any private firm of established reputation approved of by the Sanitary Engineer.

(3) The Sanitary Engineer shall, in all cases, act as adviser of the local authority.

Submission of sketch, statement and application.

3. (1) When the sketch of the project has been drawn up under rule 2 and it is estimated to cost Rs. 10,000 or more, or, in the case of an estimate of less than Rs. 10,000, if the financial assistance of Government is desired, the local authority shall submit it, for administrative approval, to the Municipal Department of Government, through the Commissioner of the Division and the Sanitary Engineer, together with a statement wherein shall be shewn the amount of the funds available to meet the capital and recurring cost of the project either from current revenue or by way of loan or from any other source.

(2) In the case of a scheme, the total estimated cost of which is less than Rs. 10,000 but more than Rs. 5,000, not being part of a larger scheme or one for which financial assistance from Government is required, the administrative approval or final sanction of Government shall not be necessary; but the Sanitary Engineer must be consulted, and the scheme, with a copy of the Sanitary Engineer's opinion on it, must be submitted to the Commissioner of the Division for approval.

4. In order to obtain administrative approval of Government or the Commissioner of the Division, as the case may be, to any project, the local authority shall show—

Conditions precedent to obtaining administrative approval to a project.

(1) that the cost of maintenance of the projected work can be met by the local authority from revenue;

(2) that any loan required to meet the cost of the work can be repaid, together with the interest thereon within the period that may be prescribed by the Government; and

(3) that the work can be done effectually in the manner and for the cost proposed.

Procedure after grant of administrative approval. Preparation of detailed plans and estimates.

5. (1) When the administrative approval of Government or the Commissioner of the Division, as the case may be, has been obtained to any project and in no case before, the local authority may arrange for the preparation of detailed plans and estimates, and for this purpose may—

(a) apply for the services of the Sanitary Engineer; or

(b) with the previous sanction of the Sanitary Engineer entrust the work—

(i) to the District Engineer, or

(ii) to any other Engineer in its employ, or

(iii) to an Engineer specially appointed for the purpose, or

(iv) to a private firm of established reputation:

Provided that in cases (ii) and (iii) the selection of the Engineer shall be approved of by the Sanitary Engineer who shall first satisfy himself that the said Engineer is fully qualified for the work in question.

(2) In the case of (b) referred to in sub-rule (1), the plans and estimates while in course of preparation shall be subject to the examination and control of the Sanitary Engineer.

Submission of detailed plans and estimates to Government through Sanitary Board for final sanction.

6. (1) The plans and estimates shall, on completion, be forwarded in duplicate to the Municipal Department of Government for final sanction through the Commissioner of the Division and the Sanitary Engineer, together with a full report on the financial aspect of the scheme and the state of public feeling in regard to it, and, if a loan is required, with an application in the prescribed form.

(2) In the case of drainage schemes the estimates must be submitted in Sanitary Board's Forms Nos. 21 and 22, copies of which may be obtained from the office of the Sanitary Engineer.

(3) When the scheme has not been prepared in the Sanitary Engineer's office, it shall be accompanied by full details of the calculations of the sizes and strength of the various works and complete information as to the prices on which the estimates have been framed.

Commencement of work.

7. No work shall be commenced on the project nor shall any agreement be entered into until the detailed plans and estimates have received the final sanction of Government or of the Commissioner of the Division, as the case may be.

Sanction to heavy excesses over detailed estimates.

8. If at any time during the progress of the work, the local authority has reason to anticipate that the sanctioned detailed estimate will be exceeded by more than 10 per cent., or if it shall at any time appear that the sanctioned detailed scheme will require material alteration, the local authority must forthwith submit to Government for approval a revised scheme with revised estimates and plans.

The revised estimates and plans must be prepared—

(a) in the case of schemes prepared and carried out by the District Engineer or any other Engineer in its employ under rules 5 (1) (b) (i and ii) and 10 (2) (a)—by the District or other Engineer entrusted with the work and scrutinised by the Sanitary Engineer;

(b) in the case of schemes prepared and carried out by an Engineer specially appointed for the purpose or by a firm of Engineers of established reputation under rules 5 (1) (b) (iii and iv) and 10 (2) (b)—by the Engineer so appointed or the firm of Engineers and scrutinised by the Sanitary Engineer;

(c) in all other cases—by the Sanitary Engineer.

9. (1) When requested by the local authority concerned, the Sanitary Engineer shall, if he considers that he can so arrange without detriment to the public service, take over the complete supervision and control of the work of carrying out any such project on payment of the percentages prescribed in rule 28. Such works are to be considered as contribution works and are to be carried out by the Sanitary Engineer's Department under the rules regarding such works in paragraphs 861 to 865 of the Public Works Code except that the provision made for establishment, etc., will be the percentages prescribed in rule 28 (1) hereof or such percentages as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe and need not be the established percentages laid down for the Bengal Presidency.

Taking over of complete supervision and control by Sanitary Engineer.

(2) In addition to the above percentages, the local authority shall bear all law charges on behalf of Government in any suits brought by contractors or others in connection with the execution of any project entrusted to the Sanitary Engineer, in which Government or its officers may be joined as parties with the local authority or its representatives.

10. (1) Where the cost of the projected work is estimated to amount to Rs. 10,000 or more, adequate provision for detailed engineering supervision shall be a condition precedent to the grant of final sanction by the Government.

Conditions as to detailed engineering supervision.

(2) In the absence of special sanction to the contrary, one of the following arrangements shall be made—

(a) that, with the previous approval of the Sanitary Engineer, the work be carried out under the supervision of the District Engineer or any other Engineer in its employ; or

(b) that the work be carried out under the supervision of an Engineer specially employed for the purpose, assisted by an adequate establishment of properly-qualified overseers, the name and qualifications of the Engineer having been previously submitted to the Sanitary Engineer and approved by him; or

(c) that the work be carried out, under the complete supervision or control of the Sanitary Engineer under an arrangement provided for in rule 9.

(3) In the cases of conditions (a) and (b), referred to in sub-rule (2), the work while in progress shall be subject to the inspection and control of the Sanitary Engineer.

11. Where the estimated cost of works amounts to less than Rs. 10,000, but more than Rs. 5,000 the local authority shall report, for the information of the Commissioner of the Division, the agency by which it is proposed to have such works carried out, and shall follow the instructions issued by him in the matter.

Report by local authority to the Commissioner in case of small work.

Tenders and Contracts.

12. In the case of works carried out under clauses (a) and (b) of rule 10 (2) the following procedure (rules 13 to 21) shall be followed.

13. When requested by the local authority the Sanitary Engineer shall prepare working or contract drawings, specifications, estimates, bills of quantities, forms of tender, or other documents or plans required for the execution of sanitary engineering works which have been duly sanctioned and which are to be let out by contract, as well as forms of advertisement inviting tenders for such works.

Preparation of drawings, specifications, forms of tender, etc.

14. When drawings, specifications, bills of quantities, forms of tender, and other documents referred to in rule 13 are not prepared by the Sanitary Engineer, such drawings, specifications, etc., shall be submitted to the Sanitary Engineer for his approval in writing before tenders for the contract of such work are advertised for in the public press.

Approval of Sanitary Engineer to drawings, specifications, forms of tender, etc.

15. Every advertisement for tenders shall briefly describe the works required to be carried out, the place or places where plans and drawings can be seen and copies of the specifications and forms of tender obtained, the deposit to be paid by any person making a tender, and the date and hour up to which tenders shall be received by the Chairman or the Vice-Chairman of the local authority.

Approval of plans, drawings, specifications, forms of tender, etc., by the local authority.

16. The plans, drawings, specifications, bills of quantities, forms of tender and advertisements shall be formally approved by the local authority in meeting. Whenever the said authority desires to make any alteration in any one of such documents, the Sanitary Engineer shall be informed and his advice obtained with regard to such alteration.

Submission and receipt of tenders.

17. All tenders shall be submitted in sealed covers addressed to the Chairman or the Vice-Chairman of the local authority, and such officer shall attend in person at the office of that authority or at any other place to which it may be directed that tenders shall be forwarded at the latest hour specified in the advertisement for the receipt thereof. Any tender received after such hour shall be out of order and shall not be accepted.

Opening and numbering of tenders.

18. The Chairman or the Vice-Chairman of the local authority shall himself open the tenders, shall number each tender and shall note thereon the exact time at which it was opened.

Check and scrutiny of tenders.

19. After the tenders have been opened, they shall be sent for check and scrutiny to the Sanitary Engineer, or, in cases where the District Engineer or any other Engineer in the employ of the local authority is entrusted with the work, to the District Engineer, who shall, in case of difficulty or uncertainty, consult the Sanitary Engineer.

Return of tenders after check and scrutiny.

20. The Sanitary Engineer, or the District Engineer in charge, as the case may be, shall, after checking and scrutinising the tenders, return them to the local authority with his remarks and recommendations.

Consideration of tenders.

21. The local authority shall thereafter consider the tenders in meeting and either accept one of them provisionally or, if necessary or desirable, refer the question to the Sanitary Engineer for further advice.

Acceptance of tender.

22. No tender shall be accepted which is not in order, is not fully priced out and is not in every way in accordance with the instructions contained in the advertisement inviting such tenders. Any alteration or reduction in a tender made by the person making the tender after the same has once been submitted shall (except in the case of a palpable arithmetical error) at once render the tender out of order.

Discharge of tenders and advertisement for fresh tenders.

23. If it is found that none of the tenders submitted is satisfactory, or if for any reason it is believed that the conditions of tendering have not been properly understood, so that fair tenders have not been received, all such tenders shall be discharged and fresh tenders shall be advertised for.

Provisional acceptance and submission of a tender to the Sanitary Engineer.

24. After a tender has been provisionally accepted, it shall be submitted to the Sanitary Engineer for final approval, together with all other tenders received for the work, and until such approval has been received no tender shall be finally accepted by the local authority:

Provided that, in case of difference of opinion between the local authority and the Sanitary Engineer in regard to the acceptance of a particular tender, the matter shall, if the local athority so desires, be referred to the Chief Engineer, Roads and Buildings, whose decision shall be final and binding on all parties.

25. Cases of works carried out under the complete supervision or control of the Sanitary Engineer under rule 10 (2)(c); shall be governed by the rules contained in Chapter VIII of the Public Works Department Code.

Fees.

The fees mentioned in column 2 of the following table shall be leviable from a local authority for the services of the Sanitary Engineer for the work specified, opposite thereto, in column 1 of that table :—

Fees.

Nature of work.	Fees.
(a) Preparation of detailed estimates and drawings for projects and schemes.	2 per cent. on the estimated cost of the works.
(b) Examination and check of detailed estimates and drawings for projects and schemes prepared by a different agency.	½ per cent. on the first Rs. 20,000 of the estimated cost, and ¼ per cent. on the balance of the estimated cost of the works.

Provided that, when both detailed estimates and drawings and contract drawings, specifications, and forms of tender [as specified in items (a) and (c), respectively, in column 1 of the above table] in respect of the same works are prepared by the Sanitary Engineer, an inclusive fee of 3 per cent. on the estimated cost of such works shall be charged.

NOTE.—In calculating the fees the cost of survey and the cost of land acquisition shall be excluded from the estimated cost.

27. When the preparation of the sketch of a project is undertaken or supervised by the Sanitary Engineer under rule 2, no charge shall be made for his services or for those of his assistants, or for the services of Government surveyors, draftsmen and tracers engaged in such work; drawing materials and the instruments required for such work shall also be provided at Government expense. But the local authority shall render all reasonable assistance on the spot in supplying survey coolies and survey pegs and in fixing bench-marks, etc., and shall pay the actual cost of the same. Such authority shall also in each case provide a suitable office properly furnished for the use of the Government surveyors and draftsmen.

No charge for services of the Sanitary Engineer or his assistants for preparation of sketch of project

Percentages leviable for supervision and control by Sanitary Engineer

For schemes costing—			Rs.
Less than Rs. 20,000	...	8 per cent. on the total final cost of the scheme subject to a maximum of ...	1,400
Rs. 20,000 or more, but less than Rs.	50,000	7 ditto ditto ...	3,250

„ 10,00,000 and over	...	3½ per cent. on the total final cost of the scheme.

(2) The percentages specified in sub-rule (1) shall be payable on the Sanitary Engineer's certificate as follows : 25 per cent. of the total percentages chargeable on the amount of any separate contract when such contract has been let; an additional 25 per cent. of the amount of the percentages when half the work, included in the contract, has been completed; a further 25 per cent. of the amount of the percentages when 75 per cent. of the work has been completed; and the balance when the work included in the contract has been satisfactorily finished and the total amount payable on the contract has been finally settled.

Note.—In calculating the percentages, the cost of survey, land acquisition and supervision shall be excluded from the total cost.

No. 1331L.S.-G.—The 6th April 1916.—The following draft of the rules for the preparation, submission and execution of projects for water-supply, sewerage or drainage undertaken by municipal authorities which the Governor in Council proposes to make under clauses (i) and (ii) of sub-section (1) of section 69 and under clause (ii) of section 69B of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884 (Bengal Act III of 1884), and in supersession of the existing rules on the subject as published with Bengal Government Notification No. 129M., dated the 13th January 1914, is published for the information of persons likely to be affected thereby.

2. The draft will be taken into consideration on the 22nd May 1916, and any objection or suggestion received by the undersigned through District Officers before that date will be duly considered.

RULES FOR THE PREPARATION, SUBMISSION AND EXECUTION OF PROJECTS FOR WATER-SUPPLY, SEWERAGE OR DRAINAGE BY MUNICIPAL AUTHORITIES.

Definition.

1. In these rules " municipal authority " means the commissioners of a municipality constituted under the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, and includes a Joint Committee constituted under section 37A of the Act.

Schemes and Projects.

Preparation of sketch of project.

2. (1) Whenever a municipal authority desires to undertake a project for water-supply or sewerage or a comprehensive scheme of surface drainage, or the improvement or extension of existing works of this description at an estimated cost of more than Rs. 5,000, it shall first cause to be drawn up a sketch of the project roughly shewing its scope and approximate cost.

(2) Such sketch may be drawn up—

(a) by the Sanitary Engineer at the request of the municipal authority; or

(b) by any private firm of established reputation approved by the Sanitary Engineer; or

(c) with the permission of the Sanitary Engineer, by the District Engineer, for whose services an application should be made to the District Board; or

(d) by one of its own officers or by an officer specially appointed for the purpose, subject in either case to the selection of such officer being approved of by the Sanitary Engineer.

(3) In the cases of (b) to (d) referred to in sub-rule (2), the sketch of the project while in course of preparation shall be subject to the examination and control of the Sanitary Engineer.

(4) The Sanitary Engineer shall, in all cases, act as adviser of the municipal authority.

Submission of sketch, statement and application.

3. (1) When the sketch of any project has been drawn up under rule 2 the municipal authority shall submit it to the Sanitary Board through the Commissioner of the Division, together with a statement wherein shall be shewn the amount of the funds available to meet the capital and recurring cost of the project either from current revenue or by way of loan or from any other source.

(2) The Sanitary Board, after considering the project in consultation with the Committee constituted under section 37C of the Act, shall forward it to the Municipal Department of Government for administrative approval with such recommendations as they may think fit and, in the case of schemes relating to local areas under the control of two or more local authorities, with proposals for the distribution of the costs under section 37E.

4. In order to obtain the administrative approval of Government to any such project, the municipal authority shall satisfy Government—

Conditions precedent to obtaining administrative approval of Government to a project.

(1) that the cost of maintenance of the projected work can be met by the municipal authority from revenue;

(2) that any loan required to meet the cost of the work can be repaid, together with the interest thereon, within the period that may be prescribed by the Government; and

(3) that the work can be done effectually in the manner and for the cost proposed.

Procedure after grant of administrative approval. Preparation of detailed plans and estimates.

5. (1) When the administrative approval of Government has been obtained to any such project and in no case before, the municipal authority may arrange for the preparation of detailed plans and estimates, and for this purpose may—

(a) apply for the services of the Sanitary Engineer; or

(b) with the previous sanction of the Sanitary Engineer—

(i) entrust the work to a private firm of established reputation; or

(ii) apply to the District Board for the services of the District Engineer; or

(iii) cause the plans and estimates to be prepared by one of its own officers or by an officer specially appointed for the purpose, subject in either case to the selection of such officer being approved of by the Sanitary Engineer who shall first satisfy himself that the officer is fully qualified for the work in question.

(2) In the case of (b) referred to in sub-rule (1), the plans and estimates while in course of preparation shall be subject to the examination and control of the Sanitary Engineer.

Submission of detailed plans and estimates to Government through Sanitary Board for final sanction.

6. (1) The plans and estimates shall on completion be forwarded in duplicate to the Sanitary Board, through the Commissioner of the Division, together with the particulars required under section 37F of the Act and a report on the state of puplic feeling in regard to the scheme; and, if a loan is required, with an application in the prescribed form.

(2) In the case of schemes for the improvement or extension of existing waterworks, the particulars mentioned in clause (1) should be accompanied by a statement shewing in detail the financial position of the Water Supply Fund.

(3) In the case of drainage schemes the estimates must be submitted in Sanitary Board's Forms Nos. 21 and 22, copies of which may be obtained from the office of the Sanitary Engineer.

(4) When the scheme has not been prepared in the Sanitary Engineer's office, it shall be accompanied by full details of the calculations of the sizes and strength of the various works and complete information as to the prices on which the estimates have been framed.

(5) The Sanitary Board, acting in consultation with the committee constituted under section 37C of the Act, shall submit the scheme to the Municipal Department of Government for final sanction, with an expression of their opinion on its merits as finally drawn up.

Commencement of work.

7. No work shall be commenced on the project nor shall any agreement be entered into until the detailed plans and estimates have received the final sanction of Government.

Sanction to heavy excesses over detailed estimates.

8. If at any time during the progress of the work the municipal authority has reason to anticipate that the sanctioned detailed estimate will be exceeded by more than 10 per cent., or if it shall at any time appear to the municipal authority that the sanctioned detailed scheme will require material alteration, the municipal authority must forthwith submit to Government for approval a revised scheme with revised estimates and plans.

The revised estimates and plans must be prepared—

(a) in the case of schemes prepared and carried out by the municipal engineer under rules 5 (1) (b) (iii) and 10 (2) (a), by that officer and scrutinised by the Sanitary Engineer;
(b) in the case of schemes prepared and carried out by a firm of engineers of established reputation or by an engineer specially appointed for the purpose under rule 5 (1) (b) (i) or 5 (1) (b) (iii) and rule 10 (2) (a), by the firm of engineers or the engineer so appointed and scrutinised by the Sanitary Engineer;
(c) in the case of schemes prepared and carried out by the District Engineer under rules 5 (1) (b) (ii) and 10 (2) (b), by that officer and scrutinised by the Sanitary Engineer;
(d) in all other cases, by the Sanitary Engineer.

Taking over of complete supervision and control by Sanitary Engineer.

9. (1) When requested by the municipal authority concerned the Sanitary Engineer shall, if he considers that he can so arrange without detriment to the public service, take over the complete supervision and control of the work of carrying out any such project on payment of the percentages prescribed in rule 28. Such works are to be considered as contribution works and are to be carried out by the Sanitary Engineer's Department under the rules regarding such works in paragraphs 861 to 865 of the Public Works Department Code except that the provision made for establishment, &c., will be the percentages prescribed in rule 28 (1) hereof or such percentages as the Local Government may from time to time prescribe and need not be the established percentages laid down for the Bengal Presidency.

(2) In addition to the above percentages, the municipal authority shall bear all law charges on behalf of Government in any suits brought by contractors or others in connection with the execution of any project entrusted to the Sanitary Engineer in which Government or its officers may be joined as parties with the municipal authority or its representatives.

Conditions as to detailed engineering supervision.

10. (1) Where the cost of the projected work is estimated to amount to Rs. 10,000 or more, adequate provision for detailed engineering supervision shall be a condition precedent to the grant of final sanction by the Government.

(2) In the absence of special sanction to the contrary, one of the following arrangements shall be made—

(a) that the work be carried out under the supervision of an engineer, either permanently employed by the municipal authority or specially employed for the purpose, assisted by an adequate establishment of properly qualified overseers, the name and qualifications of the engineer having been previously submitted to the Sanitary Engineer and approved by him; or
(b) that, with the previous approval of the Sanitary Engineer, arrangements be made with the District Board for the carrying out of the work under the supervision of the District Engineer and his staff; or
(c) that the work be carried out under the complete supervision or control of the Sanitary Engineer under the arrangement provided for in rule 9.

(3) In the cases of conditions (a) and (b) referred to in sub-rule (2), the work while in progress shall be subject to the inspection and control of the Sanitary Engineer.

Report by municipal authority to the Commissioner in case of small work.

11. Where the estimated cost of works amounts to less than Rs. 10,000, the municipal authority shall report, for the information of the Commissioner of the Division, the agency by which it is proposed to have such works carried out, and shall follow the instructions issued by him in the matter.

Tenders and Contracts.

12. In the case of works carried out under clauses (a) and (b) of rule 10 (2) the following procedure (rules 13 to 24) shall be followed.

13. When requested by the municipal authority the Sanitary Engineer shall prepare working or contract drawings, specifications, estimates, bills of quantities, forms of tender, or other documents or plans required for the execution of sanitary engineering works which have been duly sanctioned and which are to be let out by contract, as well as forms of advertisement inviting tenders for such works.

Preparation of drawings, specifications, forms of tender, etc.

14. When drawings, specifications, bills of quantities, forms of tender, and other documents referred to in rule 13 are not prepared by the Sanitary Engineer, such drawings, specifications, etc., shall be submitted to the Sanitary Engineer for his approval in writing before tenders for the contract of such work are advertised for in the public press.

Approval of Sanitary Engineer to drawings, specifications, forms of tender, etc.

15. Every advertisement for tenders shall briefly describe the works required to be carried out, the place or places where plans and drawings can be seen and copies of the specifications and forms of tender obtained, the deposit to be paid by any person making a tender, and the date and hour up to which tenders shall be received by the Chairman or the Vice-Chairman of the municipal authority.

Advertisements inviting tenders

16. The plans, drawings, specifications, bills of quantities, forms of tender and advertisements shall be formally approved by the municipal authority in meeting. Whenever the said authority desires to make any alteration in any one of such documents, the Sanitary Engineer shall be informed and his advice obtained with regard to such alteration.

Approval of plans, drawings, specifications, forms of tender, etc., by the municipal authority.

17. All tenders shall be submitted in sealed covers addressed to the Chairman or the Vice-Chairman of the municipal authority, and such officer shall attend in person at the office of that authority or at any other place to which it may be directed that tenders shall be forwarded at the latest hour specified in the advertisement for the receipt thereof. Any tender received after such hour shall be out of order and shall not be accepted.

Submission and receipt of tenders

18. The Chairman or the Vice-Chairman of the municipal authority shall himself open the tenders, shall number each tender and shall note thereon the exact time at which it was opened.

Opening and numbering of tenders.

19. After the tenders have been opened, they shall be either—

(a) sent to the Sanitary Engineer, or

(b) in the case of works carried out under rule 10 (2)(a) under the supervision of a municipal engineer approved by the Sanitary Engineer as being competent to advise on these questions, handed to that officer, or

Check and scrutiny of tenders.

(c) in the case of works carried out under rule 10 (2) (b) under the supervision of the District Engineer, handed to that officer, for check and scrutiny :

Provided that in case (b) or (c) the Engineer of the municipal authority or the District Engineer, as the case may be, shall in case of difficulty or uncertainty consult the Sanitary Engineer.

20. The Sanitary Engineer, or the engineer of the municipal authority, or the District Engineer, as the case may be, shall, after checking and scrutinising the tenders, return them to the municipal authority with his remarks and recommendations.

Return of tenders after check and scrutiny.

21. The municipal authority shall thereafter consider the tenders in meeting, and either accept one of them provisionally or, if necessary or desirable, refer the question to the Sanitary Engineer for further advice.

Consideration of tenders.

22. No tender shall be accepted which is not in order, is not fully priced out and is not in every way in accordance with the instructions contained in the advertisement inviting such tenders. Any alteration or reduction in a tender made by the person making the tender after the same has once been submitted shall (except in the case of a palpable arithmetical error) at once render the tender out of order.

Acceptance of tender.

Discharge of tenders and advertisement for fresh tenders.

23. If it is found that none of the tenders submitted is satisfactory, or if for any reason it is believed that the conditions of tendering have not been properly understood, so that fair tenders have not been received, all such tenders shall be discharged and fresh tenders shall be advertised for.

Provisional acceptance and submission of a tender to the Sanitary Engineer

24. After a tender has been provisionally accepted, it shall be submitted to the Sanitary Engineer for final approval, together with all other tenders received for the work, and until such approval has been received no tender shall be finally accepted by the municipal authority :

Provided that, in case of a difference of opinion between the municipal authority and the Sanitary Engineer in regard to the acceptance of a particular tender the matter shall, if the municipal authority so desires, be referred to the Chief Engineer, Roads and Buildings, whose decision shall be final and binding on all parties.

25. Cases of works carried out under the complete supervision or control of the Sanitary Engineer under rule 10 (2) (e) shall be governed by the rules contained in Chapter VIII of the Public Works Department Code.

Fees.

Fees.

26. The fees mentioned in column 2 of the following table shall be leviable from a municipal authority for the services of the Sanitary Engineer specified, opposite thereto, in column 1 of that table :—

Nature of work.	Fees.
(a) Preparation of detailed estimates and drawings for projects and schemes.	2 per cent. on the estimated cost of the works.
(b) Examination and check of detailed estimates and drawings for projects and schemes prepared by a different agency.	½ per cent. on the first Rs. 20,000 of the estimated cost, and ¼ per cent. on the balance of the estimated cost of the works.
(c) Preparation of contract drawings, specifications and forms of tender.	2 per cent. on the estimated cost of the works.

Provided that, when both detailed estimates and drawings and contract drawings, specifications and forms of tender [as specified in items (a) and (c), respectively, in column 1 of the above table] in respect of the same works are prepared by the Sanitary Engineer, an inclusive fee of 3 per cent. on the estimated cost of such works shall be charged.

NOTE.—In calculating the fees the cost of survey and the cost of land acquisition shall be excluded from the estimated cost.

No charge for services of the Sanitary Engineer or his assistants for preparation of sketch of project.

27. When the preparation of the sketch of a project is undertaken or supervised by the Sanitary Engineer under rule 2, no charge shall be made for his services or for those of his assistants, or for the services of Government surveyors, draftsmen and tracers engaged in such work; drawing materials and the instruments required for such work shall also be provided at Government expense. But the municipal authority shall render all reasonable assistance on the spot in supplying survey coolies and survey pegs and in fixing bench-marks, etc., and shall pay the actual cost of the same. Such authority shall also in each case provide a suitable office properly furnished for the use of the Government surveyors and draftsmen.

28. (1) The scale of percentages leviable for the supervision and control of works by the Sanitary Engineer under rule 9 shall be as follows :—

Percentages leviable for supervision and control by Sanitary Engineer.

										Rs.
Less than Rs. 20,000 ...		..		...	8	per cent. on the total final cost of the scheme subject to a maximum of—			...	1,400

SENATE HOUSE, the 29th May 1916.

CALCUTTA UNIVERSITY.

NOTICE.

APPLICATIONS are invited from candidates for the Maharaja of Darbhanga Scholarship for 1916. Such applications are to reach the undersigned not later than the 30th June 1916.

The value of the scholarship is Rs. 50 per month. The scholarship is tenable for one year only from July 1916 to June 1917.

All graduates and licentiates in Medicine of the Calcutta University are eligible to compete for the scholarship.

Every candidate is required to state in his application the special subject or branch of medical science in which he proposes to carry on investigation or research work and also to state in what respects his investigations appear to him to tend to the advancement of medical studies. He is also required to state in his application the place where he intends to carry on his research work. If in a recognised laboratory or hospital, a recommendation from the head of such laboratory or hospital as to the fitness of the candidate to conduct such work, and the probable value of such work must accompany the application. If the candidate intends to carry on investigations privately, his application must be supported by a certificate to the above effect from a Member of the Faculty of Medicine.

The scholar will be appointed by the Syndicate on the recommendation of the Faculty of Medicine.

During the tenure of his scholarship the scholar will be required to devote at least four hours a day, Sundays and holidays excepted, to research work in the special branch of medical science selected by him and approved by the Board of Studies in Medicine. and his work will be open to inspection by a Member of the Faculty of Medicine to be specially deputed by the Faculty in that behalf.

During the tenure of his scholarship, every Research scholar will be required to submit short quarterly reports of his work to the Member of the Faculty of Medicine who may be deputed to inspect his work and upon whose favourable report the continuance of his scholarship will depend.

Each scholar will also be required to submit, at the end of his tenure of scholarship, a complete statement which must be typewritten and otherwise ready for publication and which will be laid before the Faculty of Medicine, who, if publication be deemed advisable, will decide all questions in connection therewith.

DACCA MEDICAL SCHOOL.

SESSION 1916-17.

THE School session will commence this year from 1st July next. Applications for admission into the 1st-year class should be made in the prescribed form (obtainable from the Superintendent's Office) and should reach the Superintendent complete in all respects on or before the 15th June 1916. In the event of the publication of the results of the Matriculation Examination in the Calcutta Gazette being delayed, applications will be received up to the 25th June 1916.

Candidates should have matriculated. Those who have sat for this examination in March last may apply provisionally.

No candidate need apply who has not passed the Matriculation Examination of Calcutta University or its equivalent.

Lady students can be admitted under orders of Government, if they can produce one of the following certificates :—

(i) Certificate of having passed the Middle English Scholarship Examination.

(ii) Certificate of satisfactory completion of the full course in a Middle English School.

(iii) Certificate of having passed the Primary Examination held at the end of standard VI under the vernacular scheme of education, and of being qualified in English up to that stage.

(iv) Certificate from an Inspector of Schools of having passed the Annual Class Examination held at the end of standard VI in a recognised High English or Middle English School, in all the subjects of the prescribed curriculum, including English.

Only under exceptional circumstances will lady students be permitted to reside elsewhere than in the Hostel provided for them.

COMMERCE AND TRADE.

Simla, the 3rd June, 1916.

No. 3931-W.-II.—In exercise of the powers conferred on him by sub-section (1) of section 3 of the Enemy Trading Act, 1915 (XIV of 1915), the Governor-General in Council is pleased to appoint the District Judge, Delhi, to act as Custodian for the province of Delhi, for the purpose of receiving, holding and dealing with such money as may be paid to him in pursuance of the said Act.

No. 3968-34-W.-II.—The following list of articles, declared to be contraband of war, is published for general information :—

List of Articles declared to be Contraband of War.

THE articles declared to be contraband of war in the Proclamations now in force have been arranged alphabetically in the accompanying list. It is hoped that this will be convenient to all parties concerned.

The list comprises the articles which have been declared to be absolute contraband as well as those which have been declared to be conditional contraband. The circumstances of the present war are so peculiar that His Majesty's Government consider that for practical purposes the distinction between the two classes of contraband has ceased to have any value. So large a proportion of the inhabitants of the enemy country are taking part, directly or indirectly in the war that no real distinction can now be drawn between the armed forces and the civilian population. Similarly, the enemy Government has taken control, by a series of decrees and orders, of practically all the articles in the list of conditional contraband, so that they are now available for Government use. So long as these exceptional conditions continue our belligerent rights with respect to the two kinds of contraband are the same, and our treatment of them must be identical.

Foreign Office, April 13, 1916.

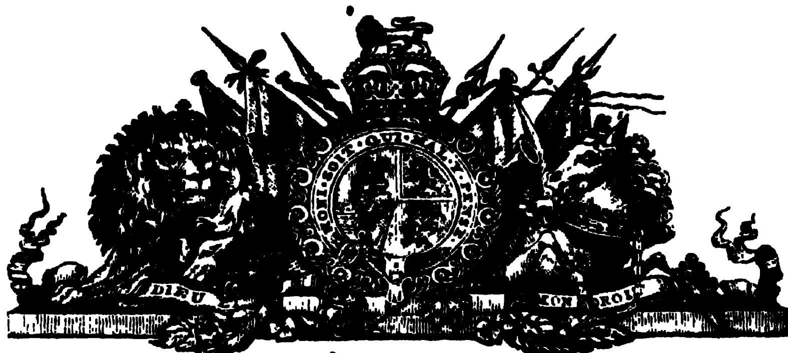
NOTIFICATION.

No. 627.—In pursuance of section 2 of the Defence of India (Criminal Law Amendment) Act, 1915 (IV of 1915), the Governor General in Council is pleased to direct that the following amendment shall be made in the Defence of India (Consolidation) Rules, 1915, namely :—

After rule 11-B of the said rules the following rule shall be inserted, namely :—

"11-C. (1) The Governor General in Council or any other authority empowered by him in this behalf may by order in writing require the occupier or other person in charge of any building which, in the opinion of the authority making the order, can be utilised in connection with the treatment of the sick or wounded of His Majesty's naval or land forces, to place, at the disposal of the Governor General in Council at such time as may be specified in the order, such building, together with the whole or any part which may be specified in the order of any fixtures, fittings, furniture or other things for the time being in the building, and the Governor General in Council may dispose of and use such building or other thing in such manner as he may consider necessary or expedient.



Power to requisition buildings, etc., for treatment of sick or wounded of His Majesty's forces

(2) The Governor General in Council shall pay to the owner of any building or thing which has been so placed at his disposal in accordance with an order made under sub-rule (1), such compensation for the use of such building or thing and for any loss immediately attributable to such order and for any services rendered or expenditure incurred in complying therewith as in default of agreement may be decided to be just and reasonable, having regard to the circumstances of the case, by the arbitration of a person having expert knowledge of matters such as that in dispute, to be nominated in this behalf by the Governor General in Council, and such decision shall be final.

(3) If the occupier or other person in charge of a building disobeys or neglects to comply with any order made in the exercise of the power conferred by sub-rule (1), such occupier or other person shall be deemed to have contravened these rules, and the authority making the order may forthwith take possession of the building and of any other thing specified in the order and may dispose of and use the same in such manner as such authority may consider necessary or expedient.

(4) The expression 'building' in this rule shall include any portion or portions of a building whether separately occupied or not."

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

(CIVIL VETERINARY ADMINISTRATION.)

Simla, the 18th May 1916.

The following Regulations, now in force in Mauritius, regarding the importation of animals into the Colony, are published for general information :—

Ordinance No. 11 of 1915.

AN ORDINANCE

Enacted by the Governor of Mauritius with the advice and consent of the Council of Government thereof.

To consolidate the laws on Animal Diseases.

I assent.

J. R. CHANCELLOR,
Governor.

28th August 1915.

BE IT ENACTED by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Council of Government, as follows :—

Definitions.

1. For the purposes of this Ordinance :—

"Animals" shall include cattle (bulls, oxen, cows, heifers and calves), sheep, goats, horses, mules, donkeys, pigs, dogs, cats, or any other animal which may be added to this list by Regulations;

"Diseases" shall mean any of the following diseases: Anthrax, East Coast fever, Epizootic lymphangitis, Foot and Mouth disease, Glanders and Farcy, Pleuro-pneumonia, Rabies, Rinderpest or cattle-plague, Swine fever, Trypanozoonosis, Tuberculosis, and any other animal disease which may be added to this list by Regulations;

"Carcase" shall mean the carcase of an animal and shall include a part of a carcase, and the meat, bones, hides, skin, hoofs, horns, offal, or any other part of an animal, separately or otherwise, or any portion thereof:

"Veterinary Surgeon" shall mean the Government Veterinary Surgeon or any Veterinary Surgeon appointed by the Governor for the purposes of this Ordinance;

"Owner" shall mean every person who is the sole or part owner of any animal; and in the case of dogs, the person who shall be in the actual possession of the house, place or premises where such dog shall be found, shall be deemed to be the owner, unless reasonable proof to the contrary is adduced:

"Fodder" shall mean hay, chaff or other substance commonly used for food of animals;

"Litter" shall mean straw, or other substance commonly used for bedding or otherwise for or about animals;

"Regulations" means Regulations made by the Governor in Executive Council. Such Regulations shall be laid on the table of the Council.

SECTION I.

IMPORTATION OF ANIMALS.

Prohibition of Importation.

2. Regulations may be made prohibiting absolutely or admitting, subject to such conditions as the Governor in Executive Council may be advised to impose, all or any importations of any kind from any port, place or country, where a disease of animals shall be reported to exist.

Veterinary certificates.

3. (1) All animals to be imported into the Colony shall be accompanied with a certificate signed by a Veterinary Surgeon. Where such Veterinary Surgeon is not in the employ of Government, the certificate shall be endorsed by a responsible officer of a Government Department of Agriculture or by any officer of the British Consular Service. Where no Veterinary Surgeon is available, the certificate shall be given by a qualified medical officer. Such certificate shall be produced by the Master or person in charge of the vessel arriving with the animals on board and shall show:—

(a) the number of animals shipped:
(b) the place from which the animals have come;
(c) what, if any, disease of animals existed at the time of departure of the animals at the place or country adjacent thereto from which the animals have been brought.

(2) The Master or person in charge of such vessel shall also be bound to produce a bill of health signed by a qualified Veterinary Surgeon, or by the Medical Officer of the port, showing, at the port or place from which animals have been embarked and in the country adjacent thereto, what disease of animals, if any, existed at time of embarkment:

Failing such certificates, the landing of animals shall be prohibited.

Declaration to be made by Master.

4. The Master or person in charge of a vessel arriving with animals on board shall be bound to make a declaration to the Veterinary Surgeon which shall show:—

(a) the number of animals carried on the vessel during its voyage, where they were taken on and their respective destination;
(b) whether any disease or death has occurred among animals on board his vessel during his voyage.

Penalty for false declaration.

5. In case the declaration made by such Master or person shall be false, and such Master or person shall have made it knowing it to be false, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding two thousand Rupees (Rs. 2,000) and to imprisonment not exceeding one year.

Veterinary inspection at Port of Entry.

6. The Veterinary Surgeon shall inspect all animals on board and no animal shall be permitted to be landed by the Collector of Customs from any vessel without a written certificate of the Veterinary Surgeon stating that they are free from disease or that they are to be landed under his supervision in quarantine.

Animals coming from infected places

7. If the Veterinary Surgeon shall have proof or suspicion from the Master's declaration or otherwise that any disease of animals prevails on board or prevailed or had recently prevailed at the port or place from which they are brought or the country adjacent thereto at the time of the vessel's departure therefrom or at any port or place at which the vessel may have embarked animals during the voyage, it shall be lawful for such Veterinary Surgeon to prohibit the landing of the animals or any carcase until after consultation with the Director of Agriculture.

Infected or suspected animals.

8. After such consultation, the Veterinary Surgeon may prohibit the landing of such infected or suspected animals or order or impose at the charge of the owner any or all of the following measures:—

(a) Destruction at some fit or proper place of any animal or carcase affected with disease;
(b) Destruction and disposal of all fodder, litter or dung;
(c) Inoculation, disinfection, testing, dipping, spraying, or muzzling of any animal;
(d) Landing and Isolation under his supervision of any animals suspected of being infected with disease at some fit and proper place specified by regulations;
(e) Detention of such animals under observation for periods to be fixed by Regulations;
(f) Disinfection and fumigation of such parts of the vessel and cargo as may be deemed necessary;
(g) Disinfection and fumigation of the clothes and personal effects of passengers and crew.

Responsibility for attention to animals under observation.

9. The responsibility for the feeding, watering, tending and herding of animals while under observation shall be upon the owner, unless otherwise provided by Regulations.

Penalties for illegal removal of suspect animals or non-fulfilment of orders of Veterinary Surgeon.

10. Any Master of a vessel, or person, causing or allowing, or any person concerned in the removal of any animal, carcase, fodder, litter or dung from any vessel or from any Quarantine Station, in breach of any order of the Veterinary Surgeon or of the provisions of this Ordinance or of the Regulations made thereunder, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding two thousand Rupees (Rs. 2,000) and to imprisonment not exceeding one year.

SECTION II.

ANIMAL DISEASES IN THE COLONY.

Report of Disease.

11. Where it appears to an Inspector appointed by the Governor for the purpose of this Ordinance or to any owner that any animal on any land or in any place has become infected or is suspected of being infected with disease, he shall report the same to the Veterinary Surgeon.

Declaration of infected areas and places.

12. (1) The Veterinary Surgeon, if satisfied that a disease exists on the said land or place, may declare any defined area of that land or place to be an infected area.

(2) Such a declaration shall be served upon the owner or person in charge of the animals and, if the Director of Agriculture so determines, shall also be notified in the Gazette and in three daily newspapers. Every such notice shall state the limits of the infected area and the disease with which it is declared infected, and a copy of the same shall be forwarded to the owner, to the Inspector of Police and to the Sanitary Authority of the District.

Orders for prevention or checking of a disease and other purposes.

13. Within any declared infected area, the Veterinary Surgeon shall, after consultation with the Director of Agriculture, issue orders in writing to carry out all or parts of the regulations made for the following purposes:—

(a) For branding, isolating, inoculating, disinfecting, testing, dipping, spraying, muzzling or destroying any animal;

(b) For prohibiting or regulating the movements of animals and persons into, out of, or within, the infected area or place;

(c) For the destruction, disposal, or treatment of any carcase, grass, fodder, litter or dung;

(d) For the cleaning and disinfecting of infected areas or parts thereof;

(e) For the disinfection of the clothes of any person within an infected area and for restricting or preventing the movements of persons where any such movements are likely to spread disease, and prescribing the precautions to be taken by any person whose movements are so restricted;

(f) For the disinfection, or treatment of any pasture or grazing ground within an infected area;

(g) For closing or controlling abattoirs or pounds;

(h) For regulating applications for compensation and the scale of payment in the case of any animals slaughtered by order, and for ascertaining the value of such animals when necessary.

Declaration of area free from disease.

14. No infected area or portion of such area shall be considered to be free from any disease until such area or portion thereof be declared in writing by the Veterinary Surgeon to be free from such disease, and if notice of infection has been published in the Gazette and in daily newspapers, such declaration of freedom from disease shall likewise be published.

Power of entry.

15. Any Inspector appointed for the purposes of this Ordinance shall have the right to enter any land, place or premises in order to carry out any investigations under the provisions of this Ordinance and of the Regulations made thereunder: Provided that it shall not be lawful to enter any dwelling-house between sunset and sunrise without a warrant from a Magistrate.

Duties of Police and Sanitary Officers.

16. Officers of Police and Sanitary Officers shall execute and enforce the provisions of this Ordinance and any order given thereunder: and where any person is seen or found committing or is reasonably suspected of being engaged in committing an offence against any provisions of this Ordinance he may be arrested without warrant, and if unknown to such an officer, may be caused to be detained until otherwise ordered by the competent Magistrate, and such offenders shall as soon as possible be taken before such Magistrate, and he may examine any animal, vehicle or thing to which the offence or suspected offence relates and require and enforce the same to be forthwith taken back to or into the place or area wherefrom it was unlawfully removed.

Procedure in charges under Ordinance or Regulations.

17. In all prosecutions or contraventions under this Ordinance or Regulations made thereunder, no proof shall be required of the appointment or handwriting of any Inspector or Veterinary Surgeon and any information in such cases may be exhibited by any Sanitary Officer or Officer of Police.

Penalties.

18. Any person who is guilty of any offence, not otherwise provided for, against any provision of this Ordinance or of the Regulations made thereunder, or contravenes, disobeys or fails to comply with any lawful order or the conditions of any permit or other document made or issued by the Veterinary Surgeon shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand Rupees (Rs. 1,000) and to imprisonment not exceeding three months.

19. It shall be lawful by Regulations to extend the whole or part of this Ordinance to the Dependencies or to any of them, with such modifications as may appear necessary.

Extension of the Ordinance to the Dependencies.

20. The Ordinances mentioned in the Schedule are repealed to the extent in the third column of that Schedule mentioned.

Repeal clause.

21. This Ordinance may be cited as "The Animal Diseases (Consolidation) Ordinance, 1915".

Réunion,
Persian Gulf Ports,
Basutoland,
Zululand,
Rhodesia.
South Madagascar (Provinces of Tulear, Fianarantsoa, Farafangana and in the Military Circles of Fort Dauphin and Mahafaly).

2. No raw leather, untanned hides or fresh hides, or manures or other fertilising agents of animal origin, shall be allowed to be landed from the following countries, ports or places :—

Réunion,
Persian Gulf Ports,
Basutoland,
Zululand,
Rhodesia,
India.

REGULATIONS FOR PARTICULAR DISEASE MADE UNDER SECTION 1, ARTICLES 2 AND 8 (e).

Anthrax.

3. No animal coming from a port or place in which anthrax has existed or is reported to have existed during the six months previous to shipment shall be allowed to be landed unless accompanied with a certificate stating that the animal has, within 10 days of shipment, been inoculated with anti-anthrax serum and until it has passed since embarkation a period of quarantine of 21 days including the voyage.

East Coast Fever.

4. No animal coming from a port or place in which East Coast Fever has existed or is reported to have existed during the six months previous to shipment, shall be allowed to be landed until after it has been sprayed or dipped with tick-destroying spray or dip, and until it has passed since embarkation a period of quarantine of 21 days including the voyage.

Episootic Lymphangitis.

5. No animal coming from a port or place in which episootic lymphangitis has existed or is reported to have existed during six months previous to shipment, shall be allowed to be landed.

Foot-and-Mouth Disease.

6. No animal coming from a port or place in which foot-and-mouth disease has existed or is reported to have existed during the six months previous to shipment shall be allowed to be landed.

Glanders and Farcy.

7. No animal coming from a port or place in which glanders has existed or is reported to have existed during the three months previous to shipment shall be allowed to be landed unless accompanied with a certificate stating that the animal has, within 10 days of the shipment, been subjected to the mallein test with a favourable result and until it has passed, since embarkation, a period of quarantine of 14 days including the voyage.

Pleuro-pneumonia.

8. No animal coming from a port or place in which pleuro-pneumonia has existed or is reported to have existed during the six months previous to shipment shall be allowed to be landed.

Rabies.

9. Any dog or cat coming from a port or place or country in which rabies has existed or is reported to have existed during the twelve months previous to shipment, shall, for a period of four calendar months after its landing, be detained and isolated at the expense of its owner upon premises in the occupation, or under the control, of a qualified Veterinary Surgeon which have been previously approved in writing by the Director of Agriculture. During detention such dog or cat shall be examined at regular intervals by the Veterinary Surgeon, and if found to be diseased may be ordered to be destroyed. No dog or cat so detained shall during the period of detention be moved from the place of detention except to another place of detention or to a vessel for exportation, and in either case only with a written permission from the Director of Agriculture.

10. Any dog or cat on board any vessel at Port Louis shall be notified by the Master to the Officer of the Harbour Department who shall first board such vessel, and every dog or cat which is not landed shall be secured to the vessel by a collar or chain or confined in such a way that it cannot escape. Before unmooring any vessel on her departure from the port, the Collector of Customs shall require from the Tide Surveyor a certificate that the dogs or cats, if any, which were on board the vessel at the time of arrival actually remained on board except such as have been legally landed and such as may have died between the period of arrival and of clearing of the vessel, in which latter case the Tide Surveyor shall certify that the bodies of the dogs or cats which have so died have been produced to him.

Rinderpest or Cattle Plague.

11. No animal coming from a port or place in which rinderpest has existed or is reported to have existed during the six months previous to shipment shall be allowed to be landed, except that cattle for stud purposes may be allowed to be landed if accompanied with a certificate stating that the animal has before shipment been inoculated with anti-rinderpest serum. Such animal may be quarantined until it has passed since embarkation a period of 28 days including the voyage.

Swine Fever.

12. No animal coming from a port or place in which swine fever has existed or is reported to have existed during the three months previous to shipment shall be allowed to be landed.

Trypanosoonosis.

13. No animal coming from a port or place in which trypanosoonosis has existed or is reported to have existed during the six months previous to shipment shall be allowed to be landed, except that cattle required for stud purposes may be allowed to be landed and subjected to tests and quarantine, at the owner's expense, extending over one month from time of landing, subject to being slaughtered without compensation if found to be infected.

Tuberculosis.

14. No animal coming from a port or place in which tuberculosis has existed or is reported to have existed in epidemic form shall be allowed to be landed. Any cattle imported from any country for stud purposes may be subjected to the tuberculin test on landing, if not accompanied with a certificate stating that it has been tested and has not reacted to tuberculin, and shall be slaughtered without compensation if found to react.

REGULATIONS FOR THE CONTROL OF DISEASES IN THE COLONY MADE UNDER SECTION II, ARTICLE 13.

Anthrax.

15. Any animal suffering from anthrax or suspected of suffering from anthrax shall be isolated to the satisfaction of the Veterinary Surgeon and in no case shall such animals have access to water or grazing ground used by healthy animals.

16. Any animal suffering from anthrax or suspected of suffering from anthrax may be ordered to be branded by a special brand, and again branded by a special brand when cured.

17. Any animal suspected of suffering from anthrax shall be tested and any Inspector of person authorised by him in writing may take or cause to be taken from such animals between sunrise and sunset, blood smears for purposes of examination.

18. The Veterinary Surgeon may dissect the carcase of, or remove portions of, an animal which has died of anthrax for the purpose of diagnosis, if he considers such action necessary.

19. When an animal has died or is suspected of having died of anthrax, the owner or person in charge of the carcase shall cause the same to be properly burned, or buried to a depth of at least three feet with lime.

20. An owner or a person in charge of an animal suffering from anthrax shall not permit any person to have access to such animal other than the person whose access to the animal is necessary for the proper care thereof or a person entitled under the Ordinance to examine such animal.

21. Any person who has been in contact with the excreta, discharges or any portions of an animal which has died, or is suspected of having died, of anthrax, may be required to disinfect his person and apparel.

22. The person in charge of an animal suffering from anthrax shall cause all excreta, litter and discharge whatsoever therefrom to be burned and the place where such excretions or discharges have lain to be properly disinfected.

23. All stables or sheds in which animals suffering from anthrax have been stabled or isolated shall be either burned or disinfected. Any hay, fodder, grain or other materials found in such stables shall be burned.

24. Any animal suffering from or suspected of suffering from anthrax, or which has been in contact with such animals, may be ordered to be inoculated and slaughtered. If such animals are grazing at pasture, no animal shall be removed from such pasture without a permit from the Veterinary Surgeon.

25. The owner or person in charge of an animal ordered to be slaughtered shall give effect to such order without delay.

26. If an animal ordered to be inoculated is not inoculated within a delay of 48 hours, such animal shall be slaughtered and the carcase destroyed by the owner or by order of the Veterinary Surgeon in case of non-compliance without any compensation being payable.

East Coast Fever.

27. Any animal suffering from East Coast fever or suspected of suffering from East Coast fever must be isolated to the satisfaction of the Veterinary Surgeon, and in no case shall such animal have access to water or grazing ground used by healthy animals.

28. Any animal suffering from East Coast fever or suspected of suffering from East Coast fever may be ordered to be branded by a special brand and again branded with a special brand when cured.

29. Any animal suspected of suffering from East Coast fever shall be tested and any Inspector or any person authorised in writing by him may take or cause to be taken, between sunrise and sunset, blood smears from such animals for purposes of examination.

30. No person shall, without a written permit from the Veterinary Surgeon, move any cattle, hoofs, hides or portions of hides within an infected area; likewise no grass, hay, litter or manure shall be removed without a written permit.

31. No person shall move any cattle within an infected area without an authorisation in writing from the Veterinary Surgeon. Means shall be taken by owners of cattle or by persons in charge thereof to have cattle in an infected area properly herded and to take steps to prevent straying.

32. No permit for the removal of cattle will be issued until the Veterinary Surgeon is satisfied that they have been freed from ticks by regular dipping or spraying with an effective tick-destroying dip or spray and no permit for the removal of hoofs, hides or portions of hides until after they have been disinfected to the satisfaction of the Veterinary Surgeon.

33. Any animal suffering from or suspected of suffering from East Coast fever or which has been in contact with such animals shall be dipped or sprayed with an effective tick-destroying solution, at such intervals as may be considered necessary and in the case such operations are not carried out to the satisfaction of the Veterinary Surgeon, they may be carried out by Government at the expense of the person concerned.

Epizootic Lymphangitis.

34. Any animal suffering from or suspected of suffering from epizootic lymphangitis shall be isolated to the satisfaction of the Veterinary Surgeon and in no case shall such animals have access to water used by healthy animals, and treatment shall be carried out in respect of such animals by qualified Veterinary Surgeons.

35. If the treatment be not undertaken or if the affected animal is, in the opinion of the Veterinary Surgeon, incurable, such animals shall be slaughtered without any compensation being payable.

36. No equine shall be allowed to enter a stable which is occupied by an animal suffering from epizootic lymphangitis or into any stable which has been occupied by such animal until such stable has been properly disinfected. Any such contacts may be ordered to be isolated for definite specified periods.

37. All stables or sheds in which animals suffering from epizootic lymphangitis have been stabled or isolated shall be either burned or disinfected. Any hay, fodder, grain or other materials found in such stables shall be burned.

Foot-and-Mouth Disease.

38. Any animal suffering from or suspected of suffering from foot-and-mouth disease shall be isolated to the satisfaction of the Veterinary Surgeon and in no case shall such animals have access to water or grazing ground used by healthy animals, and no declared area shall be considered to be free from infection until fifteen days after the death, slaughter or recovery of the last case detected.

39. No animal shall be moved into or from an area declared an infected area on account of foot-and-mouth disease, unless accompanied with a written permission from the Veterinary Surgeon.

40. An owner or person in charge of an animal suffering from foot-and-mouth disease shall not permit any person to have access to such animal other than the person whose access to the animal is necessary for the proper care thereof or a person entitled under the Ordinance to examine such animal.

41. Any person who has been in contact with the excreta, discharges or any portions of an animal which has died or is suspected of having died of foot-and-mouth disease may be required to disinfect his person and apparel and shall be required to disinfect his hands and boots or feet.

42. The person in charge of an animal suffering from foot-and-mouth disease shall cause all excreta, litter and discharge whatsoever therefrom to be burned and the place where such excretions or discharges have lain to be properly disinfected.

43. All stables or sheds in which animals suffering from foot-and-mouth disease have been stabled or isolated shall be either burned or disinfected. Any hay, fodder, grain or other materials found in such stables shall be burned.

44. No person shall move, or cause or permit to be moved, milk, from any place or premises where foot-and-mouth disease is known or suspected to exist.

45. All carcases of animals which have died from foot-and-mouth disease shall be burned and the Veterinary Surgeon may order any animal suffering from or suspected of suffering from foot and-mouth disease or which have been in contact with such animals to be slaughtered.

Glanders and Farcy.

46. Any animal suffering from or suspected of suffering from glanders or farcy shall be isolated to the satisfaction of the Veterinary Surgeon and in no case shall such animal have access to water used by healthy animals.

47. Any animal visibly suffering from glanders or farcy shall be slaughtered and all animals suspected of suffering from glanders or farcy shall be subjected to the mallein test, and such animals as react to that test shall be destroyed.

48. All stables or sheds in which animals suffering from glanders or reacting to the mallein test have been stabled or isolated shall be either burned or disinfected. Any hay, fodder, grain or other materials found in such stables shall be burned.

Pleuro-pneumonia.

49. Any cattle suffering from pleuro-pneumonia shall be destroyed.

50. Any cattle which have been, or are suspected of having been, in contact with any cattle suffering from or suspected of suffering from pleuro-pneumonia shall be isolated, and, if considered necessary, inoculated. No animal so isolated shall be liberated from such isolation until three months have elapsed since the last infected or suspected head of cattle was destroyed or inoculated.

51. No carcase of cattle slaughtered on account of pleuro-pneumonia may be sold or disposed of for food until the affected organs and tissues have been destroyed under the supervision of the Veterinary Surgeon.

Rabies.

52. Any animal affected or suspected of being affected with rabies shall be immediately destroyed. Any animal found wandering about in an infected area in the streets or on roads in a furious or rabid state may be at once destroyed by any person.

53. Any animal which has been bitten or is suspected of having been bitten by a rabid animal may be ordered to be destroyed or quarantined in a place of isolation and kept under observation for a period of six months.

54. The carcases of animals which have died of rabies or that have been destroyed on account of rabies shall be burned.

55. Any dog found loose or wandering or running about in the streets, squares, highways and other public places, unless muzzled or tied about with a string or chain, in any area declared as infected with rabies shall be destroyed: provided that any dog having a collar round its neck with the name and address of its owner may be returned to its owner on payment to the person having recovered the said dog of ten Rupees (Rs. 10).

56. In any area declared as infected with rabies, any signs of sickness of a dog or cat shall be immediately reported to the Veterinary Surgeon who may order isolation or destruction.

Rinderpest or Cattle Plague.

57. Any animal suffering from rinderpest or cattle plague may be ordered to be destroyed.

58. Any animal suspected of suffering from rinderpest or which may have been in contact with animals suffering from, or suspected of suffering from, rinderpest shall be inoculated and isolated for not less than fourteen days after the death, slaughter or recovery of the last affected animal.

59. Any animal suffering from or suspected of suffering from rinderpest may be ordered to be branded with a special brand, and again branded with a special brand, when cured.

60. No cattle shall be moved within or from an area declared infected with rinderpest without a written permit from the Veterinary Surgeon, and no horse, ass or mule that has been in contact with any animal which has died or is suspected of having died of rinderpest or to be suffering from the disease shall be moved until the hoofs have been disinfected to the satisfaction of the Veterinary Surgeon.

61. An owner or a person in charge of an animal suffering from rinderpest shall not permit any person to have access to such animal other than the person whose access to the animal is necessary for the proper care thereof or a person entitled under the Ordinance or these Regulations to examine such animal.

62. Any person who has been in contact with the excreta, discharges or any portion of an animal which has died or is suspected to have died of rinderpest, may be required to disinfect his person and apparel, and shall disinfect his boots or feet before leaving the stable or place where such cattle were housed or herded.

63. All carcases of animals that have died or are suspected of having died of rinderpest shall be destroyed and no blood, meat, milk, hides or excretions of animals suffering from or suspected of suffering from rinderpest shall be brought into contact with other animals or removed from an infected area.

64. All stables or sheds in which animals suffering from rinderpest have been stabled or isolated shall be either burned or disinfected. Any hay, fodder, grain or other materials found in such stables shall be burned.

65. No manure or litter from animals suffering, or suspected of suffering, from rinderpest, nor any fodder shall be removed from an area infected with such disease except under written permit from the Veterinary Surgeon.

Swine Fever.

66. Any swine suffering from swine fever shall be destroyed and their carcases burned

67. Any swine which, within a period of thirty days, has been in contact with swine suffering from swine fever shall be isolated for a period of not less than thirty days after the slaughter or death of the last affected animal.

68. No manure or litter from swine suffering from or suspected of suffering from swine fever shall be removed from an infected area and such manure or litter may be used within an infected area only after such treatment as the Veterinary Surgeon may prescribe.

69. An owner or a person in charge of an animal suffering from swine fever shall not permit any person to have access to such animals other than the person whose access to the animal is necessary for the proper care thereof or person entitled under the Ordinance to examine such animal.

70. Any person who has been in contact with swine suffering from swine fever shall not leave the stable or place where such swine are kept without disinfecting his hands and boots or feet.

71. All piggeries in which swine suffering from or suspected of suffering from swine fever have been kept or isolated shall be burned or disinfected.

Trypanozoonosis.

72. Any animal affected with or suspected of being affected with trypanozoonosis shall be isolated to the satisfaction of the Veterinary Surgeon or an Inspector under the Ordinance. Such place of isolation shall be at least one hundred and fifty feet from stables used for healthy animals or three hundred feet from any public road or place.

73. No animal affected with trypanozoonosis shall have access to water or grazing ground used by healthy animals and no animal affected or suspected of being affected with trypanozoonosis shall be, or allowed to be, moved along any public road or place between the hours of 5 A.M. and 7 P.M.

74. Any animal affected with trypanozoonosis shall, and any contacts may, be treated, by a qualified Veterinary Surgeon selected by the owner, or in accordance with instructions issued by the Veterinary Surgeon and all infected horses, asses, mules or cattle shall be slaughtered upon the order of an Inspector in case of non-compliance with such treatment without compensation.

75. No animal affected or suspected of being affected with trypanozoonosis shall be considered to be free from disease until it has been tested by the Veterinary Surgeon and found to be no longer capable of conveying infection to healthy animals.

76. Any affected animal found straying in any place, public or private, may be seized and destroyed or otherwise dealt with as the Veterinary Surgeon shall decide, and the owner or keeper thereof shall be entitled to no compensation whatsoever.

77. All carcases of animals that have died of trypanozoonosis or have been slaughtered shall be buried or otherwise disposed of at the expense of the owner as soon as possible after death to the satisfaction of the Inspector.

Tuberculosis.

78. Any animal affected or suspected of being affected with tuberculosis shall be submitted to the tuberculin test, and it shall be the duty of every person or Veterinary Surgeon to report the results of any tuberculin test performed by him within forty-eight hours of the completion thereof to the Veterinary Surgeon appointed under the Ordinance. Any animal which gives a doubtful reaction shall be isolated and treated as a suspect until a re-test can be made.

79. Any bovine in an emaciated condition reacting to the tuberculin test shall be slaughtered and the carcase shall not be sold or disposed of for human consumption.

80. Any cow used for the supply of milk reacting to the tuberculin test shall be slaughtered. The milk of suspected animals shall not be sold until after a retest with tuberculin has been made.

81. All stables and sheds occupied by animals which react to the tuberculin test shall be destroyed or disinfected and no stable or shed which has been occupied by an animal affected with tuberculosis shall be occupied by other animals until after disinfection.

PAYMENTS AND COMPENSATIONS.

82. All Veterinary Surgeons should report cases of diseases and payments for such reports on presentation to the Department of Agriculture will be made in accordance with the terms of the Schedule.

83. Compensation for compulsory slaughter will be paid in accordance with the terms of the Schedule. The value of the animal ordered to be slaughtered will be reported on by the Veterinary Surgeon, but it will be open at the same time to the owner to send a valuation in writing from a qualified Veterinary Surgeon for the consideration of the Director of Agriculture whose decision shall be final.
